Russian Cosmonaut Killed

MOSCOW — Parachute straps of Soyuz 1 fouled Monday in landing preparations more than four miles aloft and the new spaceship plunged to earth, killing cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov, the government announced.

The first announced fatality in space flight of either the United States or the Soviet Union came after the Soyuz, the latest and presumably the most sophisticated of Russian spaceships, had completed more than 24 hours in orbit on its maiden voyage. It was the first Soviet space flight in 25 months.

The accident cast gloom over the nation and may delay the Soviet race to the moon with the United States as scientists try to find out what went wrong.

Unexplained was why 40-year-old Komarov, veteran of a previous space flight, failed to eject. All Soviet spacecraft are presumed to have built-in safety ejection devices. One possible explanation was that the tangled parachute straps kept the ejection system from working.

Expressing sorrow at the cosmonaut's death, James E. Webb called Washington for U. S. - Soviet cooperation in space. The administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said such cooperation might have prevented the space accident and the one last Jan. 27 in which three U. S. Apollo astronauts died in a spacecraft fire around.

Informed Washington sources also said Soviet scientists apparently made several attempts to bring the Soyuz to earth before it crashed.

A feeling that something had gone wrong swept Moscow after all Soviet news media fell silent following a Tass early morning announcement that the spaceship was functioning normally and Komarov was well. The government newspaper Zvestia delayed its evening edition without explanation.

Then 11 hours after that report, came a terse Tass bulletin and the news broke on Moscow radio and television.

U. S. Hits Mig Bases

SAIGON—The United States added Communist MIG bases to the list of targets in North Vietnam Monday with Air Force and Navy fighter bombers pounding two important fields in Hanoi's defense shield. The attacks amounted to a step that some believe could eventually bring Red China into the war.

MIG bases have been avoided up to now because Pentagon officials felt MIG interception of U.S. raids on the North were negligible. But there also has been a fear that by bombing these enemy air bases, the United States would force North Vietnamese MIGs to use bases in Communist China, from which they could operate more boldly and possibly draw U.S. planes across the border.

The strikes on the MIG bases fit into a pattern of increased activity on the entire war scene.

Greece Under Martial Law

ATHENS — Greece's Army dictators set up nationwide military courts Monday to try all crimes under martial law.

At the same time, King Constantine's continued silence underlined diplomatic reports that he disapproved of the weekend coup.

Political officers at some embassies here said they were convinced that the 26-year-old king had refused to sign the army takeover decree. Reports abroad reflected the same feeling. A source at one embassy in contact with Constantine said the king still is under heavy pressure to endorse the military seizure of power. There was no evidence the king was actually under detention, although a report that he was circulated abroad.

With the army takeover last Friday had come unlimited power of trial for all crimes including political offenses. The imposition of courts - martial, in itself a sign that the military regime looked forward to a long stay in power, included announcement that persons arrested Friday would not come under court-martial jurisdiction.

Bagging Permits Delayed

RALEIGH — It will be at least 10 days before the North Carolina Alcoholic Beverage Control Board can issue liquor brown-bagging permits.

State ABC Director Ray Brady said Monday in an interview:

"None of the permits or application forms has been printed. It's going to take a little longer than we thought before we can issue the licenses."

The longtime custom of taking liquor in paper bags into restaurants, clubs and other public places was outlawed last November by the state's high court. It said liquor could be consumed only in one's home.

Once the bill is ratified, persons can drink tax-paid liquor "anywhere a permit is not needed," Brady pointed out.

Senior One Of Four Finalists In College Queen Pageant

(Ballots on page six)
A UNC senior has been selected as one of four of North Carolina's State Finalists in the National College Queen Pageant.

Miss Carolyn Rudolph Hopper, sociology major from Washington D.C., will go to New York City for the Pageant in June.

Queen candidates were judged on their record of scholastic achievement, leadership in campus activities, community service work, and on the basis of essays which they wrote.

Carolyn, who is a member of Kappa Delta sorority, is in the Valkyries, is named on the Dean's List, has won the Outstanding Pledge Award from Kappa Delta, and is their representative to the Panhellenic Council. She has been chairman of the United Nations of the Campus YWCA and is active in the Social Committee and Fine Arts Festival Committee.

Other State Finalists from North Carolina are Miss

CAROLYN HOPPER
... Contestant

Katherine Gail Alexander, Gaston College, Miss Ruth Fleming, East Carolina College, and Miss Lynda Kathleen Weant, Catawba College. From them the North Carolina State Winner will be chosen by the votes of North Carolina citizens.

Westmoreland Hits 'Unpatriotic Acts'

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland revised a major speech at the last minute Monday to include the statement that his troops in Vietnam "are dismayed, as I am, by recent unpatriotic acts here at home."

As he spoke, about 100 anti-war demonstrators marched and chanted outside, clashing with police who halted their attempt to burn an effigy of the four-star general. Earlier this month, draft cards and an American flag were burned at another anti-war rally.

Addressing the annual luncheon of the Associated Press at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, Westmoreland declared: "Regrettably, I see signs of enemy success in that world arena which we cannot match on the battlefield.

"He does not understand that American democracy is founded on debate, and he sees every protest as evidence of crumbling morale and diminishing resolve. Thus, discouraged by repeated military defeats but encouraged by what he believes to be popular opposition to our effort in Vietnam, he is determined to continue his aggression from the North.

"This, inevitably, will cost lives — American, Vietnamese and those of our other brave allies."

In response to a question, Westmoreland said "I was delighted to learn of the two MIG bases bombed today. It is true that MIGs could take sanctuary in China, but they would be at a disadvantage operating from these bases rather than from Vietnam."

Voting will take place through May 6th, and there is no limit on the number of times one may vote. Students, faculty and staff may vote by mailing the ballots to the National College Queen Contest office or by placing a ballot in the designated boxes on campus (in Y-Court, Chase Cafeteria, and in Graham Memorial).

From the four N. C. finalists, one will be chosen by popular vote to represent the State in the National finals in New York City in June.

The state winner will receive a 10-day, all-expense paid trip to New York, will dine in the finest restaurants, and go "backstage" to meet the stars of Broadway shows.

It is up to the students and faculty on this campus to help decide which of the four young women shall represent our State in the National Finals. For the first time in the history of any major pageant, the selection of the State Finalist will be determined by the ballot boxes. Ballot boxes are now being set up and voting will take place throughout the State. Our votes will count in determining which of four young women will become the North Carolina College Queen."

Students, Workers Confer, Plan Actions

By WAYNE HURDER

GREENSBORO—Over 300 workers, students, professors, ministers, and labor organizers from Florida to New York City met here Sunday at the Caesar Cone School to talk about labor problems in North Carolina and how they can best be fought.

By the end of the afternoon the Strike Committee of the seven organized Cone Mill plants had decided to hold a strike vote at the plants next Sunday night which will probably end in a strike being called.

The students from UNC, UNC-G, Duke, Livingstone, Wake Forest, Guilford, and Davidson declined to set up a committee to co-ordinate activities on these campuses.

They plan to organize a march through downtown Greensboro next Sunday in conjunction with the strike voting at the Cone Mills.

The workers voted to set up a permanent committee, to be called the Textile Workers Conference, to "assist the locals in any way," according to Leonard State. The Conference would embrace all the textile workers, not just the Cone Mill workers.

The new Conference will start a monthly newsletter.

The professors there agreed to circulate a statement of support for the union, get signatures to it, and publish it in the Greensboro Daily News, the Charlotte Observer, and the Raleigh News & Observer.

Most of the workers present came from the Cone and the Chatham Mills within the state. The Chatham Mills just concluded a seven day strike.

A contingent of workers was there from the largest union local in the South, the Lowenstein Co. mill in Rock Hill, S. C. Another group came from a recently organized mill in Martinsville, Va.

About 30 students came down from New York City, "just to see what was going on," according to Wayne Parsons.

They represented the League for Industrial Development and the Social Services Union in New York.

Eugene Groves, president of the National Student Association, and two of his staffers came down from Washington, also "just to see what was going on," they said.

The Southern Student Organizing Committee had several representatives there.

Two organizers of migratory workers in Florida and one from the International Lady's Garment Workers' Union attended and offered their opinions on how to make a strike successful.

The conference started with services which were attended mostly by women and children while the men talked with each other and the students huddled together.

Most of the North Carolina workers questioned the visitors from Rock Hill and Martinsville about the differences that the union had made for them and the arbitration of grievances.

Miss Norman Gets Dorm Coed Award

A High Point coed was named the most outstanding dormitory woman here Sunday at a reception held in the Morehead Building in her honor.

Carole Jean Norman, a senior nursing major, was presented an engraved silver plate designating her "The Outstanding Dormitory Woman" at the Sunday ceremonies. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Norman of 1104 Greenway Dr., High Point.

Active in University life, Carole is president of her dorm this year and a member of the highest woman's honorary, the Order of the Valkyries. She is also a dean's list student and a member of Sigma Theta Tau, honorary nursing sorority.

She has been both president and vice president of her nursing school class, secretary of the Student Nurses Association, vice chairman of Women's Residence Council (and chairman during summer school), and a member of the house council.

After graduation in June and a summer at her High Point home, she will work at Emory University Hospital and eventually work toward her masters in nursing.

The annual award, presented by the Carolina Woman's Council, recognizes "the senior woman who has served her dormitory and the University with diligence, faithfulness and loyalty and has proven herself to be outstanding in character, personality, leadership and scholarship."

Four other outstanding dorm women were honored with a silver charm. They were Cynthia Gibson, 1415 High St., Asheboro; Susan Gretz, Box 1897, Hendersonville; Betsy Price, 607 Colonial Dr., High Point; and Judy Rodgers, Box 7, Franklinville.

Student Commits Suicide In Dorm

A sophomore honors student shot himself to death early Monday.

David Lee Bowman, 20, of Burlington, was found dead in 652 Craige, a single room, by janitor George Washington Baldwin.

The youth, who had a 3.7 grade average, was clutching a .38 caliber police revolver in his hand when he was found. He died from a single, self-inflicted bullet wound to the right temple, ruled Medical Examiner Dr. Hubert Patterson.

Dr. Patterson said a note left in the room called suicide "the easiest way of working it out. It was just too much of a struggle."

The medical examiner declined to elaborate on the specific causes of the suicide.

Bowman returned to Craige about 1:15 a.m. Monday, said Dean of Men William G. Long.

"He wrote several $1,000 checks to some friends after talking of an inheritance he recently came into.

"His friends tried to make him take the checks back, but he wouldn't do it."

Long said Bowman seemed in good spirits when he left his friends about 2 a.m.

The youth apparently returned to Chapel Hill Sunday after visiting his parents' home in Burlington, where he had been quite active in high school, Long said.

... Suicide Victim

Before coming to Carolina, Bowman's record showed, he had been editor of his high school paper, a member of National Honor Society, chairman of the School Spirit Committee and a member of the Speech and Debating Society.

At Carolina, however, he had apparently not been too active in extracurriculars. He was a member of Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman honorary society, though.

Bowman's death is the second suicide at Carolina this year. Greg Lister, a 19-year-old freshman from New Jersey, hung himself in his room in Morrison Residence Hall during exams.

THE ELIZABETH McCONNELL Beaumont Memorial Trophy, held here by Inter-Fraternity Council president Randy Myer, was presented Monday night to the Phi Delta Theta pledge class. The trophy will be given each year to the best fraternity pledge class in honor of the late Mrs. Beaumont for the "wonderful spirit and guidance she gave to the University and to her husband," Chief Arthur Beaumont.
