

US Court Upholds Clay Conviction

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Monday upheld the conviction of former heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay for "wilfully refusing to report for and submit to induction into the armed forces of the United States."

"There has been no administrative process which Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, has not sought within the Selective Service System its local and appeal boards, the presidential appeal board and finally the federal courts, in an unsuccessful attempt to evade and escape from military service of his country," wrote Circuit Judge J.P. Coleman in the majority opinion.

"Being entirely satisfied that he has been fairly accorded due process of law, and without discrimination, we affirm his conviction."

Clay had refused to take the symbolic step forward at his induction in Houston, saying his religion as a Black Muslim made him unable to take up military service.

A jury convicted Clay in Houston April 28, 1967 of refusing to be inducted. On four different occasions, Clay was classified 1-A by his local board, twice by two separate appeal boards in Kentucky and Texas and once by the national board.

"In every instance the vote of the boards was unanimous," Coleman said.

The Houston jury convicted Clay for refusing to submit to induction. He was sentenced to five years imprisonment and given a fine of $10,000.

Deacons Challenge UNC In Doubleheader Today

By OWEN DAVIS
LTH Asst. Sports Editor

Carolina sends its top two pitchers, lefty David Lemonds and righthander Tom Buskey, against Wake Forest in a doubleheader here this afternoon in hopes of snapping a four-game losing streak.

Game time is 1:30 at the UNC diamond.

The Tar Heels have only a distant chance to win the Atlantic Coast Conference title after four conference defeats in five games last week. They trial league-leader State (10-3) by four games.

UNC is tied with South Carolina for fourth place in the ACC race with a 5-6 record. The Heels are 14-11 overall. Wake Forest is in the conference cellar with a 4-10 mark. The Deacs are 9-19 for the season.

Lemonds, who will pitch the first game, leads Carolina with a 5-1 won-loss record and a 1.86 earned run average. He has struck out 64 in just 48 1-3 innings, another team high.

"We could have won every game we played if we had hit. All our good shots went right up the middle to center field and were caught."

That Carolina got only seven hits in one 21 inning stretch is "typical of any ball club," said Rabb. "There are two or three periods in every year in which the whole team can't hit."

"But in college you just can't have low spots in the attack. I puts too much pressure on the pitching staff."

The Heels will have to "win all our remaining conference games to even come close to first place," said the veteran field manager. "That means we'll have to beat Maryland twice up there this weekend, and that will be tough."

Gary Iverson: Hurdler

He's One Of The Best In ACC

By RICK BREWER
DTH Sports Writer

For a guy who only began running the 440 intermediate hurdles this year, Gary Iverson is having quite a season.

In fact, a guy who has been running hurdles for years would be proud of Iverson's record this season.

The senior tri-captain of the Carolina track team, long regarded as one of the top broad jumpers in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has developed into one of the top hurdlers around.

And among some circles, Gary is considered the top hurdler in the area.

Iverson's top accomplishment of the season came last Saturday in the WTVD state championship meet in Durham.

He circled the track there in 52.2 seconds, a new Carolina school record. The time also eclipsed the ACC mark of 52.6 set by Duke's Jeff Howser, but did not go into the record book since the meet was not a direct conference conflict.

Until recently Howser was acclaimed as easily the best hurdler in the loop. The emergence of Iverson changes that though.

It seems that every week, the Iverson-Howser dual gets more publicity than any other event.

"The only reason I started running the hurdles was that Coach Hilton asked me to try it," explained Gary. "We didn't have a hurdler last year, so we needed one badly."

"I liked the idea because I wanted to get in a race with a gun-start. I felt that the timing needed in that kind of race would help my broad jumping."

However, Gary's broad jumping has actually suffered from his hurdling. He thinks the running has taken the spring out of his legs.

Gary rates speed and overall coordination as the chief assets of an outstanding hurdler. He spends most of his practice time trying to improve his speed.

"Early in the week I'll run pretty hard, maybe jog three or four miles a day," Iverson said in explaining his practice routine.

"Tuesday and Wednesday I usually run several 220s very hard. Later in the week, I slack off-running few 220s and doing a lot of exercises."

Surprisingly, Iverson rarely works out on the hurdles.

"Maybe once a week, I'll work on the hurdles," Gary commented. "The way I see it, if you don't hme the hurdles down hat by now, you'll neve be a hurdler."

"I never run the whole 440 hurdle race in practice. If I did that I'd be too tired to run in the meet."

Gary's goal as the ACC championships come up this weekend is to break 52 seconds in the hurdles.

"I think that either Jeff (Howser) or I could go under 52.0 if we push each other like we have in the past couple of meets," said Gary.

If that happens, it will be just another chapter in the amazing story of the broad jumper turned hurdler.

Despite the Tar Heels' recent disappointments, Coach Walter Rabb considers his team still in the pennant chase.

"We're in there until the last mathematical chance is eliminated," he said. "We didn't have the good fortune to hit the ball between the defense last week and didn't move the ball."

Duke Wins WTVD Track Meet: UNC Runners Finish Second

Duke's Blue Devils won the team title Saturday in the WTVD state track championships at Wallace Wade Stadium in Durham.

The Dukes scored 59 points to outdistance defending champion North Carolina by seven points.

Vince Matthews of Johnson C. Smith and Duke's Ed Stenberg were the outstanding individuals as each won two events.

Matthews won the 220 in 21.0 and the 440 in 46.2. Stenberg captured the mile in 4:14.5 and took the two-mile in a time of 9:14.7.

Carolina's Gary Iverson won the 440 intermediate hurdles in a time of 52.2. In the 120 high hurdles, it was Duke's Jeff Howser coming out victorious in 13.9.

The UNC 440 yard relay team of Iverson, Cam Beck, Paul Cowie, and Terry Sellars was a winner in a time of 42.4. The Tar Heel mile relay squad finished third in its race.

Carolina's big point collection came in the 880 where the Heels took the top three places. Mike Williams won the race in a time of 1:53.3, and was followed across the finish line by teammates Ken Autry and Clay Lynch.

Live below your means.

If you'd like to get around the high cost of living, we have a suggestion: Cut down on the high cost of getting around. And buy a Volkswagen. It's only $1,699* That's around $1200 less than the average amount paid for a new car today. (Leave it in the bank. More's coming.) A VW saves you hundreds of dollars on upkeep over the years. It takes pints, not quarts, of oil. Not one iota of antifreeze. And it gets about 27 miles to the gallon. The average car thirstily devils that it only gets 14. So the more you drive, the more you save. And chances are, you'll drive it for years and years. (Since we never change the style, a VW never goes out of style.) Of course, a VW's not much to look at. So a lot of people buy a big flashy car just to save face. Try putting that in the bank.
