Legal Fund Established Student Legislature Passes Record $260,000 Budget

By GERRY COHEN
Staff Writer

A record $260,000 budget was passed by Student Legislature late Sunday night after eight hours of debate. Numerous changes were made from the budget recommended by the Finance Committee. In what may be the most significant action, the body voted $1,500 for a Student Government Legal Fund.

The Legal Fund allocation of $1,500 was proposed by Legislator Jerry Everhart, with only one dissenting vote. According to Everhart, the fund may be used to pay attorney fees and court costs involving tests of the disruption policy as well as cases concerning discrimination against women.

Specific allocations from the Legal Fund will have to be approved by Legislature.

The budget is expected to be signed by Student Body President Tommy Bello. An additional $832 was budgeted for the Odum-Victory Village Day, Care Center, making the total allocation to the Village $2,500.

The Daily Tar Heel appropriation was approved as recommended by the Finance Committee, after amendments to increase the appropriation by $5,500 and $2,300 were defeated. One hundred dollars was cut from the Yackety Yack budget, out of the editor's salary.

The 1971 Fine Arts Festival Budget was cut by $1,500. A new Carolina Handbook, to be distributed to all incoming freshmen, was voted $3,100, and the Association of Women Students received an additional $1,500 for a symposium to be held next year.

An authorization of $2,000 to the International Student Center was added to the budget, while the Legislature cut the recommendation for the Graduate Student Association from $15,087 to $8,587.

An additional $2,000 was appropriated to the Residence College Federation, with $1,500 earmarked for special projects. The glee club and choir were pared by $500 each, while $1,000 was cut from the $5,000 recommended for the Debate Team.

The marching band was eliminated from the budget entirely. Major opposition to appropriations for organizations such as the choir, marching band, glee club and debate team stemmed from the Adams Committee report commissioned by Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson, which called for the administration to begin funding.

In other action Sunday the body voted to raise the undergraduate student activities fee which finances the budget from $19 per year to a total of $20 a year, beginning September, 1971. The request will be submitted to the Board of Trustees for a vote in November.

An amendment to the

$1,200 Carolina Talent Search budget was approved, requiring a cut-off of funds to the organization if it "dis-recruits" black students.

Several legislators said the Talent Search had threatened to "dis-recruit" because they alleged the University is racist.

An amendment by Legislator Joe Beard to the Carolina Talent Search budget, which would forbid the organization from discriminating on the basis of economic standing, was defeated.

The cuts to the Graduate Student Association budget came after some members charged the GSA represented no one but itself.

Other members said there should be no separate graduate student government, citing most programs sponsored by Student Government as open to both grads and undergrads.

Speaking in favor of a large budget, Beard said grads received little benefit from

Student Hurt In Tow Incident

By GLENN BRANK
Staff Writer

A UNC law student who refused to allow his car to be towed Monday afternoon received minor injuries when the tow truck summoned by campus police backed into him, according to eyewitnesses.

Jack Stout reportedly suffered scratches on his legs when the truck pulled up against his car. Stout was sitting on the trunk.

The incident began about 2 p.m. when a campus police officer found Stout's car in a supposedly barricaded area. Stout apparently saw the tow truck arrive and went out to protest. Joel Stevenson, a witness, described what happened.

"The owner of the car argued with the police," he said. "He stood in their way and would not let the car be moved."

In the meantime, a crowd of between 50 and 75 bystanders gathered, according to Stevenson.

"The police then ordered the car towed," Stevenson said.

Another witness, Bill Russell, said the truck bumper "scraped Stout's legs. The driver could see he was back there," Russell added. Other witnesses concurred with Russell's observation.

Stout said the crowd finally convinced the police the area had not been barricaded. "There were no barricades in the area," Stevenson reported. "I was here last night and this morning and saw no barricades then either."

William Lock, an administrator with the campus police, reported no towing was done and no charges were made.

"Upon checking into the matter, we decided that someone must have moved the barricades," he said.

Lock said the barricades had been erected by workers who were expanding the parking facilities in the area.

Questioned about Stout's injuries, Lock said he had "no knowledge" of the incident. An officer patrolling the area at 3 p.m. said he knew nothing about what happened.

Stout did not wish to comment on the incident.

Professional Group Circulates Requests

Members of the Graduate English Women, a professional organization within the UNC English department, are circulating a list of requests today concerning the professional status of women within the department.

Marie Edmondson, a spokesman for the group, said the list has been compiled over the past month. The purpose of the requests being circulated, Miss Edmondson said is to make the professors in the English department aware of the problems of professional women in English.

A petition in support of the requests will be presented early next week to department chairman C. Carroll Hollis, Miss Edmondson said. He said the petition will be signed by both men and women within the department.

A colloquium will be held April 24 at 4 p.m. in the Carolina Union to discuss the problems of the status of professional women in the field of English.

In their statement, the graduate women point out that even though there are almost an equal amount of graduate men and women, a review of positions obtained by women and men Ph.D.'s from UNC within the past 10 years reveals that women are consistently employed at less prestigious schools.

"We are indeed interested," the statement reads, in examining the forces which channel women into terminal M.A. programs and produce

Quiz Bowl

The final round of the Quiz Bowl will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Student Union.

The competition will match the Manly Team against the Hinton 4. Each team has survived 5 matches in a month of competition.

Dr. Richard Rust of the English Department will be the moderator.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners.

less professionally successful Ph.D.'s even though women enter graduate school as well qualified as men. It is our contention that discrimination in hiring practices rather than inferiority of the women students has created this situation."

The statement listed five areas which GEW feels need investigation, including admissions, scholarships, assistantships, employment and placement. Following each of the suggestions are facts which, according to the Graduate English Women, show sex discrimination.

Saying that any cutback in admissions to adjust to the current job shortage should not be made at the expense of women applicants for admission, the statement urged that graduate students be admitted on the basis of grades, test scores and recommendations without any reference to sex.

The graduate women urged that scholarships also be given as awards on the basis of objective criteria.

The professional organization requested that criteria for assistantships be published and that women be considered for employment equally with men.

It was noted that in the academic year of 1969-70, all three teaching fellows are men; of the 16 full-time instructors, six are women; of the 60 teaching assistants, only 12 are women; out of the 73 non-teaching assistants, 31 are women.

The English graduate women warned against discrimination in employment and placement and urged that prejudice be eliminated from present practices.

Jackson Addresses Law School Today

Samuel C. Jackson, assistant for Metropolitan Planning and Development and general assistant secretary in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, will speak at the UNC Law School today at 12:30 in room five.

Jackson is scheduled to speak on "Core Cities and New Cities." Following the address, there will be a question and answer session on the housing policies of the Nixon administration.

Jackson will also meet with Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee. Unofficial sources report their discussion will concern the dispersal of government funds for urban development.

Mayor Lee recently visited Washington in an attempt to obtain more urban renewal funds for the Chapel Hill area. Jackson is director of broad range planning the development of public facilities in HUD. His office provides financial assistance for state and local governments involved in urban development.

Jackson is a native of Kansas City, Kan. He graduated from Washburn University in Topeka in 1951 and received a law degree in 1954.

Jackson has occupied several positions with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He has been a member of the NAACP's National Board of Directors and its national legal committee. He is a past-president of the Topeka NAACP.

Jackson's address is sponsored by the UNC Law School and the City Planning Department.

Tri-Delts Offer Scholarship

Delta Delta Delta sorority is now taking applications for its 1970 scholarship competition.

All full-time undergraduate women students in colleges where there is a Tri Delta chapter are eligible to apply.

Applicants should be well-qualified students showing promise of valuable service in their chosen field and future communities.

Academic record, contribution to campus life and financial need will be considered by the judges.

Proceeds from the annual spaghetti dinner to be held

April 30 by the UNC chapter will determine the amount of the scholarship.

Applications are now available from the Dean of Women, the director of financial aid and the Delta Delta Delta house.

Successful candidates will be notified May 1.

Wicker Keynotes Fleece Tapping

Tom Wicker, Washington Bureau manager of the New York Times, will be the keynote speaker at the annual tapping ceremony of the Order of Golden Fleece in Memorial Hall Friday at 7:30 p.m.

A native of Hamlet, Wicker is a graduate of UNC. He has worked as editor of the Sandhill Citizen in Aberdeen, sports and telegraph editor of the Daily Robesonian in Lumberton, information director of the N.C. State Board of Public Welfare and copy editor of the Winston-Salem Journal.

After serving two years in the Navy, Wicker returned to the Journal as sports editor, became editor of the Sunday feature section and in 1957 went to Harvard as a Nieman fellow.

Returning to the Journal as an editorial writer, Wicker later became the city hall reporter and in 1959 he became associate editor of the Tennessean in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1960 Wicker joined the Times in Washington where he covered the White House and national politics.

He became chief of the Washington Bureau in 1964, and he began his widely-read editorial page column, "In the Nation," in 1966. In 1968 he was appointed associate editor of the Times.

Author of six novels, Wicker has written articles for the Atlantic Monthly, Esquire, the New Republic, Harpers and the Saturday Evening Post.

The "giants," hooded members of the Order of Golden Fleece, will walk the aisles of Memorial Hall and select a number of new members of the order. It is requested that those who attend be on time, since the doors of the hall will be locked promptly at 7:30 p.m. and the tapings will proceed followed by Wicker's speech.

Eligible to be tapped are students, faculty and other members of the University community. Membership in the Golden Fleece is traditionally considered to be the highest honor that can come to a student.

The society was formed in Chapel Hill in 1963.

WUNC Slates Eaton Reading

Poet Charles Eaton will read from his latest verse tonight at 9:30 on WUNC Radio, 91.5 FM.

Eaton, a native of North Carolina and a graduate of UNC, will be interviewed by Terry A. Henderson in connection with his new volume of poetry, "On the Edge of the Knife." The volume is to be published by Abelard-Shuman, Ltd. April 21.

The poetry program is featured every Tuesday evening at 9:30.

Born in Winston-Salem, the poet graduated from UNC and studied philosophy at Princeton and taught English in Puerto Rico.

He returned to this country to take his M.A. degree at Harvard. There he studied with Robert Frost upon whose recommendation he was awarded a fellowship in the Bread Loaf Writer's Conference.

After leaving Harvard, he taught creative writing at UNC for several years.

"The Shadow of the Swimmer," his second volume of poetry, won the Ridgely Torrence Memorial Award. His third volume, "The Greenhouse in the Garden," was a runner-up for the National Book Award in 1957.

He has also published a volume of short stories, "Write me from Rio," written about his tenure as vice consul at the American Embassy in Rio De Janeiro.

Eaton is presently working on a sixth volume of poetry and a second collection of short stories.

Student Busted For Obscenity

A UNC student was arrested Monday afternoon for the sale of obscene literature.

Rick Allen, DTH columnist, was taken into custody near Kemp's Ahead Store on a warrant issued by Mrs. R.P. Williford of 812 Chatterly St.

The warrant charged Allen with the sale of obscene literature to Mrs. Williford's fourteen-year-old son.

Arnold Gold, the arresting officer, reported a number of books were confiscated at the time of the arrest.

Allen waived a preliminary hearing. His trial is set for Friday.
