Welfare Group Sponsors 25 County Families

By DAVE JACOBS
DTH Staff Writer

Family Size

Weekly Food Allowance

More than 25 Orange County families are living on a welfare budget this week in a program sponsored by the Orange Welfare Union.

Consultant to the organization and employee of the Inter-Church Council Dorothy Gamble said the purpose of the program is to "acquaint people with the problems of the welfare recipient, to make people more aware of how the welfare recipient lives and to give people knowledge of just how the system works."

The purpose of the program is not to prove whether families can survive on the welfare budget because 1,700,000 families all over the country already are, explained Mrs. Gamble.

Families participating in the program were asked to follow certain rules and all expenses are to be met with the amount allotted to welfare recipients by the North Carolina Social Services System.

Among the groups participating in the program are families from the Community Church, the League of Women Voters and the Unitarian Church Council.

Mrs. Gamble said some of the problems of the welfare recipient today are lack of nutrition, special medical diets and proper housing.

Organizers of the program claim that welfare allotments "just aren't enough." The following table shows the food budget used in the North Carolina Department of Social Services System:

1	$ 6.40
2	10.93
3	13.60
4	15.81
5	18.02
6	20.00
7	21.97
8	24.18
9	26.39
10	28.60

A testimonial supper at the Roberson Street Center will end the program Nov. 15.

Anyone wishing to contribute time, ideas or money, or to obtain information concerning the Orange Welfare Union should call the Inter-Church Council (929-6380), said Mrs. Gamble.

Agnew Unloads Again; Blisters Newspapers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew leveled his second attack in a week against the news media Thursday night, this time against newspapers that have "grown fat and irresponsible" without competition.

"Many, many strong independent voices have been stilled in this country in recent years," Agnew told the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce. "Lacking the vigor of competition some of those that have survived have, let us face it, grown fat and irresponsible."

Agnew singled out the Washington Post Publishing Co., with he said "holds control of the largest newspaper in Washington, D.C., and one of the four major television stations and an all-news radio station and one of the three major national news magazines—all grinding out the same editorial line."

He added, "And this is on a subject you have seen debated on the editorial pages of the Washington Post or the New York Times."

Agnew said the Times was an example of this "obesity and irresponsibility" as represented by its alleged failure to carry a story on the fact that 300 House members and 59 senators signed a letter endorsing President Nixon's Vietnam policy.

"Even the Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun, scarcely house organs of the Nixon Administration," he said, "placed it prominently on the front page."

Agnew said, "If a theology student would get up at a PTA luncheon in Sioux City and attack the President's Vietnam policy, my guess is that you would probably find it reported somewhere the next morning in the New York Times." The endorsement of 300 congressmen, however, "apparently is not considered news fit to print."

He said the New York Times "was a better newspaper" when now defunct papers were alive. He cited the deaths of the Washington Times Herald, New York Journal American, New York World-Telegram and Sun, New York Mirror and New York Herald Tribune as "great political tragedies."

"Many, many strong, independent voices have been stilled in this country in recent years," he said. "Lacking the vigor of competition some of those that have survived have let us face it, grown fat and irresponsible."

He said he was not suggesting the Post Co. be broken up. "I am merely pointing out that the public should be aware that these four powerful voices harken to the same master."

Agnew warned that a trend toward monopolies in television and newspaper ownership was concentrating "more and more power over public opinion in fewer and fewer hands."

He indicated that the debate between the administration and the news media is not going to stop.

"When they go beyond fair comment and criticism they will be called upon to defend their statements and their positions just as we must defend ours."

"And when their criticism becomes excessive or unjust, we shall invite them down from their ivory towers to enjoy the rough and tumble of the public debate."

'Heel Howl' Parade Kicks Off 'Beat Dook' Weekend Activity

By ART CHANSKY
DTH Sports Editor

Carolina's first annual Heel Howl is set for this afternoon at 4 in Kenan Stadium, following the traditional Beat Dook Parade through campus.

The parade, which begins at 3 o'clock in front of Woollen Gym, will conclude an hour later in the Rams Head parking lot next to Kenan.

Students should enter the stadium through the main gate on the North, or visiting side, as only one half of Kenan will be used.

The Howl festivities begin just after 4 with an introductory show by Major John Yesulaitis and the Carolina marching band.

Master of ceremonies Bill Currie, the voice of the Tar Heel Sports Network, will officially open the Howl with a short monologue.

Currie will introduce the skit program after which the winners of the float competition will receive trophies for excellence from Charles Ingram, parade chairman from Pi Kappa Alpha.

Rally Today At 11.30 SAGA Employees Hold Union Vote

By LENOX RAWLINGS
DTH Staff Writer

A secret election among SAGA Food Service employees on the question of unionization will be held today from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Rooms 202 and 204 of the Student Union.

The North Carolina Department of Labor will supervise the election.

Mrs. Mary Smith, spokesman for the striking cafeteria workers, said the group would "overwhelmingly" vote for representation by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union (AFSCME). Kenneth (Ted) Young, manager of SAGA here, said, "I think it will be very interesting."

A rally will be held by the striking workers in the "Pit" at 11:30 a.m. today. Speakers will include James Lee, black activist and director of training for the Foundation of Community Development in Durham; the Rev. Philip Cousins of AME Church in Durham; Preston Dobbins, former head of UNC's Black Student Movement; and Ben Ruffin of the United Organizations for Community Improvement.

Howard Fuller, head of Malcolm X Liberation University in Durham has been asked to speak, but illness may cancel his visit.

The election rule which prohibits campaigning 24 hours prior to the election "has not been violated" by today's rally, according to Jim Pierce, regional director for AFSCME. "This law, established by the National Labor Relations Board, permits no campaigning on company time," he said.

"The striking workers do not fall under this category, only those who are working now."

Union officials claimed last week over 75 per cent of the striking workers had signed union cards.

Mrs. Smith said she knows "at least four" SAGA employees now working who hold union cards.

In two advertisements run this week SAGA said it will reduce the number of full-time employees from 147 to 100 when normal operations resume.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brooks and Mrs. Smith, leaders for the striking workers, have pledged to fight the firings.

"If they won't keep all the full-time employees and come to terms," Mrs. Brooks said Wednesday "then we'll have to start some action. Pressure will be put on the University; they'll have to call out the National Guard and then maybe we can get something settled."

Mrs. Smith claimed Thursday "the University will make SAGA honor the commitments made to us last spring or there won't be any University."

Approximately 245 SAGA employees began striking Nov. 7 demanding unionization, job classification and an increase in salary from $1.80 to $2.25 for full-time employees. There are 120 full-time workers now striking.

The strike shut down four of the campus's six eating halls. Only Chase and Lenoir, the two main dining halls, remain open.

Viet Fund Drive Short On Money

The appeal for funds to bring war-injured Vietnamese children to the United States for medical treatment has fallen on deaf ears.

Only $100 has been netted by the campus Commission of Responsibility during this week's campaign, according to Tom Davidson, field representative of the national Committee of Responsibility.

Campus leaders of the drive had hoped to collect $5,000 from students during "COR Week" activities. The campaign has been centered in residence colleges, featuring the film, "War's Children."

"For some reason, people like to stay in their dorm rooms and maintain their own cliquish interests," Davidson complained Thursday. "I've been in high schools where minds have been more open trying to learn."

"The big event last night was the earthquake," Davidson continued, "but people can't imagine what it's like to have B-52 bombers creating an earthquake every 10 minutes."

Davidson asked that students come to Friday's showing of "War's Children" at noon in the Great Hall.

He said that the campus commission would continue its activities after this week.

"The Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) and the Pan-Hellenic Council have expressed an interest in showing the film in fraternities and sororities. The denominational centers have also shown an interest. They will be showing the film where people are naturally grouped together," Davidson said.

UP Reform To Include Two Job Eliminations

By STEPHEN WALTERS
DTH Staff Writer

University Party Chairman Guil Waddell's Committee on Reform of the University Party will recommend elimination of the offices of policy and organizational vice chairmen at the regular party meeting Saturday at 8 p.m. in Howell Hall.

The committee, established two and a half weeks ago under Waddell's initiative, composed five resolutions to offer for party consideration.

The most prominent was the resolution requesting abolition of the policy and organizational vice chairman offices.

The report says, "In their place we recommend that the executive board be directed to appoint a policy committee constituted by members of the party for each specific issue which shall arise."

The report explained, "The party should restructure its organization by decentralization. We feel that the will of the party will be represented more often if a committee is selected by a 10-man executive branch rather than the policy vice chairman."

The resolution will require an amendment to the UP constitution.

Waddell said he feared some will see this proposal as a move to remove conservatives from the executive board since "a conservative," Gary Fagg, was elected policy vice chairman during the last UP meeting.

Waddell asserted this is not the case, because the suggestion was decided upon before Fagg's election and because "there will still be conservatives, moderates and liberals on the executive board."

Waddell said he expects some rigorous discussion and probably significant opposition on this issue, "but a majority of the party will pass it, I believe." Another effort to killed "as many as a hundred" persons when he went with C Company, 6th Battalion, 20th Infantry Regiment, 11th Light Infantry Brigade, into the village of My Lai Nov. 4. The alleged killings are now under investigation by the Army.

Haerberle's story appeared with eight copyright photographs showing the bodies of men, women and children allegedly killed by the soldiers. He said he took no pictures of soldiers in the act of killing because he was an Army photographer.

"There were no Viet Cong," he said. They were just poor, innocent illiterate peasants."

The Army has charged 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr., 26, of Miami, Fla., with murder in connection with the incident. Staff Sgt. David Mitchell, 29, of St. Francisville, La., has been charged with assault with intent to murder.

For you who found errors in the puzzler... what is the psychological significance of this?

by CLARK!

CLEVELAND (UPI)—A former U. S. Army photographer said he witnessed the slaying of "innocent illiterate peasants," including women and children, by U. S. Army troops in South Vietnam on March 16, 1968, the Cleveland Plain Dealer reported Thursday in a copyrighted story.

Ronald L. Haerberle, 28, of Cleveland, said the soldiers
