Preyer To Speak Saturday

Congressman L. Richardson Preyer will make the dedication address for the new School of Nursing addition Saturday morning.

Preyer, representative of the 6th congressional district and former gubernatorial candidate, will speak at 10:30 a.m. at Elizabeth Scott Carrington Hall.

A native of Hawfields, Mrs. Carrington earned her B.S. degree from Flora McDonald College and received an M.A. in nursing education from the University of Pennsylvania.

She has taught home nursing and volunteer nurses aid in Alamance County and has been an operating supervisor and nurse anesthetist.

Having served on several state committees on nursing education and health services, Mrs. Carrington has been chairman of the School of Nursing Committee of the Medical Foundation of North Carolina since its founding in 1953.

Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson, Consolidated University President William C. Friday and State Senator Ralph Scott will attend the ceremonies.

Following the dedication ceremonies, guests will be invited to tour the five-story Carrington Hall.

With an area of 70,000 square feet, Carrington Hall has six conference rooms, 13 seminar rooms, a 230-seat auditorium and two lecture halls with a 140-student capacity each.

The auditorium and lecture halls are located on the ground floor. Other classrooms and graduate carrels are on the second and third floors.

The fourth and fifth floors house faculty offices and the Continuing Education Program.

The first floor also has a reception area and faculty seminar room as well as administrative offices.

WIN A BEER—That was the name of the game—any game—at the Campus Chest Carnival. And lots of students took advantage of the contests to get themselves a few beers— all while contributing to charity. The Carnival is the highlight of weeks of campus-wide work for charity by the APO-GSS and other fraternities and residence colleges. (Staff Photo by Al Raynor)

AFROTC Needs Building

Smith: Faculty Club Only Place

By Terry Cheek
Staff Writer

Colonel Paul E. Smith, chairman of the Air Force ROTC department, said Thursday he can see no other alternative for the University than to provide the Faculty Club for AFROTC.

"Let's be realistic," he said. "We have no other place to go."

According to Smith, the temporary buildings being used by AFROTC will be taken down this summer to make way for a new social sciences building.

The Faculty Club building is located between the lower quad and Cobb dorm. It is no longer used by the faculty.

Female Liberation 27 is one of the two other parties being considered for the facility. Their goal is to convert the building into a day care center for the children of working women in the community.

Morehead Residence College is also contending for the facility, arguing it needs more space for social activities, an office and seminar rooms.

"We have been fully and officially accepted by the University," Smith said. "It is part of the University's contract with the Air Force that it (the University) will provide facilities comparable to other departments."

Noting that Manning Hall has already been committed and Lenoir Hall will probably be used again as a cafeteria, Smith said he was not aware of any alternatives the University has to offer.

"I have the administrative viewpoint," said Smith. "We need office space and classrooms."

Smith labeled the bid of Morehead Residence College for the Faculty Club as "somewhat selfish."

Suggesting that Morehead use its present facilities and make use of the large basement in Cobb dorm, he said, "We have no place to go—they do."

The basement of Cobb is presently used as storage area. The Faculty Club was built during World War II as an

and sent to the state organization Sunday.

He added the petition was not aimed at any one person, but at the present leadership in general.

Former President Joe Beard said he was "surprised" at some of the charges. "Misappropriation of funds is a mighty big charge," he said. Secretary John Morehead said all nominations for officers were openly made in the last meeting which was announced in The Daily Tar Heel.

The petition asks the state organization to send an observer to oversee the next meeting, take complaints and investigate charges.

Scott College Governor

Brooks Wants Social Programs

By Steve Plaisance
Staff Writer

We're going to try to increase unification in Scott by increasing our social programs and making the residence college office a center of activity in the college," said Scott Residence College governor Steve Brooks last week.

Brooks, a junior history major from Siler City, hopes that intensified social programs planned for Scott will help maintain Scott's position "as one of the most active residence colleges on the campus."

"We're also trying to get funding from the RCF so we can have a speaker series in Scott," Brooks explained. "This would be of great benefit to the entire residence college system."

Questionnaires have been sent out to all Scott residents, according to Brooks, concerning their personal preferences for activities and programs in the college. "We're now in the process of working up a list of people in the college interested in taking courses within the residence college," he noted.

Brooks complimented his administrative staff and the Scott senate "for their enthusiasm and willingness to work," and was optimistic about administrative cooperation and success in the coming year.

"We have an excellent orientation program planned for freshman entering Scott next fall," Brooks noted. "We hope that the program will make their adjustment to Scott and the University in general a great deal easier."

The physical layout of Scott College, according to Brooks, is particularly conducive to a strongly unified college.

"Scott is comprised of two boys' dorms and one girls' dorm in the middle—not spread out like some of the other colleges."

Brooks said the administrative offices of Scott officials have been renovated "in order to increase efficiency."

Dr. Friday Attends Meeting With Nixon On Campus Issues

By Mike Parnell
Staff Writer

Consolidated University President William C. Friday and eight other university presidents visited with President Richard Nixon Wednesday and discussed "the major campus issues" in universities around the nation.

Friday said Nixon and the university presidents "had a lively exchange" concerning the importance of campus events to the decision-making processes of government.

The meeting was held Wednesday morning and concluded Friday's three-day stay in the nation's capital.

Friday had been attending the semi-annual meeting of the American Association of University Presidents.

The discussion with Nixon was "a stimulating experience," said Friday. "It was a great opportunity to exchange our views."

The focal point of the meeting was the problem of funding which all colleges and universities are concerned about today.

With the present rate of inflation, funding for student aid, medical education, graduate fellowships and building construction is becoming increasingly difficult, said Friday.

He said he is now "deeply involved in preparation of the budget for the next biennium," 1971-73.

Friday must make a report to the Advisory Budget Council in July concerning the spending for that period.

The three priorities for which money must be obtained are faculty salary increases, new types of programs and construction, said Friday.

However, "I am concerned to keep student costs as low and as reasonable as I can," he said.

"We must never allow the cost of attending the University to become as high as to become a condition of attendance which might discourage people from trying to get in," explained Friday. "The financing of higher education is becoming very difficult to deal with," he said, "and at this stage its not really very encouraging."

UNC tuition rates are being studied by Friday, but he is not sure yet if a rate increase will be needed.

"There have been major increases at most of big state universities around the country," Friday said, and he indicated an increase may eventually be necessary here.

Nixon's Nixed 2 Deferments

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon abolished virtually all future occupational and fatherhood deferments from the draft Thursday, sought authority to induct college students and moved to perfect his four-month-old lottery induction plan.

At the same time, the President announced steps he said would eventually lead to an all-volunteer Army but rejected for economy reasons a proposal by a presidential study commission that conscription be ended by June 30, 1971.

"From now on," Nixon said in a message to Congress, "the objective of this administration is to reduce draft calls to zero, subject to the overriding consideration of national security."

Because of the Vietnam war and other factors, he said, it was impossible to predict whether or precisely when conscription could be ended.

The Pentagon said the draft law should be extended for at least two years, meaning an all-volunteer force would not be created at least before mid-1973. But Nixon said that to start making the armed services more attractive for potential volunteers, he was asking Congress for a 20 percent pay increase for all enlisted men with less than two years' service, effective next Jan. 1.

For a private recruit that would mean a boost from $124.50 a month to $149.40, plus food, housing and other benefits. For a sergeant with less than two years' service, it would mean an increase from $275.40 a month to $330.60. Meanwhile, the President:

Ordered an immediate halt to the granting of all job deferments, including farm work. Young men currently holding such deferments will keep them and those who applied for them before Thursday will be assigned under the old laws.

There are 500,000 persons with these deferments, most of them teachers, policemen and others in community services.

Ordered a similar halt to the granting of all paternity deferments, except in cases where a local board determined that drafting a father would create an extreme hardship on his family. As in the case of job deferments, the elimination of paternity deferments is not retroactive.

Asked Congress to repeal a provision it wrote into the 1967 Selective Service Act that guarantees to every college student a deferment for four years or until he is 24, whichever comes earlier.

Should Congress remove the stricture, Nixon said he would promptly issue an executive order that would bar student deferments except for youths holding them as of April 22, or last Wednesday. Those students would be covered as before.

Students who enter, acquire deferments after April 22—such as those planning to enter college next fall—and are ultimately selected for the draft would be permitted to complete the semester before they are inducted. Students enrolled in ROTC programs could postpone their active military service until after graduation.

Graham New Toronto Honorary Chairman

Frank Porter Graham, first president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, has accepted the position of honorary chairman of the Toronto Exchange for the coming school year.

Dr. Graham, who now lives in Chapel Hill is a former mediator for the United Nations.

The 85-year-old Graham graduated from UNC, where he was student body president in 1909. He received his A.M. degree in 1916 from Columbia University and has since received many honorary degrees from several colleges and universities.

He was the first president of the University and the first president of the Consolidated University from 1930-1949.

He has served as chairman of the National Advisory Council on Social Security and as president of the N.C. Conference for Social Service.

"Doctor Frank," as he is affectionately known, served as a U.S. senator from 1951 to 1957. He was first president of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the N.C. Historical Society.

Applications for the exchange program will be taken in the fall, according to Judy Hippler and Bill Sowers, co-chairmen of the next year's program.

About 30 students will be selected on the basis of interest, enthusiasm and interviews.

Toronto students will visit the UNC campus for several days when Carolina plays Duke in football in the fall. UNC students will travel to Canada over the semester break.
