UNC Groups Help Boycott

By ERICA MEYER
DTH Staff Writer

The University and Community Committee of the Southern Students Organizing Committee is helping the Black Solidarity Committee with its Durham boycott.

"UNC has been offered a chance by the blacks to stop oppression in Durham," said Bruce Wells, temporary chairman of the University and Community Committee.

"White students have finally been given a chance to show sympathetic support," Wells said in reporting the Committee's need for monitors at Northgate Shopping Center this weekend.

Since handing out leaflets is not allowed at Northgate, people will be spoken to before they enter the stores.

Students will approach shoppers and ask if they know about the boycott. They will be briefed and requested not to shop at Northgate or in downtown Durham.

A concentrated effort is planned for Friday, Oct. 11 and Saturday, Oct. 12.

Rides will be available from Y-Court Friday from 5:30 on. There will also be rides home at midnight when Northgate closes.

On Saturday there will be rides available both ways beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Anyone or any group wishing to help is welcome. Those wanting more information or those who could provide rides should call Bruce Wells at 942-5919 any evening.

The Black Solidarity Committee for Community Improvement, which is sponsoring the boycott, has distributed a list of stores affected.

They are: "Northgate Shopping Center, Belk Leggett, Freedman's Department Store, Lerner's, Baldwin's, Stewart's, Thom McAnn, Model Laundry, Marilyn Shoes, Roscoe Griffin, Kress, My Shop, Ray-Browning, Big Star, Laura's, Zales Jewelry, The Fashion, the Book Exchange, The Royal Clothing and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company (including Fanta Orange, Fanta Grape, Tab, Sprite, Fresca and Coke)."

On the list is the following explanation, "We are not buying from the stores listed... because we believe as members of the Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce they can aid us in resolving the problems of the black community."

"Ours is a protest for equal justice in the following areas: a) Education, b) Housing, c) Equal justice, d) more representation on governing boards, e) Welfare, f) Better employment and g) the establishment of a human relation commission."

With the exception of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company's Chapel Hill outlets, the boycott is concentrated on Durham. It has been going on for several months and is reported as "very effective."

Anyone interested in trying out for varsity basketball should see Coach Dean Smith at the basketball office in Carmichael Auditorium by Monday.

Crossroads Cafe Plans Second Program Of Year

The Crossroads Cafe, a coffeehouse sponsored by the YMCA, will be open tonight from 9-12 p.m. for its second program of the year.

The entertainment usually consists of student folk singers and audience participation. The Cafe is held in the lobby of the "Y" building over card tables and candlelight.

Groups that have played or are scheduled to play include Small Mainstreet, Jock and Maggie, the Jugs, Cindy and Randy, Jan Davidson, Diane Gooch, and the Foggy Bottom Banjos.

In addition to this schedule, the Cafe plans several other programs for the fall.

On October 14-15, in coordination with the Racial Dialogue Symposium, the coffee house will sponsor discussion groups after the speeches of Julian Bond and Gladstone Ntlatati.

On October 25, the Cafe will be held in Scott Residence College, in an effort to reach more students in the dormitories. A similar coffeehouse is planned for Morrison Residence College in November.

This month the Cafe will sponsor literary discussion of modern themes such as love and death. Campus writers from the growing creative writing staff will be available for the discussion.

A series of one-act plays will be presented in mid-November at the Cafe. Greg Elliot, a UNC graduate student, plans to direct them.

Among the plays under consideration are "The Zoo Story," by Edward Albee; "Hello Out There," by William Saroyan; and "The Dutchman" and "The Slave" by Leroi Jones.

Auditions for these will be held next Wednesday and Thursday Oct. 16-17, from 7-8 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation. Those trying out should prepare a short speech from any play.

The first Crossroads Cafe of the year was held two weeks ago, and elicited an "enthusiastic" response, according to YMCA officials. Anyone interested in working with the Crossroads Cafe should contact Dianne Campbell in 318 Spencer, Jim Wann, 215A Bim St., Carrboro, 929-1466, or at the YMCA.

Urinals Shut Down As Sitterson Cans Rumor

UF Game Is Still Slated

By EVIE STEVENSON
DTH Staff Writer

Urinals on South campus were turned off at 12:30 p.m. yesterday in an effort to conserve water.

Janitors are in charge of flushing each urinal twice a day, according to Walter Hamilton of the University physical plant.

Approximately 500 urinals, major sources of water consumption, were turned off in Morrison, Hinton James, Craig and Ehringhaus.

Hamilton said urinals will be turned off on a campus-wide basis as soon as possible.

Water consumption for Wednesday was 2.72 million gallons, according to J.A. Branch of the University business office. The level of University Lake Thursday was 94 inches below the spillway.

Chancellor Sitterson denied recent rumors that the University will close. "We have not yet reached the stage where we would even consider shutting down the University," said Sitterson.

The rumor circulating that next Saturday's game with Florida would be moved there were denied by acting athletic director Walter Rabb.

Sitterson appealed to the faculty and administration to "help in any and every way that you can devise" to conserve water.

"Despite the very helpful efforts of the last week," added Sitterson, "our water consumption in the University and the town is still at a level making it absolutely essential, for the health and welfare of the entire community, that we take every possible step..."

Construction on the pipeline is ahead of schedule, according to J.A. Branch of the University business office. Crews are working seven days a week to complete the pipe by October 24.

Even after October 24, when Chapel Hill will be receiving 2 million gallons a day from Durham, severe restrictions will continue to be asked of Chapel Hill residents and students in the University.

Branch urged continued water conservation practices. Drought conditions will not be relieved until Chapel Hill receives 10 inches of rainfall.

Water Wastage At Morrison Dorm
... Following Rupture Of Pipeline

Morrison Dorm Flooded As Water Pipe Breaks

By BOBBY NOWELL
DTH Staff Writer

A ruptured hot water pipe inundated a suite and social lounge on the ninth floor of Morrison Dorm Thursday afternoon and literally caused a waterfall as water cascaded down the balconies of each floor and flooded the ground-floor lobby.

Walter Hamilton of the UNC Physical Plant said that approximately 100 to 125 gallons of water were wasted before the leak was repaired.

Plumbers, going about their task of cutting off urinals on the floor, discovered the leak at around one o'clock. The pipe was inside the shower stall in the 901-902 suite.

No estimate of damage to lounge furniture was immediately available.

Hamilton said the apparent cause of the broken pipe was a weakly-soldered joint between the main pipe, which is one inch in diameter, and the line running to the shower spout, a pipe one-half inch in diameter.

He explained that the connection had been weakened when expansion joints had to be installed last year. The main water lines from the ground floor to the fifth floor are two inches in diameter, but from the fifth to the tenth they are only one inch in diameter.

A technician said there have been minor ruptures in both Morrison and Hinton James in the brief history of the campus' tallest structures, but "this is the biggest, and at the highest level that such has occurred."

He added that an error in the original planning by the contractor, which did not supply expansion joints above the fifth floors of the two dorms, was responsible for most of the past trouble.

Bus Schedule

The revised south campus bus schedule is as follows:

- 7:20-5:30, buses leave Chase and Wilson Library every five minutes,
- 12:00-5:30, buses leave for downtown every 10 and 25 minutes after each hour.

Bailey Calls For HHH Support

By J. D. WILKINSON
DTH Staff Writer

Dean Stephen K. Bailey of the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University called on dissident Democrats Thursday to get involved in the 1968 Presidential race by supporting Hubert Humphrey.

The call was the subject of a lecture Thursday afternoon in Peabody Hall.

Dean Bailey was introduced as "a man in the great tradition of political scientists... a scholar, practitioner, and administrator... (who) has achieved distinction in all of these areas."

In his opening remarks, Dr. Bailey referred to the final game of the World Series which had temporarily delayed his lecture.

"I have nothing to say in reference to the World Series," he commented, "except that I take comfort in the fact that Detroit was down three games to one at one point."

The remark drew applause and laughter from the crowd and set the stage for the lecture and discussion to follow.

Dean Bailey began with a general plea to the younger generation, asking that they not underestimate the influence which they have had on Democratic politics this year.

He cited President Johnson's decision not to seek re-election, the influence of the younger Democrats in abolishing the unit rule at the Democratic National convention and in the seating of challenge delegations. He said that the latter accomplishment had helped to strengthen Democratic principles.

Calling on former McCarthy, Kennedy and McGovern forces to throw their strength behind Vice-President Humphrey, Bailey said, "Dissidents cannot sit out the next few weeks and then come roaring back after the election and seize control of the party." He cited the failure of the liberal wing of the Republican Party to win control in 1968 after refusing to back Barry Goldwater in 1964.

Dr. Bailey outlined the three basic issues of the election in the form of questions.

"Which candidate," he asked, "on the basis of past acts is most likely to develop a stance amendable to negotiation... on the war and other foreign policy problems?"

"Which candidate can adapt a stance from which to properly attack the nation's domestic problems?"

"Which party and candidate had asserted the necessity of liberty and justice as prerequisites for law and order?"

Dean Bailey called Presidential candidate George Wallace "a racist, bigot, and oppressor of the poor" and his running-mate, Curtis Lemay "a dangerous hawk."

He criticized Richard Nixon for "hiding behind the Paris peace talks," for urging postponement of the nuclear proliferation treaty and "a renewal of the arms race," and for "increasing the fears of the nation in a fearful time by choosing for his running-mate a man who would not be qualified to succeed him" if such an eventuality arose.

Dr. Bailey said Humphrey has been in the forefront of the battle against domestic problems, that he has personally led the fight for a nuclear non-proliferation treaty, and that he has taken a clear stand on Vietnam, committing himself to ending that war.

Commenting on the "law and order" issue, Dr. Bailey said that while some diddident Democrats may be able to wait four years "the people of the Student Body President Ken Day has asked the student body for extra "frugality" in conserving water during the current water crisis.

Frugality Requested

Students have been asked to cut down on the length of showers, to take sponge baths, and to improvise where possible in saving water.

Day said, "I think the response to the call for water conservation has been good, not only from the student body, but from the rest of the Chapel Hill community as well."

ghettoes cannot wait four years for the civil justice which has been denied them."

He said that Humphrey is the only candidate who has substantial support among both blacks and whites.

He called Humphrey and Muskie "men of honor" and described them as "courageous, compassionate... men who understand the world around them and have not, like Nixon, clawed their way up the political ladder."

"Students and others have been willing to undergo imposition to conserve water. This has been indicated by the decreasing water usage over the past several days."

Spencer Hall coeds and other women students are voluntarily limiting hair-dos. In addition, the Chapel Hill Chamber of Commerce and the Women's Residence Council are running a water-saving contest with awards. These awards are being given to dormitories that use the least amount of water per student.
