Area Flicks: Good, Bad And Indifferent

by Scott Langley Staff Writer Note: Due to DTH advertising procedure, this fall's motion picture previews will not run the names of theatres. Check the DTH ads for theatres and times.

"MASH"-Certainly one of the most brilliant movies of all time. It carries the improvisational style of acting to Everest-like heights, and barbs with its goony, insane humor everything from the army to Russ Meyer-type skin flicks. There is an especially notable performance by Sally Kellerman.

"Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice"-A brilliant flick just about goes for naught because of the inadequate pacing of the director and the clumpy, leaden acting of Robert Culp and Natalie Wood. Dyan Cannon and Elliot Gould are wonderful and afford a lot of fun in their scenes, but they can't completely salvage the picture.

"The Boys in the Band"-This movie ranks along with "Marat/Sade" as the best adaption from stage to screen ever. Every nuance of Mart Crowley's brilliant script is fully explored and realized. Acting, editing, directing, lighting are all of the highest quality. A fantastic achievement, don't miss it.

"Gass-s-s-s"-A film that looks like a satire. The fact that it is from American-International may say

"The Grasshopper"-The script for this one is rather weak and very episodic, but each episode has been interestingly directed in a variety of styles by Jerry Paris, who shows great promise. There is a terrible performance by Jim Brown, and a good one by Jacqueline Bisset. Doesn't quite jell, but worthwhile.

"Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin in the Bronx''-Gene Wilder in a fantasy-comedy that got posies from the "Hello Dolly"-Barbra Streisand is miscast, the choreography is often poor and under-rehearsed, the lesser players over-act, and what is basically just a piece of fluff has been given a gargantuan overproduction. It's still a fairly pleasant way to waste your time, but it's much inferior to the stage version. If you want to see it, see it now, in Greensboro, while it's playing in 70 mm.

"Hotel"-a movie of the book by Arthur Hailey, who wrote "Airport." Most reviewers find it pretty grubby.

"Woodstock"-As John Sebastian said, this is the mind-blower of all time. The best editing ever captures fully the rhythm, drive and magic of the music in some incredibly beautiful images. Exhaustion may set in, but that too is part of the effect. The film's only major flaw is that as a documentary, it makes no real effort to explain why things were so special. The mono prints circulating

"Watermelon Man" - A white businessman turns black. Some critics thought it funny but most thought it a pretty sloppy film.

"Patton"-This movie has a split personality. One part is a character study of a fascinating man, intelligently and impartially scripted, and well played by George C. Scott. Unfortunately, the other part is a mediocre war movie, poorly written and acted, and filled with spectacle for spectacle's sake. Still, it's well worth seeing for the character study.

now are just as effective as the stereo. "The People Next Door"-Every dreary despite the loss of some channels in a few clicke about drugs, etc.-pro and con-is dragged out to assault the ears. The messages are overstated and the characters are overdrawn. Furthermore, the film is ugly and depressing and finishes off with a cop-out ending.

> "The Bird with the Crystal Plumage"-A so-so thriller. It's dubbed and filled with laughable acting and writing, but the suspense portions, done as set pieces and mostly stolen from Hitchcock, will probably raise a few goose bumps.

Our rule of thumb in selecting for Schizophrenia is that the item must be pulsating, different, and irrestible. Another important consideration is that only a few items in each style be selected, so you can build a fashion wardrobe based on exclusiveness, but with a modes investment.
