Rustin Rips Black Militant Church Reparations Demand

NEW YORK (UPI) Civil rights leader Bayard Rustin Thursday criticized the demands of the Black Economic Development Conference for $500 million in "reparations" from America's churches as "preposterous." He said James Forman, who presented the demands, was "hustling, begging."

of the A. Philip Randolph Institute said: "The idea of reparations is a ridiculous idea. If my great grandfather picked cotton for 50 years, then he may deserve some money, but he's dead and gone and nobody owes me anything."

"Furthermore, I don't believe that any black man in this country wants to be given a thing, just the opportunity to work, to work and take care of his family.

"Forman may want someone to give him something," Rustin said, "but the average Negro is not a hustler. What he (Forman) is doing is hustling, begging."

Rustin, who organized the successful 1963 civil rights march on Washington, not only attacked Forman's "black manifesto," but the disruptive methods which Forman used at New York City's Riverside Church on Sunday to give the "reparation" demand muscle.

"I think that any white churchmen who tolerate their services being disrupted are anti-liberation. It is a violation of civil liberties to do this and black people will suffer more than anyone else if civil liberties are violated."

Rustin

Rustin's remarks were the latest in a series of statements that were highly critical of the programs and methods of black militants. Last week, the outspoken Negro leader attacked black students who brought guns to Cornell University and others who employed violence to force college administrators to accede to their demands.

Anderson Gets Business Award

Douglas Edlund Anderson, a UNC senior, is the 1969 winner of the annual Wall Street Journal Achievement Award given by the UNC Business School.

Anderson is the son of Dr. And Mrs. Carl E. Anderson of Kings Mill Rd., Chapel Hill.

His father is on the UNC Biochemistry Department faculty.

The award, consisting of a specially-designed silver medal and one year's subscription to the WALL STREET JOURNAL, was presented by Dr. Claude S. George Jr., associate dean of the Business School.

Winners are chosen on the basis of scholastic excellence in finance, character and leadership.

An accounting major, Anderson is a member of the UNC Flying Club (treasurer as sophomore and president as junior), was a member of the Freshman Swimming Team and is a dean's list student.

Outstanding Senior Award To Sarratt

John L. Sarratt has received the Most Outstanding Senior Award presented by Kappa Alpha Order in honor of Dr. William P. Jacobs.

The award is given each year to the student who has "had an active part in serving the university and his fellow students while maintaining a 3.0 average." The recipient is selected by a student-faculty committee appointed by Kappa Alpha and the Dean of Men's Office.

Sarratt is from Atlanta, Ga., and is a Morehead from Phillips-Exeter Academy. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Beta Kappa, and Order of the Grail and the Order of the Golden Fleece. While in the political science honors program he has maintained a 3.9 overall average.

During the last four years Sarratt has served as chairman of the Fine Arts Festival and treasurer of the Carolina Symposium. He has been on the Honors System Commission and the Chancellor's Commission on Teaching and the Curriculum.

Next year Sarratt plans to study at Harvard Law School.

The award was presented at a banquet at the Kappa Alpha House on Wednesday, May 7.

Governor's Mansion Campers Arrested

RALEIGH (UPI)— "This is public land, it belongs to all of us," said Emanuel Grant of Charlotte, who was one of five Negro men arrested Thursday for pitching a tent on the lawn of the governor's mansion.

"The governor has been vacillating for the past three weeks and we just decided to take things into our own hands," Grant said.

The five were in jail in lieu of $100 bond on charges of trespass.

Ten Raleigh policemen and a state trooper arrested them five minutes after they pitched their green, aluminum frame tent to dramatize their demands for a hope and opportunity tent city here.

Arrested along with Grant were Donald Cooper of Hyde County; G.K. Butterfield, a soldier from Ft. Bragg; James A. Cherry, Swan Quarter; and Alan Long, Swan Quarter.

The men said they were members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which has been in a sustained civil rights drive in Raleigh for the past several weeks.

"We have exhausted all means possible to acquire public lands in the vicinity of downtown Raleigh to pitch out tent city with the purpose of dramatizing the need for meeting black peoples demands," Butterfield said.

"Since the governor won't give us our rights we're going to take them," said Cooper.

Negroes had used other forms of protest such as blocking traffic on downtown thoroughfares last month.

Wednesday, state SCLC leader Golden Frinks of Edenton was given a one-year jail term for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Police said two teen-aged youths were part of demonstrations blocking traffic and Frinks had put them up to it.
