

Grads Placed In Internship Programs

The National Intern Matching Program this week matched all of the members of the senior class at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine to 33 different U.S. hospitals for a year of internship training beginning on July 1.

The national matching program is a clearinghouse designed to help graduating medical students obtain internships at hospitals of their choices and to help hospitals obtain graduates of their choices.

Nine out of 10 (92 per cent) of the UNC medical students expecting to receive their M.D. degrees in June were selected for one of their first three choices of hospitals.

Sixty per cent of this year's graduates will go to hospitals of their first choice while another 33 per cent will be in hospitals selected as second or third choices.

Of 68 students in the senior class, 57 will serve internships in university hospitals, four in military hospitals and seven in other categories of hospitals.

Twenty-five students will train in "straight medicine," 14 will have internships in surgery, eight in pediatrics and three in pathology.

AFTER CAROLINA'S recent basketball victories, there must be a shortage of toilet paper in the dorms—all of it seems to be in the trees. A stray roll landed in the brim of Silent Sam's hat but Sam, as usual, remains stoic.

Cohen To Speak On Use Of LSD

A physician who has recently established a reputation as an outspoken authority on the hallucinatory drug LSD will visit Duke University here Monday.

A round of conferences and a public address have been scheduled for Dr. Sidney Cohen, chief of psychosomatic medicine at Wadsworth Veterans Hospital in Los Angeles.

Dr. Cohen won national attention when he debated Dr. Timothy Leary, a leader of the LSD cult, at the National Student Association Convention last August. The delegates gave Dr. Cohen a standing ovation.

Dr. Cohen is one of the more influential opponents of unsupervised use of the drug. He has advocated the experiments of LSD for neurological research under the direction of professional representatives in the field of medicine.

An address at 8:15 in Page Auditorium will include some of the arguments Cohen voiced at the NSA convention. The public will be admitted.

A voter registration campaign for Chapel Hill and Carboro will be organized at a Black Student Movement meeting tonight at 7:30 in 203 Alumni Hall.

John Edwards, Director of the N.C. Voter Education Project, will speak on organizing voters and voter registration.

The Black Student Movement will coordinate voter education efforts in this area and will also distribute campaign literature for Reginald Hawkins, candidate for North Carolina governor.

Hawkins will be sought by the movement for a future speaking engagement.

Science-Philosophy Seminar To Meet

CHAPEL HILL—Scientists and philosophers from throughout North Carolina will be meeting here for an unusual three-day conference March 22-24. The Chapel Hill Seminar in Science and Philosophy, co-sponsored by the Departments of Philosophy and Physics, will feature lectures by well-known scholars from many different disciplines.

"Quantum Mechanics" will be the topic at the Friday evening seminar, with speakers Hilary Putnam, Department of Philosophy, Harvard University, and Eugene Merzbacher, Department of Physics, University of North Carolina, sharing the presentation.

On Saturday morning the seminar will hear David Bakan, Department of Psychology, University of Chicago, and Michael Scriven, Department of Philosophy, University of California, Eugene Merzbacher, Department of Physics, University of California, Berkeley, discuss "Methodology of the Behavioral Sciences."

"The Nature of Scientific Explanation" will be Saturday's afternoon's topic, presented by Leonard K. Nash, Department of Chemistry,

Black Students Will Meet

Harvard University and Dudley Shapere, Department of Philosophy, University of Chicago. A social hour will follow at the Carolina Inn, and a general discussion of the papers will be held on Saturday evening.

"Space and Time" will be the final paper presented on Sunday morning by two physicists, Dieter Brill from Yale University, and Robert Cohen, from Boston University.

Programs for those who wish to attend are available at the Department of Philosophy, Caldwell Hall.

Theologian To Talk On New Morality

Noted theologian Stuart Barton Babbage will speak here at 8 p.m. Sunday, March 24, in Dey Hall.

His topic will be "A Critical Examination of the New Morality."

A graduate of the University of New Zealand, he won his masters degree there in 1936. He won his Ph.D. from the University of London and his Th.D. from the Australian College of Theology.

Currently president of the Conwell School of Theology, Philadelphia, Babbage has served as president of Melbourne College of Divinity, as dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Melbourne, as visiting professor of practical apologetics and church history at Columbia Theological Seminary, among others.

Francke Appointed German Professor

Walter Karl Francke, a lecturer at Indiana University, was appointed an assistant professor in the Department of Germanic Languages beginning Sept. 1, 1968, Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson announced Tuesday.

Francke, a native of Oost Sauburg, The Netherlands, received his B.A. degree in 1959 from Hope College, Michigan. During 1960-61 and 1964-65, he attended Freiburg University in Germany. He received his M.A. from Indiana University and his Ph.D. is pending there this year.

Before serving as a lecturer at Indiana University, he was a teaching assistant there. He is a member of Delta Phi Alpha.

Met Tenor Sullivan

To Perform Here

Internationally known Metropolitan Opera tenor Brian Sullivan will close the 1967-68 Chapel Hill Concert Series at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 26, in Memorial Hall.

Long established in the world of grand opera, Sullivan is known for his outstanding voice, musicianship, and superior grasp of various musical styles. His versatility sets him apart from other tenors who "specialize" in certain types of operatic roles.

He has traveled extensively nationwide, reaching vast and varied audiences.
