Food Services Dire Says Relations Improving

By STEVE PLAISANCE
DTH Staff Writer

"I think that, overall, relations between management and the workers have improved and will continue to improve," said Robert B. Foy, acting director of the University Food Services.

"The attitudes of the workers have improved and the general attitude is good in the majority of people," he said.

According to Foy, the $1.80 per hour wage, which was the main point of contention in the March worker's strike became effective April 1.

"May 1 was the first time they (permanent full-time employees on the payroll) were paid at the new rate of $1.80 per hour," Foy said. "It was stipulated that these employees had to be on the payroll as of March 31."

"New supervisors are not being hired at this time because of the closing of Chase Cafeteria. The staff and supervisors who formerly worked there are now working at Lenoir."

Foy said the reimbursement of employees for past overtime work is presently being studied.

"The Federal Wage and Hour Board is reviewing all time cards and formulating a decision on the matter," he said.

plans for an independent company taking over the operation of the food service. Foy said:

"I know nothing more about the new company than anyone else. It is general knowledge that the proposal is being considered, but as to who or what, I have no information."

Foy was hired by Memorial Hospital in 1967 as assistant director of the food services.

"I have this job (at Lenoir) until arrangements are made for my return to the hospital staff," he added.

Foy indicated that the employees of the food service are paid on a semi-monthly basis, on the 1st and 16th of each month.

The State Personnel Office, according to Foy, is presently processing the reclassification forms for the third group of food service employees.

"Job reclassification is about 90 per cent completed," said Foy. "Some of the interviews have not been held yet, and a few of the employees have not returned their reclassification forms."

On the hiring of black supervisors, Foy said, "Race doesn't enter into the hiring of a supervisor. Applicants are selected on the basis of qualifications and past experiences only."

George Rose, Wife Arrested

FAYETTEVILLE (UPI)—A 19-year-old husband and wife, both college students who dropped out to help organize soldiers opposing the Vietnam war, were in jail here Friday under $500 bond each.

George A. Rose, Jr. of Chapel Hill, who had been barred from Ft. Bragg because of a demonstration last year, was charged with trespassing on the reservation Thursday. His wife, Margaret, was charged with carrying concealed weapons on the post. Authorities said they found a .22 caliber rifle and a double barrel shotgun in the trunk of their car. Margaret Rose was driving.

A spokesman for the public information office at Ft. Bragg said military police who arrested the Roses took them to the provost marshal's office. He said officers searched the car there and found the weapons, along with ammunition in the trunk. He said there is a base regulation barring unregistered and concealed weapons from the post.

He said Military police took the couple to Dunn where they were arraigned before U.S. Commissioner William P. Elmore.

Military police arrested the couple about 5 p.m. Thursday in the Spring Lake area of the post, a section of billets. Military police arrested the couple as their car arrived at a barracks where Pvt. Joe Miles, 20, is billeted. Miles is the leader of a group called G.I.'s United Against the War in Vietnam at Ft. Bragg.

Miles said the Roses had planned to pick him up and drive him to a news conference held two hours later at a Fayetteville motel. Miles complained all his material for the news conference was seized.

At the news conference, Miles announced his dissident group would file suit in federal court for permission to hold meetings on the post.

Time To Start Worrying About Exams

Says Deposed President

'Unrest' Greater In Peru

By AL THOMAS
DTH Staff Writer

Deposed President of Peru Fernando Belaunde Terry said in Gerrard Hall Thursday night that student unrest in the United States is nothing compared to that in his country.

The former president spoke on the progress and problems of Peru to a crowd of approximately 100 people.

The student unrest question came up after Belaunde had given his main address.

"We have very serious problems with students," he said. "The issues are very different, for in my country they are concerned with national problems and almost never with school reform."

Belaunde said communists are responsible for much of the trouble, but it is impossible to tell just how much. The temper of students is higher in Peru, according to Belaunde, and incidents of violence are more frequent. He isn't sure how present world-wide student unrest will affect Peruvian students.

"School begins June 1 in Peru; so we will be watching the situation very closely," he said.

Belaunde's government was overthrown in October of 1968 by a military coup. Since then he has traveled to different countries studying their institutions and plans for better communities.

Student Legislature Thursday night overwhelmingly defeated a bill to cut the Black Student Movement (BSM) appropriation from $6,410 to $1,710 following lengthy, heated debate.

The bill, if passed, would have eliminated the BSM tutorial program in the black community of Carboro and the BSM newspaper.

The measure failed on a roll call vote, five in favor, 32 opposed and seven answering present (a vote of abstention).

The full BSM budget had been passed by the previous Legislature last month by a vote of 20-5.

A preliminary motion to send the bill back to committee was defeated, as was a proposal by Rep. David Lloyd to postpone consideration of the bill until next Monday, "so that we will know exactly where all of the money is going."

Rep. Gene Yates, who introduced the bill into the Finance Committee last week, said the appropriation should be cut because the Student Government unappropriated balance is "very low."

Speaking against the bill, Rep. Jerry Everhardt said, "The BSM is concerned. They are a social force. We should take a stand in favor of a Student Government commitment to a social movement."

—sent back to committee a bill to allow elections to fill vacancies in the Legislature.

—allowed the Carolina Quarterly to spend $5,000 foundation grant it had received from the N.C. Arts Council.

At the beginning of the session, the body voted 22-18 to postpone until fall a decision on whether or not to allow former Representative Harry Diffendal to be sworn in to fill a vacancy. In the meantime, the seat remains open. Diffendal was UP Party chairman.

Response To Group Faltering

"Disappointing" was how Prof. W.R. Straughn, chairman of the faculty-student committee to advise Chancellor Sitterson on the selection of a director of Undergraduate Admissions, termed student and faculty response to the committee.

Population does not remain static," Belaunde said. "Therefore, if land is static, no progress is made. We have to increase the number of settled areas."

Belaunde feels the population increase to be less than alarming because, according to him, land is not densely populated in Peru. He said there is only one-half a person per square mile, and therefore land development, not population, is the problem.

The former president's interests are mainly in architecture and city planning. He began the Marginal Highway running along the eastern slopes of the Andes to link scattered villages and prepare for industries.

Mutual Aid, a plan whereby the similar nations work together for the betterment of all, is high among Belaunde's concerns. He said this is essential for progress and that even the most primitive groups understand its importance.

Belaunde said he will continue traveling around the country studying, learning and taking in all the "beautiful sights."

His talk at UNC was sponsored by the International Student Center and Project of the Americas.

—repealed a $37.80

Present: Reps. Williford, Yates, Lloyd, Smith, Roundtree, Farabough, Bardin.

In other action, Legislature: —elected John Williford as speaker pro-tem and chairman of the Judicial Committee, Joe Beard as rules chairman, Peter Schmuck to head Ways and Means and George Hearn as Finance chairman. All except Hearn are University Party members.

—approved the appointments of Robert Mosteller as attorney general, Carole Ryan to Women's Court, Guil Waddell as student body treasurer, John McDowell and Mike Almond as Carolina Forum co-chairmen and Steve Latour as chairman of Legislative Services. The remainder of the attorney general's staff was also approved.

—approved the appointments of Peggy Baggett, Billy Wilson and Rick Callaway to the summer school Student Government Board.

—appropriated $15 to Mike Almond to print "no-quize forms."

—gave money to the Publications Board to allow it to join the Chapel Hill Merchants Association.

—allowed the WRC to print a women's booklet and passed a bill appropriating money to the Yackety-Yack to print a froshbook in the fall which will contain pictures of all '69 students.

"One of the main purposes of the committee was to find out student and faculty attitudes toward the role of the Undergraduate Admissions director," he said. "So far, we have had one student and about eight faculty responses."

The committee has sent out letters to all faculty members and 150 students who are in one way or another involved with Student Government, asking for names of individuals who might be suitable for the position and for any considerations which should enter into the committee's deliberations.

The response to the letter has been nil.

So far the committee has had four meetings and has only concerned itself with the nature of the office of the admissions director.

"We will look into candidates after we have decided we know enough about what the role of director should involve," Prof. Straughn said.

In asking for more student response, Prof. Straughn mentioned that "this could be an effective channel through which student interest groups can express their opinions."

Preppers Meet For Top Prize

Representatives from 20 North Carolina high schools are competing this weekend in Chapel Hill for the Aycock Memorial Cup which signifies the best high school debating team in the state.

Each of the teams, according to Tournament Director J.W. Pence, has won either first or second place in both a local round robin tournament and a district tournament.

The North Carolina High School Debate Union, which sponsors the tournament, divides the state into six districts, each of which is run by a university or college.

District I is managed by East Carolina University; District II, by Methodist College in Fayetteville; District III, by Duke University; District IV, by Wake Forest University; District V, by the University of North Carolina at Charlotte; and District VI, by Appalachian State University at Boone.

Finals are held at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill under the direction of E.M. Collins, N.C.H.S.D.U. director, and J.W. Pence, associate director in charge of tournaments. Both of these men are professors of speech at Carolina.

The schedule for the tournament was drawn up by Tom Foster, president of the Tar Heel Debaters and director of Tournament Operations.

Debates were held at 3, 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. on Friday, and further rounds will be held at 9:30 a.m., 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. Saturday in the Carolina Union.

The final debate, between the tournament's two top teams, will be held after Round 6 in the Great Hall of the Union.

Judges for the tournament were selected from four areas: Tar Heel Debaters, speech majors, students who have taken a course in argumentation and debate (speech 45) and members of the speech faculty.

At Press Club Banquet

Journalism Students Feted

Over $10,000 in scholarships and six merit awards were presented to journalism students Thursday evening at the UNC Press Club's Fifteenth Annual Awards Banquet held at the Zoom Restaurant.

Distinguished Journalism Foundation Scholarships, valued at $1,000 each, were presented to William Harry Abernathy Jr. of Charlotte, Frank Conley Ballard Jr. of Winston-Salem, Judith Ann Hippler of Atlanta, Ga., and Cathy Dean Steele of Alexandria, Va. The winners were selected following interviews with a committee of North Carolina newspapermen and journalism school faculty members. The distinguished scholarship program was initiated by the Knight Publishing Company of Charlotte in 1967.

Scholarships valued at $500 each were presented to 10 students.

They included the Beatrice Cobb Scholarship, which went to Marcella Cherie Cox of Madison; the O.J. Coffin Scholarship to Mary Penny Raynor of Salisbury; the Carl C. Council Scholarship to Pamela Elizabeth Puryear of Raleigh; the Louis Graves Scholarship to Ronald Earl Taylor of Monroe; the Gerald W. Johnson Scholarship to Harvey C. Elliott Jr. of Washington, N.C.; the Quincy Sharpe Mills Scholarship to Gilbert Bernard Tunnell Jr. of Swan Quarter and the Minneapolis Tribune Scholarship to Barbara Ann Helms of Charlotte.

Other recipients of $500 scholarships were Richard Dale Boner of Lexington, Margot Elizabeth Fletcher of Roanoke, Va., and Floyd Melmon Rogers of Moravian Falls.

It was announced that scholarship awards for highest grade-point averages among journalism juniors and seniors will henceforth be named the Norval Neil Luxon Scholarship Awards in honor of the former dean who is retiring from teaching this month.

Mrs. Wanda Stewart Robbins of Oakboro received the $100 senior class scholastic award and Marcella Cherie Cox of Madison received the $50 junior class award.

The Sigma Delta Chi award to the outstanding male senior in the journalism school went to Leslie Joseph Sanders of Falls Church, Va. The Matrix Society's outstanding woman senior award was presented to Mrs. Robbins.
