

The Daily Tar Heel

76 Years Of Editorial Freedom

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1968

Football Analysis
DTH Editor Wayne Hurder analyzes last week's football loss to Virginia. See his column on page 5.

Intramural Managers

There will be a meeting of all intramural managers tonight at 7:30 in 304 Woollen Gym.

Veterans Ceremony Protested

The annual Veterans Day observance was held in Polk Place Tuesday with sign-carrying members of anti-war protest groups quietly looking on.

About 30 members of the Southern Students Organizing Committee (SSOC) and the Young Socialist Alliance (YSA) marched in quietly during the event which featured members of the UNC ROTC units in a flag lowering ceremony.

The observance was attended by commanders of both ROTC units along with Consolidated University President William Friday, Chancellor Carlyle Sitterson, Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey and Dean of Men James O. Cansler.

The demonstration was organized by former UNC students now working with SSOC, Scott Bradley and George Vlasits.

Tim Knowlton, a five-year veteran of the Marine Corps formerly enrolled in the ROTC program at UNC, was among the demonstrators. As chaplain, Dean Cansler opened the ceremony with a prayer. A speech praising the courage of veterans was followed by the sounding of retreat, during which the flag was lowered.

After a 21-gun salute, taps was sounded ending the ceremony.

DTH Staff Photo by Tom Schnabel

Part Of Group Protesting Veterans Day Observance

... Protest Group Was Outnumbered By Navy and Air Force ROTC Units

Draws Large Y Court Crowd

GI Protests Vietnam War

By J. D. WILKINSON
DTH Staff Writer

A soldier from Fort Bragg working at an anti-war information table in Y-Court Monday attracted a crowd of about 150 persons as he discussed his views and helped to distribute anti-war literature.

The soldier, Pvt. Keith Jones, was working with members of the United Anti-War Mobilization Front, (UAWMF) a coalition group consisting of representatives from the Southern Student Organizing Committee, Students for a Democratic Society, the Young Socialist Alliance, and other organizations. Charles Mann, information director for the UAWMF, said Jones came to UNC "to express his feeling against the war in Vietnam." Jones was also scheduled to visit Duke, North Carolina College, Shaw, Chapel Hill High School, and Duke High School Monday afternoon.

Mann said they were visiting the various campuses "to ask people to come to Fort Bragg on the next two weekends to hand out pamphlets and talk to soldiers who are against the war."

"After we reach these people (the soldiers)," Mann continued, "we plan to have them lead a demonstration, probably in Chapel Hill." Jones said there are about a thousand soldiers at Fort Bragg who are actively working in connection with anti-war programs.

The UAWMF is currently working with three of these men, according to Mann.

They are Pfc. Walter Kos, who is being court-martialed for his activities, Pvt. Joseph Miles, who has been restricted to the base and "harassed" according to Jones and Mann, and Pvt. Jones, who is expecting to be transferred out of the area soon and who says he is being watched by agents of the Criminal Investigation Division.

The table in Y Court Monday was manned by Jones, (Continued on page 6)

New Exchange Program Planned

Will Work In Addition To Toronto Program

The YM-YWCA is currently in the process of organizing a new exchange program similar to the Toronto Exchange.

"We feel that when over 200 people apply for the Toronto Exchange and only about 30 are accepted counting the alternates, there is a need for another program," said Rodger Dicks, chairman of the committee working on the formation of a new program. The new program will not be in competition with the Toronto Exchange but will be working in addition to it. Dicks said, "We hope to be able to work with the Toronto Exchange once we get out program started."

The committee is currently considering going to another school in Canada, a school in Mexico, a school in Latin America, a school in South America or another school in the U.S.

"We are thinking about such alternatives as going as far as Peru or as near as a school in the western part of this country," said Dicks.

In order to plan the activities of the program, there will be a meeting for all interested students in Garrard Hall tonight at 7:30.

"The idea of the meeting will be to discuss any and all arrangements for the program including finances and places to go," Dicks said.

"We hope to develop a core of interested students. Then we could work similar to the way the racial dialogue was started," said Dicks.

"Right now we plan to take about as many students as the Toronto Exchange but it could get larger if the interest is there."

"The program will also depend on where we go and the financial support we get. We are currently getting funds from various industries and foundations across the state," Dicks said.

The idea for another program came up when it was discovered that many of the

(Continued on page 6)

Students May Ask Courses In Dorms

Major changes in the procedure for pre-registering courses to be taught in residence colleges during the Spring semester were announced today by Dr. Harry Smith, Special Assistant to the Chancellor for Residence College Development.

Under the new method, students will be able to request the hour and location they want for any of the 33 "R" or residence college courses. This is significantly different from last semester when students were arbitrarily placed in residence college sections regardless of the dorm they were living in.

"Now, nobody will be put in a class they don't want to be in," Smith asserted.

To pre-register for an "R" section a student must get a pink permission slip from his college master, indicating that he lives in the dorm the course will be taught in; the student should then give this form to his advisor who will place him in the desired section. Smith emphasized that the "R" courses offered next semester are scheduled in "prime" time: mostly in mid or late afternoon hours.

In addition to the traditional residence college courses (Mod. Civ., etc.

English), a few new courses are slated: Sociology 52R; a discussion section of Classics 34; and, for the first time, Philosophy 99R.

Philosophy 99R, Ideals and Society, is an accredited three hour elective exclusively for Scott College residents. It will be taught by Scott's three faculty fellows.

Dr. Smith's office described it as "dealing with problems and ideas that are of interest concern to students and the three faculty fellows, and drawing upon some of the great writings in the Western tradition..."

"Now, nobody will be put in a class they don't want to be in," Smith asserted.

To pre-register for an "R" section a student must get a pink permission slip from his college master, indicating that he lives in the dorm the course will be taught in; the student should then give this form to his advisor who will place him in the desired section. Smith emphasized that the "R" courses offered next semester are scheduled in "prime" time: mostly in mid or late afternoon hours.

In addition to the traditional residence college courses (Mod. Civ., etc.

Semester Referendum Today

Students will voice their opinions in a campus-wide referendum today concerning whether or not "The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill should change the academic calendar so that final exams will be held before Christmas, thus ending the semester before the Christmas holidays."

The resolution is the result of a bill passed by Student Legislature Nov. 7 to enact this provision on the Nov. 12 campus election ballot. According to Student Body Vice President Charlie Mercer, the student bodies of the other branches of the Consolidated University at Charlotte, Raleigh, and Greensboro have already expressed their support for such a proposal.

"This campus has not yet taken a position," said Mercer. "When we do, the Consolidated University Student Council (CUSC) can begin work."

In order for the change to be effected, it will have to be approved on all four campuses. The referendum will be an expression to the Consolidated University administration that students are or are not in favor of this.

"The primary goal is to see if students do want some type of semester ending before Christmas," concluded Mercer. "We are not trying to set up a specific system yet."

Beat Dook Ticket Sales

Tickets are now on sale for the Carolina Union Series productions during Duke Weekend, Nov. 22 and 23, featuring Judy Collins on Friday night and the Association on Saturday evening.

Student tickets for Judy Collins are $1.25 and for the Association are $2.00.

They will be on sale at the G.M. Information Desk Monday through Thursday, 9:00 A.M. to 10:00 P.M.; Friday, 9 a.m. until midnight; and on Saturday from 9 to noon. Tickets may be bought from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the days of the concerts, and after 6:45 p.m. tickets may be purchased at the door.

Thirteen Tapped By Valkyries

All-Night Tapping Performed By Old Members

Eleven undergraduates and two honoraries were tapped into Valkyries Tuesday night in a ceremony that ended with a pre-dawn induction into the highest women's honorary on campus.

The all-night tapping was done by present members of Valkyries. Masked and clad in black robes, they entered women's dorms and sororities after closing hours announced only by the traditional striking of a brass gong.

New members were chosen on the basis of service, leadership, scholarship and character. Citations were read acknowledging the qualities and merits of the following initiates:

Miss Barbara Barrett: One who has exemplified both the academic and leadership ideals of the university and of the Valkyries.

Through her diligent work in the Panhellenic Council as both Vice-President and Rush Counselor Advisor, she has shown both ingenuity and dedication to the improvement of the Greek system.

Her excellent scholastic performance in her chosen field of psychology further displays her goal to achieve great ideals.

Miss Doritha Ann Bishop: One who has served her dormitory, residence college, sorority and University with unselfish dedication for three years. She has provided leadership as Chairman of the East Cobb House Council and as President of East Cobb.

She has been loyal to Morehead Residence College from its earliest stages and has given of her self to her sorority as a charter member, as pledge trainer, and as a member of the executive board. She is dedicated to her chosen field of psychology.

Miss Jeanne Blair: One who has endeavored diligently within her chosen field of the Fine Arts. She has performed consistently with the Playmakers for three years and has achieved several leading roles.

At the same time she utilizes her schedule to fulfill in a thorough manner her duties to her sorority and to her scholarship.

Mrs. Sue Bennett Cobb: One who has proven herself to be, not only an excellent student by maintaining a high average in her chosen field of Physical Therapy, but also an excellent leader by working to improve the program of the Women's Athletic Association since her Freshman year.

She was chosen Most Outstanding Dormitory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon Monday generally endorsed the Johnson administration's strategy for seeking peace in Vietnam and warned against expecting any drastic foreign policy changes when he takes over the White House.

With President Johnson standing by his side after the one and one-half hour White House briefing, Nixon also said he would support administration policy during the next two months in the tense Middle East and toward improving relations with the Soviet Union.

Nixon emphasized continuity of government during the transition period between this administration and the next, and expressed hope that cooperation between himself and President Johnson could bring "some significant progress towards peace" before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

This transition period, Nixon said, is different from ones in the past because "this nation at this time in its foreign policy has several matters—Vietnam of course at the top of the list—which cannot wait decision and cannot afford a gap of two months in which no action occurs."

"If however, the action is to occur, if progress is to be made on matters like Vietnam, the current possible crisis in Middle East, relations between the United States and the Soviet Union with regard to certain outstanding matters—if progress is to be made in any of these fields, it can be only made if the parties on the other side realize that the current administration is setting forth policies that will be carried forward by the next administration," he said.

Nixon said that during the meeting with Johnson and his top advisers, "I gave assurance in each instance to the secretary of state and, of course, to the President, that they could speak not just for this administration but for the nation, and that meant the next administration as well."

Nixon said he thought his talks with the President were "helpful" from the standpoint of seeing to it that in these next 60 days—this very critical period—rather than having the lapse of the lame duck presidency in effect, we might have very significant action and progress towards peace."

Nixon's remarks appeared to be a warning to both North and South Vietnam they would not benefit from a delay of peace talks until his administration takes over.

During the meeting with Johnson, Nixon was briefed on foreign policy matters by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, CIA Director Richard Helms, Presidential advisor Walt Rostow, and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The discussions involved Vietnam, the Middle East, Europe and NATO.

Johnson described the meetings as a "very thorough briefing" and hinted at further such meetings. "I realize that the American people have a right to the government that efficiently functions at all times."

Johnson then said that his meeting was a "very pleasant and cooperative meeting as I expect the meetings to be in the days ahead."

The President and Mrs. Johnson and the President-elect and Mrs. Nixon met for lunch in the family dining room at the White House from 1:20 p.m. to 2:48 p.m. when the two men went to the President's oval office.

They were in the office briefly when they went to the adjoining cabinet room where they met for an hour and 28 minute session with the various administration advisers. At 4:19 p.m. Nixon and Johnson returned to the oval office where they remained until they met with reporters

PE, Intramurals Underway Again

By BOBBY NOWELL
DTH Staff Writer

Class instruction programs in Physical Education and intramural athletics are to be resumed for the second half of the fall semester as a result of the Chapel Hill community's recovery from a two-month drought, Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson announced Monday.

In a memorandum released to University deans, directors, and department heads, Sitterson related: "Careful analyses of water supply and water consumption rates to date indicate that, on a trial basis, the University can now resume its programs which had to be suspended about six weeks ago when our water shortage reached the point of crisis."

The Chapel Hill Town Board of Aldermen were to meet Monday night to consider removing a recently passed ordinance which prohibited the washing of cars, sprinkling of lawns, and operation of water-cooled air conditioners.

The Chancellor's statement emphasized, however, that the water shortage is not over and "we must all continue to use all reasonable means to conserve water."

Dr. Claiborne Jones, assistant to the Chancellor, said the community has had five and one quarter inches of rain since mid-October, when the worst effects of the drought were being felt.

"University Lake is still way down," he said, "but we have reached some 'breathing space' and the Chancellor concluded it wasn't fair to keep the normal programs of the University cut back any longer."

"If things go sour on this trial plan, we can only go back to the previous situation, but we hope this little breathing spell here will tide us over until we can get out of the danger zone," he added. "It looks as if we'll have a good chance of making it."

Dr. Jones noted that although November is normally a dry month, the cooler weather would require students to bathe less frequently. Also Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations are coming up so "the calendar seems to be on our side," according to Dr. Jones.

Both the Chancellor and Dr. Jones praised the student body for "a marvelous effort in

(Continued on page 6)

Scranton Plans Speech At UNC On Thursday

Former Governor William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania will speak in Memorial Hall Thursday at 8 p.m., it was announced today by Carolina Forum Chairman Scott Goodfellow.

Gov. Scranton, rumored as president-elect Nixon's choice a Secretary of State, will be in Chapel Hill for a meeting of the Carnegie Commission on the Future of Higher Education.

Among those attending the Commission meeting will be Dr. David Riesman, Dr. Clark Kerr Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey, University of Illinois President David Henry and Notre Dame President the Reverend Theodore Hesburgh.

Last week, however, Scranton discounted the rumors that he would be named Secretary of State. He said he had no intentions to return public life. He noted that he would aid Nixon in any way the President-elect wished before his inauguration (Jan. 20) but he would not accept any permanent position.

According to Goodfellow, the format for the program will be a brief talk by Scranton concerning a recent fact finding trip to Europe he made for Nixon and its political ramifications, followed by an extended question-answer session.

The 1964 runner-up for the Republican Presidential nomination has been described as a "liberal on civil rights, a conservative on fiscal policy and an internationalist in foreign affairs." During World War II he served as a Lieutenant in the Army in such areas as North Africa, the Middle East and in the China-Burma theatre.

In 1959 Scranton joined the personal staff of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as special assistant in charge of briefing the press on State Department policy. He was seated in the 87th Congresses in 1961 and elected Governor of Pennsylvania the following election.

Time magazine recently commented that Scranton is "one of the U.S.'s ablest executives and the Republican Party's brightest lights."

Nixon Endorses Johnson's Vietnam Peace Strategy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon Monday generally endorsed the Johnson administration's strategy for seeking peace in Vietnam and warned against expecting any drastic foreign policy changes when he takes over the White House.

With President Johnson standing by his side after the one and one-half hour White House briefing, Nixon also said he would support administration policy during the next two months in the tense Middle East and toward improving relations with the Soviet Union.

Nixon emphasized continuity of government during the transition period between this administration and the next, and expressed hope that cooperation between himself and President Johnson could bring "some significant progress towards peace" before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

This transition period, Nixon said, is different from ones in the past because "this nation at this time in its foreign policy has several matters—Vietnam of course at the top of the list—which cannot wait decision and cannot afford a gap of two months in which no action occurs."

"If however, the action is to occur, if progress is to be made on matters like Vietnam, the current possible crisis in Middle East, relations between the United States and the Soviet Union with regard to certain outstanding matters—if progress is to be made in any of these fields, it can be only made if the parties on the other side realize that the current administration is setting forth policies that will be carried forward by the next administration," he said.

Nixon said that during the meeting with Johnson and his top advisers, "I gave assurance in each instance to the secretary of state and, of course, to the President, that they could speak not just for this administration but for the nation, and that meant the next administration as well."

Nixon said he thought his talks with the President were "helpful" from the standpoint of seeing to it that in these next 60 days—this very

critical period—rather than having the lapse of the lame duck presidency in effect, we might have very significant action and progress towards peace."

Nixon's remarks appeared to be a warning to both North and South Vietnam they would not benefit from a delay of peace talks until his administration takes over.

During the meeting with Johnson, Nixon was briefed on foreign policy matters by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, CIA Director Richard Helms, Presidential advisor Walt Rostow, and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The discussions involved Vietnam, the Middle East, Europe and NATO.

Johnson described the meetings as a "very thorough briefing" and hinted at further such meetings. "I realize that the American people have a right to the government that efficiently functions at all times."

Johnson then said that his meeting was a "very pleasant and cooperative meeting as I expect the meetings to be in the days ahead."

The President and Mrs. Johnson and the President-elect and Mrs. Nixon met for lunch in the family dining room at the White House from 1:20 p.m. to 2:48 p.m. when the two men went to the President's oval office.

They were in the office briefly when they went to the adjoining cabinet room where they met for an hour and 28 minute session with the various administration advisers. At 4:19 p.m. Nixon and Johnson returned to the oval office where they remained until they met with reporters