

New Magazine Contains Poetry, Prose

A new literary magazine is scheduled to appear on August 1. All summer school students, faculty members and residents of Chapel Hill are invited to submit manuscripts. The title of the magazine will be The Chapel Hill Summer Review.

The Chapel Hill Summer Review is intended to be an only edition, published once to give everyone an opportunity to express themselves creatively during the summer months. It will be sponsored by a Student Government grant, and edited by Peter M. Brown.

Brown said, "The Review will be a magazine containing fiction, poetry, and essays by students and summer residents in the area who are looking for a place to publish good writing."

He added, "As an incentive to hesitant future authors, we will offer a cash honorarium in each division for the best work we publish. We welcome work from anyone, and only ask that it be good."

All manuscripts will be read carefully and considered, but for manuscripts to be returned, authors must include a self addressed envelope. Manuscripts should be sent to The Chapel Hill Summer Review, Box 47, Carolina Student Union, before July 20—the sooner the better.

The Chapel Hill Summer Review office will be in 269-A of the Carolina Student Union, and anyone with questions should call 933-1157.

Brown emphasized that the magazine is not representative of any particular group on campus, and he hopes that submissions will come from people of varying age groups and different interests.

The magazine will be limited to 100 pages, so everything won't be published. Brown said the staff would particularly welcome good impressions of the recent spring strike.

Ben and Pardner shared everything—the gold, the laughs, the songs... even their wife!

Sheps Named To Committee

Dr. Cecil G. Sheps of the University faculty has been chosen for membership on the Committee on Problems of Drug Dependence of the National Research Council, National Academy of Sciences and Engineering.

The committee provides a forum for the discussion of the new findings of investigators doing research in drugs. It also has an advisory relationship to various agencies that have responsibilities in the area of drug dependency.

Dr. Sheps is director of the University's Health Services Research Center and professor of preventive medicine in the School of Medicine.

While he was general director of the Beth Israel Medical Center in New York City, he made the administrative arrangements for a large-scale demonstration of the methadone maintenance program.

In view of the rapid changes that have been taking place in drugs during the recent years, the committee will also be considering the main directions of its program and future responsibilities.

Chorus Performs Tonight

The Department of Music will present the first term Summer Chorus Thursday evening, July 9, at 8:15 in Hill Hall. The concert is open to the public without charge.

Robert T. Allen, a member of the UNC faculty at Greensboro, will direct the group composed of 48 selected members of the Carolina Choir and the University Chamber Singers.

Soloists are Kirsten Falke, soprano; Stephanie Melvin, alto; Stafford Wing, tenor; and Robert Daniel, baritone.

The program will feature Bach's Cantata 195, "Herr, gehe nicht ins Gericht" (Lord, enter not into judgment), with orchestra; four Brahms songs; the Schumann Carols of Death (settings of poetry by Walt Whitman); and the opening movement from the polychoral Bach motet, "Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied" (Sing to the Lord a new song)
