

Runners At VMI Relays

The running Tar Heels are at Lexington, Va., today to participate in the annual VMI Relays which features teams from all over the South and East.

The meet will be run on an indoor grass-tex-type track that measures 220 yards to the lap. Eliminations will be held for the sprints and hurdles in the afternoon with the final being held at night.

Carolina's strong points will be in the two-mile relay and in the shot put.

Kent Antry won a half-mile time trial Wednesday to qualify as the fourth member of the highly-talented two-mile relay team. The other legs will be run by Mike Williams, Kenny Helms, and Bill Bassett. The team will have an excellent chance of winning this event.

In the Shot, big John Jessup of New York has hopes of carrying away top honors. This talented young man is only a freshman.

The 440 and 880-yard relay teams will be composed of Charlie Gibson, Bill Kelly, Dennis Horn, and Bruce Mars. A four-mile relay and a sprint medley will also be represented by Carolina.

Rick Wilson will try to repeat some of his previous performances in the pole vault, while Gary Iverson and Fred Manson will continue their friendly battle to establish the top broadjumper on the team.

Truett Goodwin and Joe Lasich must endure the beating of 16 laps while running the two mile. Goodwin will have a good chance of placing well in this marathon event.

Carolina's freshman standout in the high jump, John Hilliard, will be accompanied by Danny Loman and Charlie Smith. Hilliard has already leaped 6'7" and is confident that he will go 6'10" this year. He could be a great one for Carolina. He recently quit football to devote his entire energy to track. Cam Beck and Dennis Suich will compete in the 80-yard. High hurdles, and then they will team-up with Dan Webb and Gary Iverson to run in the rare shuttle hurdle relay event. Head Coach Joe Hilton commented that the team is not as sharp as before Christmas.

OWEN DAVIS UNC Must Improve Outside Shooting

Thursday night's victory over Florida State made clearly evident one problem the Tar Heels have contended with and must cope with for the remainder of this season—a serious deficiency in outside shooting ability.

Carolina is not an outside shooting team, and a very good zone defense such as Tennessee's could cause Dean Smith many sleepless nights.

As the UNC coach noted about FSU, "They were giving us the easy 15-25 footers and shutting us out inside. It was a gamble, but it worked well for them. They can make it work, because they can rebound well. They're great jumpers."

Giving Carolina the outside shot is the thing to do these days. Charlie Scott is just about the only player who can hit consistently from outside 15-feet.

Larry Miller, who is noted for his heroics under the basket, was weak from outside in Thursday's game. He shot a weak six for 18 and many of those were uncontested from outside.

Carolina has to work the ball inside to score. Miller is the strong boy who muscles everybody out of the way for his buckets underneath. Scott is the flashy twister who twirls around inside competition.

Rusty Clark and Bill Bunting, the team's two big men, naturally have an advantage underneath. Joe Brown has proved his ability to work underneath as well as corner shot which is not quite accurate enough to break the zone.

As long as the Heels can penetrate the zone, they are very effective. But a tall team with a tough zone can shut out the inside shot—except Miller's phenomenal twisting layups which no defense can stop.

Again Tennessee must be considered. Although the Tar Heels don't play the Vols according to the regular season schedule, there is a good chance the two squads could clash in March.

Tennessee is favored to go on to the Mid-East Regionals and if so, are favored to win the tournament. If Carolina works its way through the ACC tourney and the Eastern Regionals, the result would be a head-on clash between the two teams.

The Vols have what is regarded as the best zone in the nation. Coach Ray Mears employs a 1-3-1 and has 7-ft. 260-pound Tom Boerwinkle at center and 6-9 forward Bobby Croft to rebound and guard against the inside shot—Carolina's most potent offensive weapon.

A team is almost forced to take the 15-footer against Tennessee, and if Carolina has to play them or a similar team, it could spell big trouble.

The best offense against a good zone, such as Tennessee's, is a combination of quick, accurate passing and hot outside shooting.

As noted, Carolina is weak from the outside, but is an excellent passing squad. Against a 1-3-1 zone, Miller would be in the corner. The 6-4 senior is off-and-on from outside but if he is on, the Heels could shoot passes.

Quick accurate passes would get the ball to Miller (in the corner) before the back man in the 1-3-1 could defend adequately.

Florida Outswims Dolphins, 48-65

By JOE SANDERS of the Daily Tar Heel Staff

The UNC Dolphins suffered early setbacks against Florida yesterday at Bowman Gray pool and could not make the comeback, dropping the meet 48-65.

Although the Dolphins won both the medley and freestyle relays, Florida took seven individual events, rolling up 35 points in first places alone.

The meet leaves the Dolphins with a 5-2 record and Florida with a perfect 4-0.

Due to the meet with Florida State at home this afternoon at 3, Coach Pat Earey would not release the Dolphins' times, but two of the UNC times are among the best in the nation and another establishes a new pool record.

Last week U. of Florida defeated Florida State U. by five points. While UNC and Florida were battling yesterday, Florida State was swimming N.C. State University.

UNC's national ranking is unaffected by losses to unranked teams (the other loss was to Maryland), but the Dolphins will have to face these same teams at the National Championships in March. There the rankings will be decided. Yesterday, UNC's lineup was too sparse to make up for the Gators' first places with the needed second and third places.

Last year the Dolphins suffered three dual-meet losses and defeated all three teams at the all-important national championships.

Wrestlers Face VPI In Blacksburg Today

Carolina's wrestling team meets Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Va., today. The match should be as tough as any the Tar Heels will face this season.

The undefeated Gobblers have roared through four opponents. They boast three unbeaten wrestlers in Mickey Jarrell (123), Tom Galligher (145) and Lonnie Galligher (160).

Carolina, 3-2-1, hasn't competed since it fell to N.C. State before the semester break. Fred Priestler, a 177 pounder, paces the team with a 4-1 record.
