House Passes Bag Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina House Thursday passed and sent to the Senate a bill to legalize brown-bagging of liquor in wet areas of the state.

The final roll call vote was 72-37. Tentative approval of the measure drafted by Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, was voted Wednesday, but the House Thursday adopted a clarifying amendment and continued debate for 45 minutes before taking a final vote.

The measure authorizes brown-bagging in approved restaurants and private clubs in wet areas and transportation of liquor throughout the state. It will go back to the Senate for concurrence with the House version of a bill which the Senate passed last week.

Rep. C. Edley Hutchins, R-Buncombe, warned the proposal will bring "open bars along the highway" and recounted to members of the House stories of automobile crashes he had seen caused by liquor.

Rep. Julian B. Fenner, D-Nash, commended sponsors of the bill and said before it was submitted, the General Assembly has "set a bad example for the children of this state by permitting an unrealistic law to stay on the books. He said the new law will be "fair for both wets and dries."

Draft Card Burner Jailed

NEW YORK (AP)—David J. Miller was carried bodily from a federal courtroom yesterday to begin a two and one-half-year jail sentence as the nation's first draft card burner.

The 24-year-old husband father of an infant daughter was jailed for refusing to obtain a new draft card to replace the one he burned as an act of protest against the Vietnam war.

Miller lay down on the floor of the courtroom when he was sentenced to jail as a probation violator by Judge Harold R. Tyler.

"I will sit down because I want to show you that it's against my will," Miller said. Marshals then carried him from the courtroom.

The defendant turned down an offer by the judge to put off his commitment in order to "spend a little time" with his family.

Miller was convicted March 15, 1966, of burning his draft card. Judge Tyler had sentenced him to three years in prison, but suspended the sentence on condition he get a new draft card within 15 days.

The conviction was upheld by Appeals Court and the Supreme Court declined to review the case.

Miller, formerly of Syracuse and more recently a resident of Washington, burned his draft card Oct. 15, 1965 at a Manhattan Army induction center.

Miller's wife, Catherine, sat on the courtroom floor near her husband when the sentence was pronounced.

Marvin Karparkin, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer, said Miller was not violent.

Demonstrators Greet HHH

BERLIN (AP) — Demonstrators hurled bags of flour at Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's car last night and shouted anti-American slogans after a day that saw him charm Berliners by reaffirming a U.S. pledge to defend Berlin.

None of the flour struck the vice president, who had been given a heavy security guard after police arrested 10 young leftist extremists and accused them of planning to attack him with explosives.

But the night echoed with whistles, boos and shouts of "Americans out of Vietnam" as Humphrey arrived at Charlottenburg Castle to be the guest of honor at a reception given by Mayor Heinrich Albertz.

On his two-week tour of Western Europe, Humphrey has been dogged by demonstrations mainly aimed at U.S. policy in Vietnam and this was one of the largest.

Humphrey's limousine, guarded by a phalanx of motorcycle policemen, whipped past the demonstrators as they chanted "Ho, Ho Chi Minh"—the president of North Vietnam.

Nurse Upholds Testimony

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Tiny Corazon Amurao, who has identified Richard Speck as the slayer of eight nurses, held firmly to her story yesterday under one hour and 24 minutes of cross-examination.

Gerald W. Getty, who is defending Speck on charges of murdering the young women, delved into an earlier identification of Speck and raised questions about men who called at the nurses' townhouse living quarters and whether the doors were locked.

The interrogation touched on parts of the testimony Miss Amurao gave Wednesday about the massacre in the pre-dawn hours of July 14, 1966 in the victims' dormitory on Chicago's south side, and referred to the investigation that followed. Miss Amurao was the sole survivor.

President Bob Travis is sworn in by Frank Hodges.

Fire Laws Are Inadequate; Better Alarms Necessary

By DON CAMPBELL
DTH News Editor

The chances of a tragic fire on this campus, such as the one Wednesday morning at Cornell University, are less now than they were a few years ago, but there are University officials who would like to see further fire safety steps taken.

The fire at Cornell took the lives of eight students and a faculty member housed in a co-educational "fireproof" dormitory.

Most of the dorms on this campus could be considered "fireproof" as the term is loosely used, but that doesn't make them absolutely safe, according to Housing Director James Wadsworth.

He says that cinderblock walls, concrete floors and steel doors make up a so-called "fireproof" building.

But once a fire gets started in a building like this, say in a mattress, in drapes, or in the wiring in the walls, the smoke becomes a bigger hazard than the actual flames would be. It was the heavy smoke that took the lives at Cornell.

Most of the newer dorms on campus have outside fire escapes from top to bottom. It was not until six or seven years ago that Old East and Old West had outside fire escapes. That was when the ladders hanging down the outside walls were installed.

The coeds here have regular fire drills in their dorms, the men do not. The rationalization given for this is that men do not have closing hours, they come and go when they please, they are often absent from their rooms all night.

Campus Security Chief Arthur Beaumont thinks some steps should be taken. Namely, an internal alarm system. Wadsworth also would like to see an alarm system installed.

Both men say the fire laws here are adequate and are adequately enforced. They say the state goes out of its way to see that new buildings are built to the best of standards.

But they think more could be done.

The campus is not immune to fires, but there have been few in recent years.

Two years ago, an arsonist set fire to the drapes in the living room of the Phi Delta Theta House late one night, but he was caught, the fire was put out, and some 40 sleeping students were unharmed.

Trustee Change Matter Shelved

Former Governor Luther Hodges apparently will go along with Gov. Dan Moore's tabling of the report which Hodges' study commission submitted last November recommending extensive changes in the University Board of Trustees.

Hodges, commenting on Moore's recommendation last week that the report be referred "without prejudice" to the General Assembly, said, "We have to follow whatever the Governor recommends."

Moore said the report was "most comprehensive and meritorious," but that "its recommendations are far-reaching, and, if adopted, they would constitute a major change in the state's system of higher education."

He added, however, that he would consider recommending the bill to legislators in perhaps two years.

The Hodges' commission report called for, in part: —Reducing the board's size from 100 members to 24 by 1973.

—Prohibiting legislators or their wives from serving.

—Creating a 100-member "board of advisers," elected by the General Assembly "to aid the board of trustees in maintaining effective relationships between the University and the people of the State."

—Discontinuing the Governor's role as board chairman and abolish all honorary memberships.

—Providing geographical representation, with at least one resident from each congressional district.

Art Takes Over Town Sidewalks

By CAROL WONSAVAGE
DTH Features Editor

Downtown Chapel Hill will turn into an outdoor art gallery this weekend as the 10th annual Chapel Hill Sidewalk Art Show starts in front of Battle Dormitory as a prelude to the Fine Arts Festival.

Paintings, prints, sculpture, and ceramics will line the sidewalk in front of Battle and occupy the adjoining lot. Any type of work may be submitted, including photographs. Over 200 exhibits have already been entered.

For the first time prizes will be offered at the show. Charles Morgan, Assistant Professor of Art at the University of Georgia, will judge the entries on Friday morning. The $30 dollar prizes have been contributed by the Arts Festival Committee, the Art Gallery of Chapel Hill, and Huggins Hardware.

Robert Collier, president of the University Art League, said the show is being held in conjunction with the Associated Artists of North Carolina for the first time. Artists from all over the state as well as art students at UNC are exhibiting.

Most of the works displayed will be for sale. Prices range from $1 to $175 and works may be bought at the exhibit or through Ackland Art Gallery.

The prizes will be given for best in show, best painting, best sculpture, best in the field of prints and drawings, and best in other media.

Another exhibit, which opened April 3 and will run through April 15 is being held concurrently with the Arts Festival. Two Chapel Hill artists, painter Dick Mandell and sculptor Jim Brewer have displayed their works in the main exhibiting room of the Morehead Planetarium. Both men have won many awards in local and national exhibitions.

Also being shown in conjunction with the Arts Festival is the First National Print Makers Show at Ackland Art Center. Prize winning prints from all over the country are on display, with many offered for sale.

Bob Travis Installed In Quiet Ceremonies

By STEVE KNOWLTON
DTH Staff Writer

With little pomp and less ceremony, Bob Travis quietly assumed the office of the President of the Study Body Thursday afternoon about 4:30.

About 15 persons, most of them student government officials and DTH staffers, were on hand for the swearing-in. Frank Hodges, Chief Justice of the Student Judiciary, stood behind Travis's desk with the new chief executive and asked him to raise his hand and repeat after him, "I solemnly swear to uphold..."

The new President announced that he would appoint Dave LeBarre as his Attorney General at Thursday's legislative meeting. "There has never been any question in my mind," Travis said, "about who would be my Attorney General. I feel most definitely that Mr. LeBarre is the most qualified man for this position."

At the time he was sworn in, Travis was planning to suggest two Supreme Court appointments to the legislature Thursday night. However, "for whatever their personal reasons," he said, "those two whom I had in mind are going to be unable to serve. Therefore I am going to hold off on my appointments until Thursday night," the first regular session of the 43rd Assembly.

Travis said it was of great importance to get these two positions filled, for the Court can not hear any cases with all five justices have been appointed.

Frank Hodges, Sherrie Lewis and John Surratt were appointed to the Court by past President Bob Powell.

Travis stressed in his first press conference of his administration that his office is going to be open at all times. "I fully expect to be in my office much more in the mornings. I also expect to be here every afternoon, including Saturday, and every night," he said.

"I imagine my grades will fall and I accept this," Travis admitted. "I plan to devote as much time as is humanly possible to the duties and responsibilities of my office."

The new President wants to make himself available "to anyone who wants to see me, either at my convenience or at theirs. I will see any student, any faculty member, any administrator, or any alumnus at any time, in any place," he said.

He also said he will make known "my whereabouts at any time of any day, so when anyone wants to get in touch with me, he will be able to do so."

In further solving what he calls "the big communications problem," Travis said he plans a bi-weekly breakfast with the legislature and "weekly, at least, unless something big comes up" press conferences.

He said he would be responsible for his actions completely. "Any time someone wants to criticize my office or to call my hand, I will be open to listen."

"There will be no one full P. A. (presidential aide)" he later said. "There will be no one man to have my ear, or one man who can use my name without my authority, or any person who can say, 'Bob Travis wants this or that.'"

"When I want to say something or make some statement, I'll do it myself," he said.

Interviewing Of Applicants Going Well

Interviews for orientation counselors are going "very well" with regard to both "quality and quantity" of applicants, according to Jay Schwartz, assistant to the orientation commission chairman.

Thus far, the commission, which is headed by Bill Long and Bill Bowman, has interviewed approximately 150 applicants for orientation counseling next Fall.

Interviews have been held since Tuesday and are expected to continue until next Tuesday, "or whenever we get enough people," Schwartz said.

Applicants are asked to fill out an information sheet outside Roland Parker Lounge in upstairs Graham Memorial, after which they are asked short questions concerning campus locations, academics, student government, extracurriculars and special situations.
