

'TNT' Premieres Tonight

Season's First Playmakers Production

"If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away."

These words were spoken by Henry David Thoreau, a man of unswerving principle and personal courage. His story as a war resister, an individual against the Establishment, will be recounted tonight at the Playmakers' Theatre in "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail."

The Playmakers production marks the Southern premiere of "TNT," as "Thoreau" has been nicknamed. Authors Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee ("Inherit the Wind," "Mame") have released their work through American Playwrights Theatre for off-Broadway performances exclusively.

The plot centers around Thoreau as a critic of the Mexican-American War, at which time he refuses to pay a $2 war tax and is imprisoned. During the night, he draws on past memories: a refusal to pay for his Harvard diploma; rebellion against a school board over an issue of corporal punishment; guidance for a run-away slave to freedom; astonishment for the narrow minded world surrounding him. Thoreau's philosophy and actions may be history, but the situations are from 1970.

Speaking on his life, Lawrence and Lee say, "He smelled the smog before we saw it. It smarted his soul before it smarted our eyes. He was the explosive spirit who addressed himself to the perils of our time with more power and clarity than most angry young men writing about now."

The challenging task of playing Henry David Thoreau has fallen to Malcolm Groome, a BFA Dramatic Art senior at UNC. Leading roles such as Thoreau are not new to Groome. He appeared last year as Cockey in the Carolina Union production of "The Roar of the Greasepaint—the Smell of the Crowd."

This summer he appeared in the demanding role of Dionysus in "Dionysus Wants You," a new rock musical at the Folger Library Theatre in Washington, D.C. He has appeared at the Carolina Playmakers in productions of "The Apple Tree," "Amen to a Mantis," "Dracula" and "Tartuffe."

Others in the cast include Phillip Whitehill as Ralph Waldo Emerson, Debbie Bloodworth as Lydian Emerson, Skip Lefler as John Thoreau, Jean Spearman as Mrs. Thoreau, Homer Foil as Bailey, Joel Ballard as Edward Emerson, Elliott Moffitt as Williams, Don Dalton as Sam Staples, and Mitch Douglas as Decon Ball.

In addition to evening performances at 8:00 p.m. there is a Sunday matinee at 2:30 p.m. All performances start promptly at the announced time.

Tickets are available at the Playmakers Business Office in Graham Memorial Building on the UNC-Chapel Hill campus or at Ledbetter-Pickard in downtown Chapel Hill. Telephone reservations may be made by calling 933-1121.

Karate Demonstration

The Carolina Self-Defense League will be sponsoring a demonstration of karate in the Union in Room 207 on October 20 at 7:30 p.m. It will be given by Mr. Bill McFadden, 1st dan, and members of one of his classes. Mr. McFadden received his belt under Mr. Guansu Shon, 5th dan, in Medlin, Columbia. While a Rotary International Fellow in England, he was the instructor of the University College team which won the London University Championship.

club exclusively for UNC students, men and women.

Karate is simply a system of physical training based on sound physiological principles. It has developed into a competitive sport and involves punches, blocks, kicks and forms or pre-arranged movement patterns. Students then go on to free-sparring. It is good for over all exercise, discipline and control.

Shown at the demonstration will be defense against knife and club, pistol, choke holds and more than one opponent. Three high school girls will demonstrate women's self-defense and will break roof tiles with double front kicks.
