Budget Cut By General Assembly

The University's budget was cut very sharply this week in the General Assembly's Appropriations Committees.

Requests for capital improvement and new program funds were practically wiped out, although the University did receive most of what it asked for to continue existing programs.

Requests for new faculty positions were turned down for the most part, as were plans for student health services and a dormitory counseling program here.

The University had asked for for more than $14 million to begin new programs and expand old ones. It received less than $4 million.

For capital improvements, $33 million had been requested, only $9 million was granted.

Among the casualties in the budget cutting was a new dramatic arts building and an addition to the Ackland Art Center.

Among the capital improvements requests rejected were: air-conditioning of Carmichael Auditorium, air-conditioning and renovation of Memorial Hall and a new student health service building.

The Committee also rejected: —a $220,000 request for computer research services for the faculty.

—a $300,000 budget for the new Development of Information Science.

—a $51,000 budget for operation and development of the N. C. Botanical Garden.

The University got only half its $120,000 request for establishing a new office of Vice Chancellor.

Both Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson and Consolidated University President William Friday were disappointed with the budget cuts.

Sitterson said the new budget "would not enable us to enrich and extend the services as we would like to, and that we believe the State needs."

Friday expressed special disappointment in the cut in requested faculty positions and the rejection of student health services funds.

Tickets On Sale For 4th Dinner

Tickets for the fried chicken box picnic dinner at next Tuesday's community-wide Old Fashioned Fourth of July Celebration are on sale in various local business firms.

The afternoon and evening program — the 10th annual event for the benefit of the American Field Service's local participation in the international high school student exchange — will be staged on the University's Fetzer Field.

Ticket Sales Chairman Miss Claudia Cannady appealed for everybody planning to attend to purchase their tickets in advance, since the dinners must be ordered on Monday morning. She noted that several hundred persons were disappointed last year when they showed up to

Holiday

The Tar Heel will observe the July 4 holiday even though the University will not. Next edition will be Friday, July 7.

Housing Resolution Adopted By 4-2

A fair housing resolution was passed by the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen Monday night.

By a vote of 4-2, the resolution drafted two weeks ago by the Board was approved. The resolution was created after the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Fair Housing Council had presented a petition and a draft to the Board.

Alderman Gordon Kage and Robert Varley opposed the measure.

The resolution reads as follows:

The Town of Chapel Hill, both in its municipal administration and personnel policies, has at various and appropriate times in the past officially stated its opposition to racial discrimination in any form and its support of equal opportunity for all citizens regardless of race, religion or nationality.

find the picnic line sold out. Adult tickets are $1.50 and children through the age of 12, $1.25.

Admission to the celebration itself is free, and the entire community — especially University students and their guests and members of their families — are encouraged to attend, according to Roland Giduz, coordinator for the event. The program will be capped off with a free half-hour fireworks display, presented by the Kiwanis Club, at dusk.

The tickets are on sale at Graham Memorial and downtown at Ledbetter-Pickard, Robbins, in the Glen Lennox Pharmacy, Billy Arthur's in Eastgate, and White-Oaks Store in Carrboro. In addition they will be on sale from sidewalk tables manned by Y-Teens downtown and in Eastgate in the afternoons beginning Thursday. Group or mail ticket purchases may be arranged through telephoning 929-5292 during office hours.

The Virginians, one of Carolina's best-known vocal groups, will give a free concert Thursday, July 6 at 8 p.m. The performance will be held at Memorial Hall and is sponsored by Graham Memorial.

The group has given shows with Bob Hope, Gene Pitney and the Beach Boys and has performed at colleges and universities and on TV. They play a wide range of music, their first record, "A Long Walk Back to Paradise", being folk-rock in style.

The group's lead singer and guitarist is Bill Swofford, who also writes some of their material.

Danny Shepherd arranges the group's harmony, and Bob Hinkle plays guitar and mandolin. All three of the Virginians sing.

The Virginians pool their talents to attain an individual sound and extreme versatility.

SG Forms Summer Programs

The Summer School Student Government Board met in executive session Wednesday and formulated a program of activities for the coming weeks.

Student Body Vice President Jed Dietz and board member John Greenbacker are planning a Student Government reception for summer students. It is hoped that students from other campuses will attend and exchange ideas at the meeting.

Student Body President Bob Travis will return to Chapel Hill briefly today to report on the National Leadership Conference he has been attending in Bethel, Maine. Travis will discuss plans for judicial reform with Student Body Attorney General David LaBarre before traveling to Washington, D.C., to work with President Johnson's special committee studying the federal government's role in education.

Board member Don Wilson said he expected results soon from the university administration on their studies of the campus parking problem and a Student Government proposal to install washing machines in Aycock Hall. Another proposal to allow refrigerators in University residence hall rooms is also in the hands of the administration.

The board is also studying the possibility of reallocating Student funds to provide for an expanded summer social schedule.

Dietz said that he has sent letters to next fall's new Morehead Scholars and recipients of National Merit Scholarships about the workings of Student Government and programs for education reform which these students might be interested in.

SG Board Announced

A permanent summer school governing board was announced Wednesday by board member John Greenbacker.
