Water Usage Rises

By EVIE STEVENSON
DTH Staff Writer

Water consumption for Tuesday, Oct. 8 was 3.14 million gallons, an increase of .561 million gallons compared to Monday's consumption of 2.579 million gallons.

J.A. Branch, of the University business office, warned students and townspeople that the need for water conservation is just as important now as before.

"For some reason, people are not being as careful with water usage as they have been," Branch stressed the importance of using discretion when turning on the faucet.

Branch said the water level at University Lake was 93 inches below the spillway on Wednesday. He added that the pipeline is expected to be completed by October 24.

"Our portion of construction is on schedule. Durham is being most cooperative in completing their part of the pipeline. The city of Durham is treating the construction as an emergency situation. We appreciate their cooperation very much."

Branch said the 12-inch section of pipe will be completed by Thursday evening except for one portion at the New Hope Creek.

The pipe being used is made of cement and asbestos which is durable and strong when buried underground. This type pipe will not support itself over the creek bed, however.

The University has ordered several 50 foot lengths of steel pipe to bridge the creek. This steel pipe is expected to arrive on October 19.

Thursday, workmen will begin to drive steel pilings into the creek banks in preparation for the ordered steel pipe.

Except for this section across New Hope Creek, workmen will have completed 2.7 miles of 12-inch pipe by Thursday.

Construction is also progressing on the eight-inch sections of pipe which will connect the 12-inch section with University Lake. A half mile has been completed, with approximately two miles left.

Bus Schedule

The revised south campus bus schedule is as follows:

- 7:20-5:30, buses leave Chase and Wilson Library every five minutes,
- 12:00-5:30, buses leave for downtown every 10 and 25 minutes after each hour.

BACKSTAGE AT Playmaker's Theatre is empty now as rehearsals for The Playmaker's first production, "The Most Happy Fella" have just begun. The play will be presented October 25, 26 and 27.

Carrboro Board Dismayed At Rise In Water Costs

By SCOTT GOODFELLOW
DTH Associate Editor

The Carrboro Board of Commissioners reacted with total dismay to the announcement by the University water plant that bulk water rates for Carrboro are going up 40 per cent.

The Board, meeting Tuesday night, was told by City Manager Bill Britt that the new rate of 35 cents per thousand gallons would be effective from October 1.

The University, which owns the water facilities, sells the water in bulk to the town of Carrboro, which in turn resells it to Carrboro residents. The price hike will have to be passed on to the residents, although the Board decided to postpone that decision until later.

Britt noted that the costs to the University to process and distribute the water were only 23 cents per thousand gallons. "I do not feel it is right for the University to make a profit off our water," he said.

The matter was previously approved by the Board of Trustees, and a rate increase was levied on Chapel Hill residents starting July 1.

Chapel Hill's increase, however, amounted to only a 20 per cent jump. The difference comes, according to University water plant director Grey Culbreth, because the town of Carrboro is considered a bulk user of water and gets a lower price. Culbreth insisted the price hike was to allow sufficient capital to develop to improve facilities.

Meanwhile, the Board decided to send a delegation composed of Britt and other members of the Carrboro Public Works Committee to see University officials, and then, if necessary, to talk to the Trustees in an effort to have the rate hike withdrawn.

"We are a community of hourly workers," noted Britt, "and a 40 per cent jump in water fees would mean quite a lot."

The action comes, coincidentally, in the midst of the worst drought the area has faced in 30 years. A pipeline from Durham is expected to ease the situation at its completion in about two weeks, and two million gallons of Durham's water will be available to the area.

Both Britt and Culbreth indicated that Durham will charge the University in the neighborhood of 15 cents per thousand gallons for the water.

Two Remain Seriously Hurt Following Tuesday Accident

By J.D. WILKINSON
DTH Staff Writer

One of four UNC students injured in a traffic accident Tuesday night remained in critical condition Wednesday afternoon and another was still in the intensive care ward with severe injuries.

The injured students are Kevin Henke, Katherine Bowman, David Olney, and Lois Miller.

Henke, who was apparently driving the car at the time of the accident, had a "poor" day Wednesday according to North Carolina Memorial Hospital officials and remained in critical condition in the intensive care ward.

Miss Bowman, who was riding in the front of the automobile with Henke, also remained in the intensive care ward. Officials said she had a "fair" day.

Miss Miller remained in the hospital in satisfactory condition, and Olney was transferred to the student infirmary, apparently in good condition.

The accident occurred at about 11:30 Tuesday night on the Pittsboro Road between Morgan's Creek and the King William Restaurant.

One of the first persons to arrive at the scene of the accident was Dr. Mark Hilberman, whose home is located very near the scene.

Dr. Hilberman said that a number of other persons stopped at the scene and helped to pull the students from the demolished automobile.

He said that Olney and Miss Miller did not seem to be seriously injured but that Miss Miller was hysterical.

Henke was bleeding profusely, according to Dr. Hilberman, and was suffocating from blood running into his lungs. He said that the injured student's vital functions ceased to operate at one point before he reached the hospital and he had to be resuscitated.

No sign of the accident remained Wednesday afternoon except for tire marks and two strips of chrome and a broken signpost still lying in the ditch by the side of the road.

The tire marks indicated that the automobile apparently failed to negotiate the sharp curve, crossed the opposite lane, crashed through two reflector signs, and came to rest in the ditch.

The reflector signs were facing in the opposite direction from which the automobile was coming. There were no reflectors facing in the other direction.

The posts had been replaced this morning, and the wrecked car had been removed.

Racial Dialogue

Bond Heads List Of Blacks

By TOM GOODING
DTH Staff Writer

A presidential candidate, a vice-presidential nominee, a South African exile, and an authority on the Black Muslims will all be at UNC next week.

Black Revolt-Impact on You, a racial dialogue sponsored by the YMCA, will begin Sunday, Oct. 13 with the film "Black Like Me," and will be highlighted by speeches during the rest of the week by Julian Bond, Eldridge Cleaver, Gladstone Nlabati, and Eric Lincoln.

The movie "Black Like Me" is based on the book by John Howard Griffin. It depicts the true story of a white man who changed the pigment of his skin to find out how it feels to be a Negro in a white man's world.

The movie will be shown at 5:00 and 7:00 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13 in Carroll Hall. There will be a discussion period following the second showing in which all students are invited to take part.

Julian Bond will speak on "The Political History of Racism" at 8:00 p.m. Monday, Oct. 14 in Memorial Hall.

Bond recently received nation-wide attention at the Democratic National Convention by making a scolding speech for Eugene McCarthy, for his responsibility for the seating of the Georgia Loyalist delegation and by being nominated for vice-president as the 'wave of the future'.

Bond is presently a member of the Georgia House of Representatives. He was elected to the Georgia House twice, in 1965 and again in 1966, to a seat created under new apportionment. He was prevented from taking his seat by members of the House who opposed his dovish stand on Vietnam.

After being elected a third time by an 80 percent majority, Bond presented his case to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled unanimously that the Georgia House must seat him.

There will be a public reception for Bond at Parker Dorm Monday between 5:00 and 6:30 p.m.

Following Bond's speech there will be a question and answer period and at 9:00 p.m. there will be a discussion session.

Gladstone Nlabati, exiled from South Africa since 1964, will speak on the relationship between the Africa Revolt and the American Negro Revolt at 8:00 p.m. in Gerrard Hall on Tuesday Oct. 15.

Nlabati has personally suffered from the extreme racism prevalent in South Africa, a sentiment he feels is very similar to the racism existing in American society today.

Nlabati was arrested in South Africa in September 1963 under the Suppression of Communism act for his involvement in the African National Congress of South Africa.

Believing the plight of the black people in South Africa and in the American South to be one, Nlabati came to America to work toward furthering the cause of blacks in America.

He is now writing a doctoral thesis on the ethical jurisdiction for violent revolution in South Africa. Eldridge Cleaver, Presidential candidate of the Peace and Freedom Party, Minister of Information of the Black Panther Party and managing editor of Ramparts magazine will speak at 8:00 p.m. in Hill Hall on Saturday Oct. 19.

Cleaver has long been a spokesman of militant Black America. His autobiography, "Soul On Ice," which he wrote during a 9-year prison sentence describes the violent youth encountered by many black youths and in the book he tries to give an insight into why he lived this kind of life and how he came to see it pointlessly.

Eric Lincoln, an authority on the Black Muslims, will speak at 8:00 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation Sunday Oct. 20.

One of the basic appeals of the Black Muslims, according to Lincoln, is that they represent and speak for many of the basic forces in urban Negro life.

Lincoln spent this summer in Africa where he lectured, traveled and observed the racial patterns of Africa and their relation to the American Negro's situation.

Syracuse Dean To Speak To Dissident Democrats

By J.D. WILKINSON
DTH Staff Writer

Stephen K. Bailey, Dean of the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University, will speak at four major North Carolina universities today and tomorrow. His topic will be "Why Dissident Democrats Should Support Humphrey." His appearances at the four universities are being jointly sponsored by Professors for Humphrey and Young Citizens for Humphrey.

The four schools which Bailey will visit are North Carolina State University, Duke University, the University of North Carolina, and Wake Forest University.

Dr. Bailey will speak at UNC tomorrow at 4:00 p.m. in Peabody auditorium.

Bailey will speak today at North Carolina State University. Dr. Bailey is the author of a number of books, including "The Condition of our National Political Parties, Schoolmen and Politics, Congress At Work, and Ethics and Politicians."

He was a Rhodes Scholar and received his Ph.D. from Harvard University.

Bailey also served as mayor of Middletown, Connecticut, from 1952 to 1954. He is currently a consultant to the Bureau of the Budget and is co-chairman of New York State's Citizens for Humphrey-Muskie.

Y Publishes High School Guide

By TOM GOODING
DTH Staff Writer

The Scholarship Information Center of the YM-YWCA is publishing a Guide To Southern High Schools to be sent to the director of admissions of colleges all over the nation.

The guide concerns integrated high schools in the South who desire a college admission representative to visit their schools.

The basic purpose of the project is to overcome the "information gap" that presently exists in many parts of the South. Basic information on scholarships, financial assistance and loans is not readily available to Negro high school students--many of whom are thinking about college and university study. Others have not considered this a viable alternative partly because of lack of information and encouragement.

Edith Rankin YWCA chairman for the Scholarship Information Center, said "Until lately students have had to work on their own; we want the colleges to shoulder their part of the burden. Right now we're trying to increase interest among the students since our work is done by volunteers, and we need more students to help."

According to Norman Gustavson, director of the YMCA, "The project began when several Northern schools requested our assistance in helping them recruit black students."

"With the guide we hope to help schools who are interested to get better use out of their recruiting programs in the South," Gustavson said.

Final publication date for the guide is set for Friday with copies being sent to over 500 colleges across the country.

In addition to the guide sent to the colleges, the committee also distributes a booklet entitled College Opportunities for Southern Negro Students. This booklet is sent to guidance counselors and students in black and underprivileged areas.

"Black high schools have been neglected and poverty ridden due to neglect by both the state and local school boards. We are trying to compensate for the neglect that the black schools have received all these years," Gustavson said.

"When we started, we found many scholarships for the underprivileged that were going unused year after year because students just didn't know about them. We had a black student request information about scholarships, and we found out that his counselor didn't even know that they existed. So we have compiled this information in an attempt to inform these students of the opportunities that exist," Gustavson continued.

"Much college recruiting is done on an informal basis, by alumni. Most of this isn't available to the black student since they had absolutely no contact with the white schools. Their only informal and often only formal contact has been with the black schools," said Gustavson.

The office of the Scholarship Information Center receives mail daily requesting scholarship information and assistance.

Miss Rankin said, "We have people writing us constantly saying that we're their last hope. We received a letter the other day from a guidance counselor thanking us and telling us that many of her students have gotten assistance through the information in our booklet."

Many Northern schools are now accepting black students on an assigned risk program. "Temple, Vassar, UCLA and Berkeley now have programs where they accept black students which normally wouldn't be accepted because they feel that the black students have academic potential but have received none of the advantages of a proper education," Gustavson said.

The Scholarship Information Center has received orders for books from all over the world. (Continued on page 5)

SG Positions Open

Students interested in being considered for recommendation to fill vacancies on several University committees are asked to contact Carl Younger in the Student Government offices between 3:00 and 5:00 p.m. Thursday and Friday either in person or by calling 933-1364.

Those interested should have in mind some idea of a particular area and some reasons why they are suited to serve in that area.

Committees on which vacancies exist are:

- Building and Grounds Committee
 - Traffic and Safety Committee, which considers the parking problem
 - Committee on Established Speakers
 - Admissions Director Search Committee to be established in the near future
- Students interested in serving on these committees should be fully prepared to hold open meetings at which all members of the student body who have an interest in decisions of the committee will have a chance to be heard.
