

The Arb: Beauty

The scenic beauty of Chapel Hill is typified nowhere better than in the Arboretum. Even in winter, when the place is nearly deserted and quite bare, the trees and pathways provide a student with a stark beauty that seems quite unnatural after having seen the arb in warmer weather.

This is only one of the many moods of the Arb. But, especially in the winter, its light sand pathways invite the casual stroller to walk, to appreciate this new type of Arb. Later, when the trees are blooming, one feels a little intimidated by the couples lounging. But in the winter, the Arb is as much for strolling as anything.

Photos by Mike McGowan

LAST NIGHT OF OPEN INVITATION FRATERNITY RUSH

7:00-10:00

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL