Meal Ticket Sales Must Be Increased

Want to avoid higher food prices? Meal tickets offered by the University Food Services are designed to help you do just that.

The tickets, offered in books of $5 and $10, yield a discount of ten per cent. The $5 book sells for $4.50 and the $10 book goes for $9.

The tickets "may be the answer to the problem of meeting rising food costs," said George Prillaman, Director of the food services.

"The USDA estimates raw food costs will rise five per cent during 1968. We must increase our volume if we are to keep food costs down," he said.

The volume in our cafeterias must increase at least ten per cent if the ticket program is to help us," said Prillaman.

Prillaman said that sales of the meal tickets have been picking up lately, but have not yet reached the point that had been expected.

He expects to extend the ticket program to include all edibles. At present the policy excludes candy and cigarettes from ticket purchases.

"A student should be able to use the tickets for anything he wants to eat," Prillaman said.

"Our goal has always been to serve quality food in a pleasant atmosphere at the most reasonable price in the area," said Prillaman. We hope the new food ticket program will help us to continue doing this," he added.

Tickets are on sale at the Lenoir Hall Cigar shop and office, the Pine Room and Chase Cafeteria.

They are non-expiring and may be used at Lenoir, Chase, the Pine Room and Monogram Coub.

SL Judicial Committee Approves 2 Court Bills

By RICK GRAY
of The Daily Tar Heel Staff
The Judicial Committee of Student Legislature approved two bills on the Honor Courts Wednesday.

The first bill calls for a constitutional amendment to establish graduate and coed courts. The other re-states, clarifies and changes the penalties of men's and women's courts.

Both bills passed without opposition.

The resolution calling for the constitutional amendment, according to Men's Attorney General Randy Myer who testified for the bill, was asked for because of "the different philosophy of the Men's and Women's court."

Myer continued that he did not mean that one court was more severe than the other, but that drinking, for example, might be regarded differently by the two courts.

In behalf of the graduate court proposal, Myer said that there are "fifty-one graduate departments without their own courts."

The bill provides for "the judicial power of the Student Body . . . (to) be vested in one Supreme Court of the Student Body and the inferior courts. The inferior courts shall be an Honor Court, a Men's court, a Women's Court, a Law School Court, a Medical School Court, a Dental School Court, a Graduate Court, a Men's Residence Council Court, an Interfraternity Council Court, a Panhellenic Court and the various women's House Councils."

Phone Petitions To Be Pushed By Ehringhaus

Petitions asking for individual room phones to be installed in Ehringhaus Dormitory are being pushed by dormitory senators in the next few days.

According to Bill Courtney, Lieutenant-Governor of Ehringhaus, 250 to 350 residents have signed the petitions this past week. However, dorm officials want at least 400 signatures to achieve a better majority.

The phone petitions have not been emphasized as much as they should be, Courtney feels, because of dormitory elections to be held today. After the business of elections is finished, the Ehringhaus senators will concentrate mainly on winding up the petitions, he said.

The purpose of the petitions is to find out if the extra cost involved ($9.00 per semester) will decrease the interest in the individual room phones. Currently, each group of 120 residents share two telephones.

Courtney pointed out that room telephones can be installed easily, because all of the new high-rise dorms are equipped with the initial facilities.

Russ Perry, supervisor of buildings and grounds stated, "The University Physical Plant is certainly in favor of the room phones. Communication is a real problem in the high-rise dormitories."

The bill also provides for the enactment of legislation by the Student Legislature concerning the election of student representatives to Faculty Administration judicial bodies.

The set-up of the court system will be, if passed, an honor court to try academic

WRC Vote Approves Closing Hour Change

By LOUISE JENNINGS
of The Daily Tar Heel Staff

WRC voted Monday night to extend closing hours in all women's residences next semester.

Under the new ruling all women except first semester freshmen will be allowed to stay out until 1 a.m. Sundays through Thursdays and 2 a.m. Fridays.

First semester freshmen will be allowed to stay out until 12:00 midnight Sundays through Thursdays and 1 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays. They will also be allowed the three late permissions they now have.

Under the present rule first semester freshmen are allowed to stay out until 11 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, until 12:00 midnight Fridays and Saturdays and 1 a.m. Saturdays.

All other coeds may stay out until 12:00 midnight Sundays through Thursdays and until 1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays. Seniors are allowed to sign out until 2 a.m. on the weekends.

Freshmen will be required to sign out if they plan to stay out after 11 p.m. They will not be required to sign out if they wish to stay out after 8 p.m. as they do under the present rules.

No more campus-wide late permission will be given by the Office of the Dean of Women except for "extenuating circumstances."

WRC also voted to extend a campus-wide late permission Friday until 2 a.m. They also voted tentatively to extend closing hours Saturday until 2 a.m. depending on the basketball schedule.

A ruling was passed to allow parental permission for coeds traveling after UNC closing hours to include regular weekends and overnights. The present permission only covers vacations.

The permission will also be incorporated in one parental permission form rather than the two forms used now.

A motion was defeated to have women's dorms close at 11:00 the first Monday of each month for house meetings.

The WRC also changed the Rule Book so it will include a separate section for penalties. They will be grouped together and will no longer be scattered throughout the book.

New penalties such as those connected with the new women's apartment rule will also be included in the section.

The final copy of the new rule book will be presented to the Dean of Women Friday for approval.

Lenoir Cafeteria To Be Remodelled

Lenoir Hall will soon have a new look inside.

The cafeteria will close on May 31 according to George Prillaman, director of food services, "We should be able to start the remodeling in early June and should be open again in mid-September," he said.

The program calls for a total renovation of the kitchen and dining rooms. Color will be stressed in the dining room decor. "The new cafeteria lines will have a canopy and hanging lights over them," Prillaman said. A waist-high divider will separate the lines from the dining area.

The walls will be covered with fabric. The ceiling will remain the same height but will have new lighting fixtures. The dining room furniture is to be refinished in a colorful manner. "The new improvements on Lenoir will cost $276,000," Prillaman said. "The money for the remodeling is part of our past profits since 1951. There will be no increase in food prices to pay for the improvements."

The project was originally started three or four years ago, but the University has had trouble getting the plans drawn.

The architect for the project, G. Melton Small, designed Chase.

"Lenoir's closing will not affect business too much," Prillaman said. "Our business is about half in the summer. Chase and the Pine Room should handle the overflow without any trouble."

AG Candidates May Debate Here April 9

The Carolina Forum will hold a debate between the two candidates for Attorney General of North Carolina on the topic "Resolved: That the Attorney General of North Carolina should take an active role in state affairs."

Senator Robert Morgan, who is opposing incumbent Attorney General Wade Burton, has accepted the forum's invitation to debate the issue on April 9, at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Champ Mitchell, chairman of the committee for the debate, said that the topic was chosen because the attorney generalship is an important office which receives little attention.

"North Carolina has one of the highest rates of bank robberies and murders," said Mitchell. "The office of attorney is becoming more and more important. He is the people's representative."

Mitchell said the committee chose to have a debate because it allows the best presentation of the issues.

Two Coeds Receive WHC Probation

Women's Honor Council had two cases at their session Thursday, March 14.

A junior was charged with falsifying a sign-out slip, being in Chapel Hill and vicinity after closing hours, and unladylike conduct.

She was prosecuted under both the Honor Code and the Campus code. The coed pled guilty and was given definite probation for two semesters.

Another girl was tried under the Campus Code for unladylike conduct and failure to sign an information sheet with the Dean of Women.

Her plea was not guilty but was found guilty and given definite probation until August 31, 1968.

Sanford Predicts LBJ Win Warns Federal System Almost Outdated

By WAYNE HURDER
of The Daily Tar Heel Staff

"History will repeat itself, the incumbent U.S. president will be re-elected," former North Carolina governor Terry Sanford predicted here Tuesday night in the crowded Senate chambers of the Dialectic-Philanthropic Societies.

The candidacies of McCarthy and Robert Kennedy will have the effect of winging President Lyndon Johnson more toward the views of McCarthy, but he will still get renominated, and re-elected, Sanford said in a question and answer period.

"I think Kennedy and McCarthy will make a good showing and then come out for the ticket," after Johnson wins the nomination, he said.

Rocky To Affirm Candidacy Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will announce his candidacy to the GOP presidential nomination Thursday to provide Republicans with an alternative to the Vietnam War stand taken by Richard M. Nixon.

The 59-year-old governor, who had long claimed to have given up White House ambitions, will announce his "immediate and future political plans" at 2 p.m. (EST) news conference at the New York Hilton Hotel.

Rockefeller is expected to announce that he will allow his name to go on the ballot for the May 28 Oregon primary, although he will skip the May 14 Nebraska primary because that state is "Nixon country." Even if his name is on the ballot in Nebraska, he will not campaign there.

Rockefeller versus Nixon recalled their last confrontation at the 1960 Republican National Convention when Nixon bumped Rockefeller in the race for the presidential nomination. Domestic and international issues were not so clear cut and emotionally involved then, and Rockefeller lacked the endorsement of former President Eisenhower.

The New York governor believes he has a better chance against Nixon now because of the former vice president's position on measures to be taken in meeting civil disorders and for a military victory in Vietnam, according to aides. Rockefeller will take a stand for "accommodation" both at home and abroad.

Accommodation in Vietnam might mean a general agreement by the nations involved in the area to neutralization of a tier of focal Southeast Asian countries. Rockefeller believes Russia would back this sort of settlement because it would help contain the geopolitical ambitions of expansionist Red China, it was reported.

Whatever misgivings he had last year, Rockefeller has shown real enthusiasm of late for the coming political battle which he enters running second to Nixon in polls among Republicans. Polls of voters from both parties have often shown him more popular than Nixon or President Johnson, reflecting support from liberal Democrats and in-beyond the advantages of it."

Sanford, in his speech on "The Future of North Carolina Politics," warned that "the federal system is almost outdated" because the balance between the states and the U.S. government is slipping in favor of the central government.

"More and more mayors, state legislators, and governors are looking to the federal government to solve their problems, Sanford said. These officials have decided that it is easier to get things from the federal government than from their local governments, he said.

The two main blows to the states came as a result of the adoption of the U.S. Constitution and the Depression of the 1930's, Sanford explained.

The Constitution took away from the states many of the rights they formerly enjoyed, Sanford explained.

During the depression the states weren't able to cope with the economic problems and turned to the federal government to do so, Sanford said.

This has led to encroachment by the federal government into areas more easily and effectively controlled by the state, according to Sanford.

The New Deal was able to shore up the crumbling economy, Sanford said, but the New Deal failed in its ultimate aim of doing away with suffering and unemployment, he said.

"We've lost sight of the fact that we shouldn't be concerned with programs, but with people," Sanford said.

Sanford said that during his term in office he had tried to fight the "program" approach and to replace it with the "people" approach.

The States are important because they could stir action and initiate new programs, Sanford explained.

States should strengthen themselves in four ways, he said.

One, improve the quality of state government personnel.

Two, reform state constitutions in some of the states;

Three, find new sources of

LBJ Asks For Export Increase

WASHINGTON—President Johnson, repeating his call for a tax increase, asked Congress Wednesday to earmark $500 million to help increase U.S. exports and strengthen the U.S. dollar.

The President's request to the House and Senate came as Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield promised that Johnson would "cooperate" with Congress in cutting spending as its price for approving his requested 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

Johnson asked that Congress allocate $500 million of the Export-Import bank's existing $13.5 billion authority as a special fund to help finance a board program for selling U.S. goods overseas.

Election Battles Hoped By Hanoi

LONDON—Reliable Communist sources said Tuesday North Vietnam apparently is banking on political battling in the presidential campaign to intensify anti-Vietnam war sentiment in the United States and has ruled out any peace talks in the near future.

East European diplomatic sources with known contacts in Hanoi said the hardliners in the regime of President Ho Chi Minh, who have recently influenced policy decisions, are now in undisputed control and reportedly more self-assured than ever.

The sources indicated the North Vietnamese feel they can lose nothing by holding out.

Shoup Offers Peace Proposal

WASHINGTON—Retired Gen. David M. Shoup, the former commandant of U.S. Marines, Wednesday offered a peace proposal to end a Vietnam War which he said was not worth "one one-thousandth" of what it would cost to win.

Shoup's plan offered in testimonies before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, involved two pledges—one by the United States and South Vietnam to halt all offensive operations "the minute the gavel falls" at the start of peace negotiations, and the second by the United States to begin a withdrawal as soon as it became clear the North Vietnamese were negotiating in good faith and with a chance for success.

De Gaulle Calls For Gold Standard

PARIS—President Charles de Gaulle said Wednesday that efforts to safeguard the U.S. dollar and British pound as the world's key currencies were doomed. He demanded they be replaced by a full gold standard as the cornerstone of world trade.

De Gaulle, in one of his strongest warnings yet, said a continued monetary system based on the American and British currencies would plunge the world into a grave economic crisis.

Despite the French leader's statement, the dollar and pound surged to new strength on European markets and the price of gold continued to drop in free market trading.

But financial experts said the full repercussion of De Gaulle's new broadside would not be felt on markets until Thursday. They voiced fears it might touch off a new stampede to unload dollars and pounds and grab up gold in markets still jittery after last week's international gold and dollar crisis.
