

Scott Langley Better Flicks Are Coming To The Hill

The announcement of two new theatres opening here in the near future is rather puzzling. The theatre managers seem to have already run out of available features to book. Instead, they have brought the same movies back several times, and alternated this with atrocious trash. Since the new theatres will be under the same management as a downtown theatre there is little hope of improvement.

But there is some hope of a choice against "Female Animal" and the fifth re-run of "Mash." Maggie Dent, manager of the now-defunct Rialto in Durham, has opened a Cinematheque at the Blue Angle. Taking her cue from such New York theatres as the Elgin and New Yorker, she will present classic films of both the American and foreign screen. All films will be presented in their original versions when possible.

On Monday night, there will be a Russian film festival. Great works by Pudovkin and others will be presented.

On Tuesdays, silent films, including

Campus Calendar

The Umstead Volunteer Committee will meet Thursday, Oct. 1, at 8:30 in the Union. The program consists of work with mental patients at the Umstead Center. All interested persons are urged to attend.

All women are invited to attend a Female Liberation meeting Wednesday, Sept. 30, at 8 p.m. in the Union.

There will be a meeting of the Student Party tonight at 9:15 in room 207 of the Union. All members and prospective members are invited.

The UNC Young Republican Club will meet Wednesday in the Union at 7:30 p.m. Bethel M. Sparks, professor of law at Duke University, will speak.

The Conservative Society will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Union. Kent Gardner, graduate instructor in political science, will speak.

FOUND—men's brown frame glasses in 104 Greenlaw. Call M. Little, 933-2678, 1832 Granville.

LOST—five month old dog answering to "Buddy." Has black rings under both eyes, resembles small collie. Call 967-3684.

some by D.W. Griffith and Erich von Stroheim, will be shown.

On Wednesdays and Thursdays, a mixed bag of films from all over the world will be shown, including some by Renoir, Polanski, etc.

The real pride of the Cinematheque will come on Friday and Saturday nights, with an Ingmar Bergman film festival. Eighteen of his films will be shown and the others will be ordered if there is enough interest.

Tickets for the programs will only be sold in blocks of five, good for any five films in all of the series. The Russian and silent films will be shown one night only, while the other films will run for two consecutive nights. Shows will be at seven and nine.

For only a dollar, one can be assured of a satisfying motion picture. If this venture works out, Maggie Dent will most likely open a theatre here specializing in foreign films. It is to be hoped that the students and people of Chapel Hill will take advantage of this great opportunity.

LOST—brown, handstitched shoulder bag with horseshoe on the front. If found, return to Pam Martell at Stu's Leather Works above Harry's. Reward.

LOST—since Aug. 24. Two year old male white husky. No tags. Reward for information leading to his return. 942-5272.

FOUND—men's tortoise shell glasses. Found at Ehringhaus tennis courts Thursday night. Call 933-3170.

Wednesday Marks Jewish New Year

The Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashana) begins Wednesday at sunset, Sept. 30. It marks one of the two most sacred holy days of the Jewish faith and ushers in the Ten Days of Penitence or Repentance when Jews reaffirm their faith, examine their past conduct and pray for forgiveness.

The most important symbol of Rosh Hashana is the Shofar, or ram's horn, which is sounded during the synagogue worship. The Shofar is blown to reawaken the worshipper's responsibility to God and to man and call him to sincere repentance.

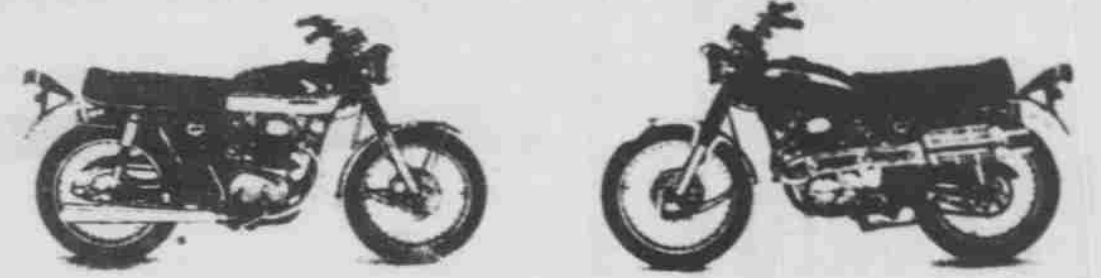

It is a time for Jews to sit in self-judgment and repent of misdeeds, and to pledge themselves to perform good works in the year ahead. Rosh Hashana is also "the birthday of the world"—the anniversary of Creation—when the Jew in his prayers looks to the day when "all men shall come to serve the Lord" in peace and justice.

Rosh Hashana falls on a different date each year due to the use of a lunar calendar. The lunar calendar has retained since biblical times for use in determining holy days. Reform Jews celebrate Rosh Hashana for one day; Orthodox and Conservative Jews continue to observe two equally holy days, as has been the custom since the first century.

Rosh Hashana services in the area will be held at Hillel House, 210 W. Cameron Ave. Sept. 30 through Oct. 1 at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m., and on Oct. 2 at 11 a.m.; Judea Reform Congregation at Community Church on Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. and Oct. 1 at 10 a.m.; Beth El (conservative) Congregation, Watts and Markham in Durham on Sept. 30 at 6:30 p.m., Oct. 1 at 7:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. and Oct. 2 at 7:45 a.m.
