

Challenge USC Thursday

Netmen Blank Blue Devils

By ART CHANSKY
of The Daily Tar Heel Staff

Duke's Blue Devils took it on the chin from another Carolina team on Monday.

The UNC netters performed this whitewash job on the hapless Dukes 6-0 in a rain-abridged match, to run their record to 16-1 and 5-0 in ACC competition.

The Tar Heels will close out the regular season on Thursday when they host the undefeated South Carolina Gamecocks.

A steady downpour fell throughout the singles matches and officials felt the courts had become too treacherous to continue into the doubles competition.

Carolina's Gene Hamilton defeated Duke's highly-touted Chuck Saacke, 7-5, 6-3, in first singles.

Bob Davis had to go three sets but seemed to have the match under control all the way in beating the Blue Devils' Bruce Mahler, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1.

Sophomore Lee Langstroth had comparatively little difficulty in downing Duke's Bill Finger, 6-1, 6-2.

Billy Trott was the last to finish but ended up with a soaking wet victory over Charlie Meek, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2.

Carolina's other two outstanding sophomores, Fred Rawlings and Joe Dorn, each brought home decisive victories.

Rawlings, who is from Hartmann a 6-2, 6-0 pasting while Dorn, an Atlanta native, soundly defeated the Blue Devils' Don Bern, 6-2, 6-4.

The doubles matches were then washed out, and it's probably a good thing for the Blue Devils, for the score might have very well ended at 9-0.

South Carolina, however, promises to provide stiffer competition on Thursday.

The Gamecocks are also undefeated in ACC play this season and according to Coach Skakle are "our toughest opponents in the ACC since I've been coaching here" which goes back for more than ten years.

The feature match-up will be the had-to-head clash between Carolina's Hamilton and USC's Bobby Heald.

Hamilton held in three grueling sets last year to win the ACC Singles Championships.

MIKE WILLIAMS

Cindermen Defend Title In WTVD Meet Saturday

Led by sensational Mike Williams, the North Carolina Tar Heels will try to defend their championship Saturday in the annual WTVD Intercollegiate Track and Field meet at Wallace Wade Stadium in Durham.

Coach Joe Hilton's Tar Heels captured first place in the WTVD event last season.

Showing its best form of the entire outdoor season.

Williams tuned up for the meet last Saturday by turning in two excellent performances in the Carolina Relays staged on Feizer Field here.

He won the 880-yard run and anchored the Tar Heels' two mile relay team to a stirring victory. Other team members on that relay were Kent Autry, Bill Basset, and Ken Helms.

Only other Tar Heel winner in the Carolina Relays was Gary Iverson, who beat out Duke's Jeff Howser and scored an impressive triumph in the 440-yard hurdles.

Williams gained fame last season running the mile. He won both the mile and the 880 in last year's Atlantic Coast Conference Outdoor Championships and was voted the outstanding individual in that meet.

But Hilton has had his ace concentrating mainly on the 880 this season. "I believe Mike has his best chance nationally in the half-mile," Hilton says.

Carolina will be one of 17 schools competing in the WTVD meet.

Torre Hopes For Luck Change

He's Had His Share Of Bad In Past Year

By DAVID M. MOFFITT
UPI Sports Writer

ATLANTA (UPI)—Joe Torre figures his luck's got to change. "I've certainly had my share of the bad this past year," the burly Atlanta catcher said as he moped around his apartment waiting for permission from the doctors to return to the Braves lineup.

—Pulled a shoulder muscle right after spring training began;

—Broke a finger during an exhibition game here just before the season opened;

In the past 10 months, the four-straight-time National League All-Star catcher:

—Was stepped on by Clay Dalrymple of the Phillies and suffered an ankle injury that curtailed his play during the second half of the 1967 season and required an operation;

—Pulled a shoulder muscle right after spring training began;

—And, received in multiple facial fractures when hit under the left eye by a Chuck Hartenstein fast ball in the April 18 Braves-Cubs game.

It's that last injury that has Torre out of the lineup. It's been two weeks and doctors say it could be that much longer. He doesn't come off the disabled list until May 7.

Until the injury jinx cropped up last June, Torre appeared well on his way to being one of the greatest hitting catchers in baseball history.

He had a tremendous season in 1966—batting .315 with 36 home runs and 101 runs batted in—and going into last season had a .300 average for six seasons in the majors. In 1964, he hit .321 with 108 runs batted in.

Joe got off to his best start ever last season and was batting .317 when he injured his ankle in Philadelphia on June 14. He never fully recovered and wound up at .277—worst of his career.

"I really felt great going into spring training," Torre said. "I figured I was ready for a big year."

But he's never gotten started. He's been in only five games so far and only three as a starter.

Torre has had a star label since the day he started playing professional baseball. Younger brother of former Brave Frank Torre, he spent one season in the minors hitting .344 at Eau Claire. He made it to the majors before he was 21—placing second in the balloting for National League rookie of the year in 1961.

Now only 27, the 220-pound Braves strongboy still figures to have a brilliant career—if he can stay healthy.

In the meantime, Joe's got a more immediate problem. There he is, cooped up in the apartment with the beautiful blonde he married in January and his mouth is so sore it hurts everytime he tries to kiss her.
