Dismissals Challenged

Episcopal students, campus ministers, members of the YMCA and others concerned with the dismissal of William Coates and Herbert Tucker as Chapel of the Cross chaplains drafted a petition Thursday urging their reinstatement.

According to Josephine Strobel, parishioner of the Chapel of the Cross decided after the service Wednesday night to protest the action.

Mrs. Strobel said that the petition will show that Episcopalians appreciate the ministry of Coates and Tucker.

"Coates provides an alternate vision of the gospel which we believe should be offered to students. The campus deserves an option in types of ministry," explained Mrs. Strobel.

The petition is also aimed at non-Episcopalian students and faculty. Norman Gustavson, head of the YMCA, explained that the work of Coates and Tucker was important to the entire campus.

"The Episcopal church here has provided new approaches to the problem of the relevance of Christianity in the world today," said Gustavson.

"The ministry of Coates and Tucker reached an awful lot of people. The petition will prove how effective these men are," he added.

The original plan to have two separate petitions for Episcopalians and non-Episcopalians was discarded. One petition will be circulated with an amendment at the bottom to be signed only by Episcopalians.

The petitions will be sent to Reverend Malcolm Caldwell, chairman of the Commission of Campus Ministry of the Episcopal Church.

There will be a meeting of concerned students and faculty Sunday at 4 p.m. in Gerard

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW! The new Carolina Union, that long-awaited "Place to go," will be opened on Jan. 6. These couches will be re-arranged into some semblance of order by then and students will be milling around, playing pool and bowling. It will be one of the nicer things about returning from Christmas vacation!

Students Contribute

Special To The Daily Tar Heel

University of North Carolina students are being praised for their contributions in helping bring a happy holiday season to the needy of this area.

Through cash donations, toys, food, and clothing contributions, along with the volunteering of time and energies, UNC students have played a major role in the success of the Junior Service League's seventh annual Christmas House project.

A total of 240 needy families "shopped" at the Christmas House "store" in Eastgate Shopping Center Monday and Tuesday (Dec. 9-10), selecting gifts from shelves of merchandise donated by local merchants, students and townsmen.

In addition to free gifts, they were given a box of food for a holiday meal and Christmas decorations for their homes.

Mrs. Currin noted that the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council had contributed $100 each to the project. The Deke and Kappa Psi fraternities also gave money.

Delta Sigma Pi donated candy to fill stockings, while McIver coeds and DeMolay members from Ehringhaus worked on door decorations. Clothing was donated by Morrison and Kenan dorms and by Psi Omega Wives.

Sorority members from ADPi, Chi Omega, Tri Delt, Theta, Kappa, Phi Mu, KD and Pi Phi made tree ornaments, donated money or gifts, assisted with collections and helped set up and clean up Christmas house.

Fraternities assisting with the project were Beta, Chi Phi, Chi Psi, Sigma Nu, Phi Delt, St. Anthony Hall, SAE, DU, Phi Delta Chi, Phi Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi, Zeta Psi and Sig. Ep.

The campus referendum for constitutional changes concerning the Campus Code and Honor Code has been set for December 17.

Senior Class Will Choose A Different Kind Of Gift

By MARY BURCH
DTH Staff Writer

It's that time of year when everyone is thinking of giving gifts. The senior class officers are thinking of a gift too—a different kind of gift that will be given next June.

It is a tradition at UNC, and at other schools as well, for the senior class to give a gift "In memoriam" upon graduation to the school.

"I want the students in our class to understand, regardless of how gifts have been chosen in the past, we want everyone to feel free to suggest and choose the gift we will leave," said Charlie Farris, senior class president.

"I want to ask all seniors to look at other schools during vacation to see what other classes have given their schools and give us suggestions for gift ideas they like," he added.

Up to $1,000 may be spent on the gift. The final decision does not have to be made until February so there is plenty of time for suggestions.

Suggestions made so far include lights for the old well, giving cherry blossom trees for South Campus, giving a lectrum for the new Carolina Union, providing an announcement board for daily announcements, leaving a scholarship fund to be added to in the future, giving better sound equipment for Carmichael Auditorium or providing more picnic tables for Battle Forest Park.

"When our class returns as alumni, we will want something to identify with—something to associate with as a symbol of our four years here," Farris said. "We want everyone to have a part in choosing the gift and in giving it to the University."

Suggestions may be given to any class officer—Charlie Farris, Steve Savitz, Molly Nicholson, Kay Fouts or Sarah Lynn Dorsey—or by writing to Charlie Mercer at 319 Stacy Dorm, or calling 968-9112.

Blacks Rebuffed In Talks Quest

By WAYNE HURDER
DTH Editor

About 40 black students moved into South Building for about 30 minutes Friday and wandered about the offices demanding to see the chancellor to find out what he plans to do about their set of 23 demands.

The students were unable to talk with Chancellor Sitterson but met briefly with his special assistant Claiborne Jones and with Dean of Student Affairs C.O. Cathey before retiring to Gerrard Hall for a closed meeting.

Preston Dobbins, chairman of the Black Student Movement who is making the demands, commented afterwards that "the Chancellor obviously doesn't feel that the situation is critical enough to meet with us and do something."

"It's obvious that we're going to have to show him that these demands are urgent," Dobbins said, after the closed meeting had broken up about 5 p.m.

"We don't make any demands that we can't follow. We got actions for any demand that we make," he said.

Sitterson was in a meeting throughout the afternoon and unavailable for comment. Jones, however, told the blacks that the Chancellor "has no thoughts on the matter to relay at this time."

"When the Chancellor has some he'll relay them to you," Jones said.

Dobbins also met with the steering committee of the New University Conference Friday to explain the demands to them.

After his talk the steering committee voted unanimously "to give full support to the demands," according to the text of the statement made by the radical organization for graduate students and faculty.

The 20 member steering committee agreed to join the Black Student Movement in its efforts to force the administration to accede to the demands.

The 23 demands, presented to the chancellor Tuesday, include elimination of Scholastic Aptitude Test scores in considering black applicants, addition of curricula on Africa and Afro-Americans, the firing of Cathey and Carolina Union Director Howard Henry, fairer treatment of black non-academic employees, and the hiring of a dean of black students.

The black students met at about 3 p.m. on the steps of South Building and at about 3:15 marched into the building. Most of the students milled around in the lobby while five or six went in to try to talk to Sitterson.

After being informed that he had appointments for the rest of the day and couldn't see them, the students turned around and went to see Jones.

They talked to Jones briefly about when the Chancellor would have a comment on the demands and then turned to see Cathey, whom they had asked be fired in their list of demands (it was 12th in priority of the 23 items.)

Cathey Evicts CIA Picketers

Five UNC students were told to leave Gardner Hall by Dean of Student Affairs C.O. Cathey after handing out leaflets Friday morning where a representative from the Central Intelligence Agency was recruiting students.

The students arrived on the second floor of Gardner Hall, the student recruiting center, starting at 8:00 a.m. Friday.

Dean Cathey arrived shortly past 9:00 a.m., speaking with the CIA representative before telling the students that they were blocking the hall and that they were not allowed to pass out leaflets.

David Yam, one of the students handing out the leaflets, met with Dean Cathey on Thursday Dec. 14 to discuss the CIA recruitment. At this meeting, Cathey told the students they would be allowed to leaflet, according to Yam.

In a discussion of UNC's recruitment policy, Yam asked Cathey if a representative from Black Panther Party or Young Socialist League would be allowed to recruit on campus, and he says Cathey admitted that UNC's policy is selective.

When Cathey told the students to leave the building, Yam says he implied that he "was intending to have the authorities remove us," Cathey told the students that they could leaflet outside the building.

In a meeting of the New University Conference later yesterday morning, Yam explained the incident to the group, which is now investigating the University recruitment policy.

All five students involved are members of the NUC. According to Yam, sentiment of NUC "seems to be" for either total open recruitment or off-campus recruitment. Yam says that the "policy right now is inconsistent with democratic ideals and the goals of the University."

The leaflet the students were handing out spoke of "terrorism, treachery, and assassination" committed by the CIA, "in direct contravention of democratic and humanitarian values."

Former DTH Writer Drowned In Vietnam

Joel Leigh, a 1967 graduate of UNC and a Chapel Hill resident, died in Vietnam Sunday.

Leigh, a former sports writer for The Daily Tar Heel and a Recreation Administration major, was drowned while on a patrol when he tried to cross a swollen stream.

A scholarship fund is being established in honor of him. The memorial fund is being coordinated by Ernie Williamson, a Chapel Hill resident.

Leigh's body will be flown home this weekend for burial services.

While on the Tar Heel staff Leigh specialized in sports features personality sketches of UNC's top athletes. He had hoped to go into sportswriting as a career.

He also worked at the Durham YMCA. At the time he was drafted he was working in UNC's registration office where he helped UNC's athletes work-out their schedules.

He was drafted in February of 1968 and ordered to Vietnam in July for a year's tour of duty there.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Leigh, by a brother Danny, a student at UNC, and by two half-brothers, Tommy and Dick.

Contributions for the memorial scholarship fund should be sent to P.O. Box 446.

Beethoven

A special presentation of Beethoven music will be presented Sunday, Dec. 15, from 1-11 p.m. on WUNC radio, 91.5 FM. in honor of the musician's 198th birthday.

WUNC will accept requests of Beethoven favorites from listeners. Such requests may be made by calling the station any time during the program.

Folk-Mass Presented Here

Presbyterian Church Sunday

By BRYAN CUMMING
DTH Staff Writer

A folk mass service, including original music accompanied by three guitars and drums, will be held at the Presbyterian Church Sunday Dec. 15, at 8:00 p.m.

The music was written by Philip Koonce, organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Holy Family here. Koonce will conduct the mass tomorrow night.

The service, entitled "The Mass of the Holy Family," was performed once before, on Oct. 20, at Church of the Holy Family on Hayes Rd.

The mass which is open to all denominations is sponsored jointly by the University Presbyterian Church and the Episcopal Church of the Holy Family.

The preacher and celebrant at the service will be Rev. Thomas A. Fraser, Jr., the Episcopal bishop of North Carolina. The guitarists will be Meg Christian, David Penick, and Virgil Roberson, and drums will be played by William Parsley.

Rev. Vance Barron, the senior pastor at the University Presbyterian Church says that the folk mass will be "the first time that Presbyterian and Episcopalians have sponsored an ecumenical communion service."

Rev. Barron, who will serve as reader in the service tomorrow night, says that his church has "a great deal of freedom in forms of worship."

Rev. Barron decided to hold the folk mass after reading about the first time it was held. He has worked with the pastor from the Episcopal church of the Holy Family, Rev. Loren Meade.

In the service tomorrow night the choirs of the two churches will be combined. The mass is structured after the Episcopal liturgy of the Lord's Supper.

In explaining the folk mass, Rev. Barron says that he is interested in "exploring new ways of worshipping" and in bringing "Christians together across denominational lines."

The service will be performed in the same form as it was when first performed Oct. 20. It is not especially fitted to the Christmas and Advent season, but "the Advent season is an especially appropriate time for Christians from different denominations to come together for an expression of their common faith."
