McCauley Singled Out

by Al Thomas
Special to the DTH

Flashy running back Don McCauley and defensive tackle Flip Ray were singled out by Carolina coaches and DTH sports writers for their play in the Tar Heels' impressive 20-10 win over Kentucky last week.

McCauley was chosen Carolina Back-of-the-Week while Ray was chosen Tar Heels' Lineman-of-the-Week.

McCauley, the Atlantic Coast Conference's Player of the Year in 1969, blasted his way through a determined Kentucky line for 160 yards rushing and one touchdown. He carried the ball 28 times without ever losing yardage on a run.

The 211 lb. senior from Garden City, N. Y., received another honor earlier in the week—being picked by ACC sportswriters as the conference's Back-of-the-Week. It was the third time in the last 11 games McCauley picked up the ACC honor.

Besides doing the bulk of the Tar Heels' rushing and scoring a touchdown, McCauley ran interference during Lewis Jolley's touchdown gallop, blocking the only man between Jolley and the goal line.

McCauley also punted for Carolina, averaging 40.3 yards a punt on four kicks.

Ray, a hulking 245 lb. senior from Fort Mill, S. C., led a strong Carolina defense that stopped Kentucky cold in the second half.

Ray repeatedly made crucial third down tackles, forcing several Wildcat drives to a halt.

The Tar Heel defense, with Ray leading the way, kept the Wildcats scoreless in the second half. Kentucky's first half touchdown and field goal came only after the Tar Heels' fumbled and had a pass intercepted in their own territory.

Kentucky managed 143 yards rushing and 108 yards passing.

McCauley and Ray were honored by their coaches and teammates at the weekly Tar Heel football luncheon.

The Lineman-of-the Week and Back-of-the-Week awards were initiated during last season with the Carolina coaching staff and Daily Tar Heel sports writers doing the voting.
