IFC Re-endorses Self-Determination

by Jessica Hanchar
Staff Writer

The Inter Fraternity Council (IFC) has re-endorsed a resolution supporting self-determination visitation which was previously endorsed last spring.

The resolution states, "We do unanimously re-endorse our resolution of March 2, 1970, supporting the Student Government's stand on a self-determined visitation policy."

IFC was one of the first organized campus groups to support a self-determination visitation policy. It passed the resolution soon after Student Legislature adopted its stand last spring. The resolution was also passed unanimously last year.

"Many people thought IFC was just sitting back and not taking a stand on the issue," said Pete Hall, president. "We want people to realize we took a stand long before many other groups did."

Presently, all fraternities except two have passed the maximum Open House policy allowed by the University administration. The two who have a "no visitation" policy also did not vote for visitation last year.

Most fraternities have considered adopting a self-determination policy but none have done so yet.

"I doubt any fraternity would want seven-day-a-week, 24-hour visitation for itself, but all fraternities are strongly behind the idea of determining what they do get," said Hall.

If any fraternities adopted self-determination under the present policy, they would come under the same jurisdiction as a dormitory that adopted self-determination, according to Dick said Yack editor Joe Mitchiner Wednesday.

"There will be no color pictures in the 1971 Yack if the budget cuts proposed last week by (Student Body President) Tom Bello are approved by Student Legislature," said Mitchiner.

Mitchiner also lashed out at the uses to which the funds taken from the Yack are to be put.

The budget cuts will, in essence, reduce the size of the Yack by one-half, with corresponding 50 per cent reductions in the number of pages in almost every section which had been planned for the book. Some sections will probably have to be eliminated if the cuts are made, Mitchiner said.

For example, Mitchiner said, the fraternity and sorority section and the residence college section will each have to be slashed from 36 to 18 pages.

"This means I'm going to have to renege on some agreements that have already been made with these groups," he said.

Recruiting

The following companies will recruit on the UNC campus during the week of Nov. 2-6:

Monday—Central Carolina Bank and Trust Co.; Texaco.

Tuesday—Southern Bell; Consortium for Graduate Study in Business for Negroes; Hartford Hospital; Cone Mills Corporation; Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

Wednesday—Southern Bell; Westvaco Corporation; Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation.

Thursday—State Farm Insurance; Allstate Insurance; Branch Banking & Trust Company; Carolina Telephone and Telegraph; Tennessee Eastman Company; Texfi Industries.

Friday—Washington & Lee University; Fireman's Fund American Insurance; Emory University Graduate School of Business Administration; American Enka.

Tickets Going

Only 417 tickets remained for the second Chicago concert Wednesday night. Ticket sales will begin at 10:00 a.m. today for the concert, to be given at 11:15 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets for the first concert, to be given by the rock group at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, sold out less than six hours after they went on sale last week.

The athletics section which had already been planned for the Yack was to consist of 48 pages. This section will have to be cut to approximately 20 pages for coverage of all the sport activities on campus, said Mitchiner.

The section which is to be devoted to activities on campus—such as the Union, the YW-YMCA, Jubilee and others—will be only 32 pages as opposed to the 48 pages originally assigned to it.

"Also remember that this means that there will be no color pictures of Jubilee or any concerts in the Yack," Mitchiner added.

The problem the Yack faces in regard to the proposed budget cuts is basically two-fold, explained Mitchiner.

First, the Yack has a certain amount of irreducible overhead expenses, he said, approximately $11,000 in all, plus the fact that 75 pages and $7,000 are already committed to the "mug shots" section for which the contract has already been signed.

The second major difficulty facing the Yack staff is that cutting the budget reduces the number of pages the Yack can have, since printing costs are a major portion of the expense of the Yack. This, in turn, leads to a reduction in the number of pages for which the yack receives income such as the fraternity and sorority section, the residence college section and the athletic section.

If the budget cut of almost $26,000 is approved, the Yack will be produced on a total budget of $41,811.12, instead of the $67,790 the Yack requested and received approval for last spring from the Student Legislature.

The budget cuts will also affect the Yack in the following ways, according to Mitchiner:

The amount of money allotted for the cover of the Yack will drop from $6,000 to $3,000 or about 25 cents a cover—"just enough for a paper cover," he said.

The actual printing cost will have to be cut from $52,000 to $29,000; but considering that $7,000 of this money is already committed to the mug shot section, the cut actually amounts to more than a 50 per cent reduction.

The total number of pages in the finished product will have to be cut from the 400 which were planned to a total of only 235. This is in contrast to the 504 pages of the 1970 Yack.

There will be no girl or beauty section in the Yack at all.

"I explained in a column in the Tar Heel last week that we were completely changing the section but now all the work that had gone into that revision might have to be wasted," Mitchiner complained.

Bello proposed two weeks ago to make the cut of $26,000 from the Yack and reallocate the money to other services. Among these services are funds for a black counselor, a draft counseling service, health education service, a student government-hired teacher service and scholarships for needy students.

"How many students are going to take courses, not accredited by the University which are taught by the one teacher the $11,000 is supposed to hire?" Mitchiner said, discussing one of the proposed reallocations of the $26,000.

Commenting on the proposed $6,000 allocation for a black students counselor, Mitchiner said:

"There's already a black counselor paid by the administration. If he's not doing an effective job, he can be replaced and it won't cost the students anything."

On the proposal for a scholarship to be funded from the funds to be cut from the Yack, he commented,

"I really don't think the students should judge the financial situation of another student."

Independents To Run For Jr. Class Office

A slate of independent candidates for junior class officers has turned in the required number of signatures on petitions to be placed on the ballot for the campus elections Nov. 17.

Lee Hood Caps, a journalism and political science major from Kinston, N.C., heads the ticket as the candidate for president. Cecil Miller is the vice presidential candidate from Colerain, N.C. and is a political science major.

Running for the position of secretary of the class of 1972 is Nadine Baddour, from Laurinburg, N.C. A transfer this year from Peace College, she is studying psychology. The independent candidate for treasurer of the slate is Billy Latham, who is concentrating his studies in economics. He lives in Clarkton, N.C.

The major emphasis of the candidacy of the slate is "the alleviation of forced University housing for junior transfer students," according to their qualifying petitions.

"With issue-oriented politics, the class officers can provide the necessary leverage to get particular problems solved," Caps said.

He went on to emphasize that it is ridiculous to force students who range from 19 to 21 years in age and have had at least two years of college experience to live in dorms for a year.

Caps is a member of the Chancellor's Committee on State Affairs and of the Inter-fraternity Council court. He is also an officer in the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Miller has been a member of the Student Legislature and is currently a resident advisor in James Dormitory. He currently serves as the chairman of the Board of Academic Lt. Governors and was inducted into the Society of Janus last spring.

Miss Baddour was active at Peace College as a cheerleader and as a member of the annual and newspaper staffs. She recently pledged the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Latham is a member of Chi Phi fraternity and serves as treasurer of that organization.
