

Meeting Set For Early October

Trustees Accept Policy Talks

by Bob Chapman
and
Lou Bonds
Staff Writers

The Trustee Consultative Committee has tentatively set a meeting to discuss the visitation issue on Oct. 11 or 12.

Student Body President Tom Bello said Wednesday he had talked with the head of the trustee committee, William A. Dees of Goldsboro, and had been informed of the tentative dates for the meeting.

The meeting, first proposed by Bello in a letter to Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey last week, was endorsed by University Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson Wednesday.

In other action concerning the visitation controversy, Dean of Men Fred Schroeder said a hearing will be held soon for the alleged violator of the administration policy.

Schroeder would not release the name of the violator but said he is a resident of fourth floor Hinton James dormitory. The student was charged with violating the administration visitation policy two weeks ago.

The case will be heard by a three man person faculty-administrative judicial board, Schroeder said.

He said this is a special board set up by the administration for certain cases. This board will follow the same procedures of conduct as the Faculty-Administrative-Student Judicial Board.

The reason the tri-partite board will not conduct the hearing, said the dean of men, is because of student legislature's stand against the administration policy. Schroeder said this procedure was used last year for drug cases after student legislature refused to allow student courts to hear the cases.

Consolidated University President William C. Friday had reported Tuesday that he thought the idea of calling a meeting of the trustee committee was a good one. He said then he would talk to Dees about calling a meeting.

All that remained was for the chancellor to pass on his endorsement of the proposal. This was done and announced by University Vice President Ferebee Taylor Wednesday.

The proposal was passed on from Friday to Dees, who seemed agreeable to the idea.

Bello said he would meet soon with representatives of the three houses that have accepted the student legislature visitation policy which allows 24 hour, seven day visitation.

The three are Carr dormitory, the fourth floor of Hinton James dormitory and Project Hinton.

Bello said he wanted to meet with the representatives to draft "a good, understandable memorandum" for the trustees' committee.

The advisory Trustee Consultative Committee is composed of student body presidents and faculty members from the six campuses of the consolidated university and university trustees.

The committee met last spring and during the summer to make changes in the University Disruptions Policy.

The dispute concerning the Open House Agreement began when the three residence houses passed policies deemed unacceptable by the administration.

The Student Legislature last week voted to support self-determination, even when it conflicts with administration policy.

State To File Suit For Water Payment

The State of North Carolina will file suit sometime next week in an effort to collect the town of Carrboro's unpaid water bill.

Carrboro has been refusing since mid-summer to pay a 70-cent per 1,000 gallons water rate increase announced by the University last spring. The money, which normally would have been used to pay the increase, has been put in escrow since the rate increase became effective July 1.

At that time, the Carrboro Board of Aldermen voted unanimously to pay for water at the former rate of 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Neither University nor state officials could be reached for comment late Wednesday afternoon.

Carrboro Town Manager Bill Britt said the town welcomed court action by the state.

"We think we have sufficient evidence to prove discrimination against Carrboro in the exorbitant rate increase," he said.

Town attorney Bill Staton said in July, following the board of aldermen's vote not to pay the increase, that the town's position is "without legal precedent" in the state.

"Most public utilities are accountable to a regulatory body," he said, "but the University is not. The basic question is whether a corporate body like the University can act with unbridled discretion in an area of public concern."

The 140 per cent increase in water rates is necessary, according to University officials, to raise extra revenues to finance from $5.8 to $10.3 million in improvements and expansion of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro-University water supply at University Lake and to meet an anticipated operating deficit of $218,145 during the 1970-71 fiscal year.

The rate increase which forced many local realtors to raise rents, will produce an estimated $636,000 in revenues this fiscal year. That money will be used to finance planning and initial development of the improvements in the water system.

In a statement released with the announcement of the rate increase the University said, "The increasing population growth now and projected for the future reflects an urgent need for a greatly expanded water system."

"The primary objective, therefore, is to enlarge the over-all water facilities, including the provision of a new water system and filtration plant," the statement continued. "Intensive studies undertaken after the severe drought of 1968 highlighted the necessity for such action."

The statement was referring to an addition to the dam at University Lake which was recently completed and to the construction of an emergency pipeline from Durham which is presently pumping two million gallons of water daily into the local system at a cost of about $6,000 per week.

Librarians Find Home In Manning

by Mark Perryman
Staff Writer

Manning Hall, focal point of the 1969 Food Workers' Strike, now serves as home of the School of Library Science. Built in 1922 to house the UNC Law School, Manning was abandoned in 1968 when the new law building was completed.

During the spring semester of 1969, Manning was the setting for meetings of striking workers and members of the Black Student Movement. For several weeks it housed a Soul Food cafeteria in support of the workers.

Under orders of Gov. Robert Scott, Manning was vacated in late March, 1968, because it was considered a safety and health hazard. Officials also objected to obscenities blaring from a loudspeaker outside the hall and rumors that weapons were being transported into the building. More than 100 highway patrolmen were sent onto campus and the building was vacated peacefully.

After evacuation by the strikers, Manning remained empty until the School of Library Science moved in this fall.

The University appropriated $560,000 for renovation of the facility.

The move to Manning greatly increased the space of the Library School, formerly located on the fourth floor of Wilson Library.

The new quarters afford the Library School space to house a special children's book collection and an audio-visual laboratory, in addition to regular offices, classrooms and a 60,000-volume library.

Dr. Ray L. Carpenter, acting dean of the Library School, commented that because of the move, "We are now much better equipped to maintain and strengthen an already well-established position in the field."

UNC Cheerleader Bernie Oakley excites Carolina fans in more ways than one. The alumni are really screaming. (Staff photo by John Gellman)

Oakley Supported By Cheerleaders

by Karen Jurgensen
Staff Writer

The UNC Cheerleaders voted 12-0 Tuesday night to adopt a by-law which states that hair must be clean and neat but must not get in the way or detract from the cheerleader's performance.

No specifications about length are included.

The issue of hair length was raised by alumni after the Carolina-State football game. Several alumni objected to the length of cheerleader Bernie Oakley's hair.

Oakley refused to cut his hair and with this new by-law cheerleaders have indicated that they support him.

Oakley said, "The situation is similar to that of the student legislature with its visitation policy at odds with the administration policy. The question is, are the students going to be allowed to decide for themselves purely personal matters?"

Complaints about Oakley's hair were made to Athletic Director Homer Rice who relayed them to the cheerleaders. The Athletic Association is now responsible for the cheering squad. In previous years the squad was supported by student legislature. This is the squad's first full year under the Association.

"This will be a year of a lot of trials and tribulations for the cheerleaders," Rice said. "I'll stand by them. I will not interfere with or make their decisions. I just want to make them aware of both sides."

"I'd hate to see a young man like Bernie put into a controversial position. I hope it doesn't cause him a lot of problems," Rice said.

"I don't want to make a big thing out of it because I think it'll work itself out," Rice concluded.

DTD Now A Social Frat

The Alpha Lambda chapter of Delta Sigma Pi has changed from a business fraternity to a social fraternity by affiliating with the national organization Delta Tau Delta.

The chapter changed so it could compete more effectively with other campus fraternities, according to Ron Romeis, senior vice president.

"Our image has always been one of a social fraternity," explained Romeis. "The change from a national business fraternity to a social one only made our image official. The only real difference now is in our name."

The move was made in August. The 37 brothers had discussed the proposal for three months.

"The Alpha Lambda chapter has served UNC for 45 years," said Bill Rodgers, secretary. "But for the last 15 years, Delta Sigma Pi has not been performing as a professional fraternity. We have been social in all aspects, such as house living, etc."

"The national fraternity discouraged these aspects," he added. "So we decided to disaffiliate."

Delta Tau Delta is a member of Inter-Fraternity Council and enjoys all the privileges Delta Sigma Pi had.

"We are looking forward to a good rush," said Romeis. "We have a full schedule of fall activities."

Delta Tau Delta also is considering buying or building a new house. Concrete results are expected this year.

"We prefer a location close to the present one, on 111 Pickard Lane, next to the TEP house," said Romeis.

The Gamma Omega chapter of Delta Tau Delta was established at UNC in 1921. It disbanded in the spring of 1939 due to financial problems and the onset of World War II.

UNC alumni of Delta Sigma Pi are now alumni of Delta Tau Delta.

Fraternity Plans Fire Fund

Lambda chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity has announced plans for a "Phi Kap Fire Fund" which will begin October 9.

The campaign will hopefully raise $300,000 to replace the fraternity house, which was destroyed by fire last December.

The projected $300,000 figure represents the cost of replacing the house with a three and one-half story building including a study room, game room and suite system. This money is to be raised from alumni who may pledge their funds over a three year period.

Activities planned for the 80 alumni expected to attend the kickoff meeting include a Friday night dinner party and a reception on the lawn of the burned-out Phi Kap house following Saturday's game between UNC and South Carolina.

The alumni who attend the October 9 weekend are to return to their respective areas and collect from former Phi Kap members there. On November 21, the campaign will draw to a close with 300 to 400 former members attending the UNC-Duke game.

With the promised funds as collateral, the fraternity plans to start construction on the house this fall and hopes that it will be finished by the start of the 1971 school year.

No Hot Water

Hot water will be turned off in 10 dormitories for several hours today, while repairs are made on the main line.

Robert Kepner, director of residence life, said hot water will be turned off in Spencer, Alderman, McIver, Kenan, Old East, Old West, Manly, Mangum, Ruffin and Grimes from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Joe Beard, Gerry Cohen, and Alan Hirsch (l. to r.) at the meeting of the Student Party Tuesday night. The party passed an amendment which stymied a conservative takeover. See related story, page 2. (Staff photo by John Gellman)