union activities

The Carolina Union will close its free entertainment series for first Summer Session with the Rondoliers Trio on Wednesday, July 8. The concert will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Great Hall.

Leonard Johnson, tenor, received both his BA and Masters in Music. He has performed with the San Diego Symphony Bruce Fifer is the group's baritone. He was soloist for the Westminster Choir College when he attended school there. Since then he has appeared on extensive tours, including a solo performance at the White House.

Edmond Karlsrud has a record of over 900 professional concert appearances over 48 states Mexico and Canada. He has been described as "a young man with an easy personality and a bass-baritone voice with the depth and polish of a sapphire."

Films for the coming week will be shown twice each Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday night in the Great Hall—at 7:30 and again at 9:30.

Tonight Anton Chekhov's "The Sea Gull" stars Vanessa Redgrave, Simone Signoret, James Mason and David Warner. Chekhov called the play a comedy; most others have found it a wholly Greek tragedy. What it could best be called is life; it always rings true and is really more a tragi-comedy about a girl who lived happy and carefree—like a seagull—until a man chanced along and, having nothing better to do, destroyed her.

"Lord Jim" is the screen adaptation of Conrad's famous novel with Peter O'Toole as the romantic and idealistic young ship's officer. When his long awaited chance to prove himself arises, he acts instead with cowardice, resulting in public disgrace and a life of personal struggle.

"The Gaslight Follies" is a hilarious 4-part collection of early films. It includes newsreel excerpts like the 1905 Miss America contest; clips with Valentino, Mary Pickford, Lon Chaney and others; and a "hiss-the-villain, cheer-the-hero" tear jerker, "The Drunkard." Silent films have music and narrative added.

"Rebecca" stars Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, Judith Anderson and George Sanders in the Hitchcock Academy Award winner adapted from Daphne DuMaurier's novel of a young bride haunted by the memory of her husband's first wife. It is set in a mysterious English manor house—naturally.

BLAND AND CATHERINE Simpson return to Chapel Hill after spending a year in New York. Bland has just finished taping an album which may be released by November. "The final papers haven't been signed yet," he said. "But our producer said things are being taken care of." (Photo by Woody Clark)

Lee Proposes Commission To Friday, Sitterson Today

By Frank Stewart
Staff Writer

Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee plans to present a proposal for a new water distribution system and the establishment of a Town and Gown Commission to University officials today.

Lee meets today with Consolidated University President William Friday and UNC Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson to discuss the proposed changes.

The proposal for water distribution probably in the form of a lease of the distribution system and University lake—come after Lee and the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen met with Governor Robert Scott. They presented their complaints about the University's proposed increase in water rates and the expanded use of the Horce Williams Airport.

Lee said the Governor was in favor of the University divesting itself of all utilities, including water, electricity, and the telephone system. He agreed that the future use of Horace Williams Airport be restricted to University activities.

The rate increase proposed by the University was to insure against another drought like in 1968. Currently the University is building a dam of two feet splash boards as a stop-gap measure to prevent suplus water from draining from the main body of the lake.

Another proposal was to sell the water distribution rights to Durham, but Lee and other townspeople opposed this measure.

The Alderman and Lee have also presented arguments against the expansion of Horace Williams Airport by residents of Estes Hills, Glen Heights, and other communities. He is asking the Alderman to restrict the airport to University use.

Chancellor Sitterson requested the paving for safety purposes, and Gov. Scott also cited the need for safety improvements.

Gov. Scott also favored the establishment of a Town and Gown Commission to resolve other areas of conflict.

The proposal for the creation of the commission stems from the controversy over the University's utilities and use of the airport. The commission, Lee and the Board of Alderman hope, would resolve any future conflicts between the town and the University.

Currently the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen have passed a resolution for the establishment of the commission and the mayor will present the proposal to the Chancellor and the President. Friday will present this resolution and their recommendations to the UNC Board of Trustees.

Actors Conduct Workshop

The participants of Voices, Inc. will present a workshop on "Black Awareness and Thought" on Tuesday, July 7, following their performance of "The Beauty of Blackness" Monday.

The 2 p.m. workshop will be open to anyone interested in the theater and black culture, according to promoters at the YM-YWCA.

Those who attend the workshop are asked to attend the Monday night performance in Memorial Hall. The session will cover black language and music.

There will be two performances of the "Beauty of Blackness," both of which will be free to students.
