

Morrow: No Comment On Dean

by Bill Pope
Staff Writer

Provost J.C. Morrow refused Wednesday to comment on the charges raised against him in a report issued by "concerned" faculty of the School of Social Work.

"I have no comment on the document," said Morrow of the report which says his decision not to rehire C.

Wilson Anderson as dean of the School of Social Work is "irreversible."

Morrow allegedly told Anderson on June 30 he would not be rehired to a second five-year term as dean of the school.

Anderson says he was informed verbally by Morrow that he would not be rehired but refused Wednesday to comment further on the matter.

Morrow maintains he has not made a recommendation. "I can't tell you when that (the recommendation) will transpire," Morrow said Wednesday. "My replies go to the Chancellor."

Asked whether he informed Anderson orally on June 30 that the dean will not be recommended for a second term, Morrow said "no comment."

Morrow said Wednesday that he has completed his interviews with Social Work faculty members.

Asked about his alleged remarks to the faculty members concerning Anderson, Morrow said "no comment."

"The conferences I had with faculty members are confidential," he said.

Asked about the usual duration for making his recommendation to the chancellor, Morrow said that "it varies with the situation...you can't ever tell."

According to the report, Morrow said in the July 7 meeting with five faculty members of the Social Work school that he had "deliberated for a year" and would not recommend Anderson for a second five-year term.

Morrow allegedly told the five faculty members, the report said, that there is "a considerable lack of confidence in Dean Anderson on the part of the Board of Trustees and the administration and this had reduced the effectiveness of the Dean."

The report states that Morrow told Social Work faculty members in individual conferences from July 7 to Oct. 13 that he had made his decision not to recommend Anderson for reappointment and asked the faculty to "discuss potential candidates for the Deanship."

The document adds that most of the faculty refused to discuss the selection of new candidates for dean.

The document, which lists the "actions regarding the deanship," has been sent to the members of the faculty council, department chairman, deans of professional schools, the Chancellor's Advisory Committee and the administrative board of the School of Social Work.

J.C. Morrow

Thursy Tar Heel

Years Of Editorial Freedom

Volume 78, Number 50

Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Thursday, November 12, 1970

Founded February 23, 1893

Heel Howl Set For 2nd Year

by Chris Cobbs
Sports Editor

The second annual "Heel Howl," scheduled Thursday, Nov. 19 in Carmichael Auditorium, will serve as the gateway to Duke weekend festivities, according to Art Chansky, organizer of the event.

Chansky, who originated the Howl last year while serving as Daily Tar Heel sports editor, announced that all proceeds from the event will go to the Carolina Opportunities Fund, a division of the Student Aid Office.

Tickets are on sale daily at Carolina Union and will also be available at the door. Admission is $1 for students and faculty.

Former Tar Heel football greats Charlie Justice, Art Weiner and George Barclay will be present, while Gayle Bomar and Danny Talbott are also tentatively set to appear, said Chansky.

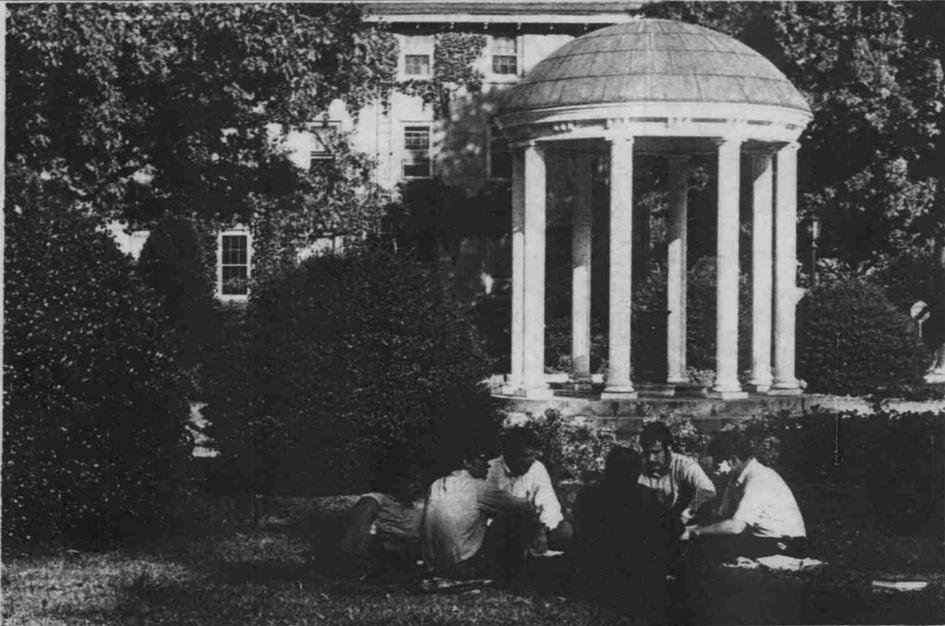

They will make brief remarks, as will Coach Bill Dooley and senior football players.

Former cheerleader Charlie Stancell, who made a big hit at Carolina's Homecoming game with Virginia two weeks ago, will be on hand to lead cheers again, Chansky added. Billy Arthur, Kay Kyser and Vic Huggins, other ex-cheerleaders, will also be present.

Entertainment will be provided by the Union Activities Board and the Tar Heel pep band will lend additional support, said Chansky, who is now sports editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly.

A presentation will also be made to tailback Don McCauley, the senior All-America candidate who has broken numerous school and Atlantic Coast Conference rushing records this year. Many of those marks were held previously by Justice, star of the late 1940's.

The Howl, founded as a sort of "super pep rally," will serve as a prelude to the Beat Duke parade, Chansky pointed out. It will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Soon there won't be any warm days left to sit on the grass in shirt sleeves and toss the bull. Winter jackets are coming out of moth balls and the bull sessions will have to be moved inside to dorm rooms and the restaurants downtown. (Staff photo by John Gellman)

SL Meeting To Consider Finance Bills

by Lou Bonds
Staff Writer

Presidential appointments and finance bills will headline legislative business in tonight's Student Legislature (SL) session.

The appointment of Lee Meyrowitz to the Student Supreme Court was to be considered by the Ways and Means Committee Wednesday night.

Meyrowitz, a senior political science major from Durham, was appointed last week by Student Body President Tom Bello.

Meyrowitz is the second of three judicial appointments to be made by Bello. The appointment of David Wynne to the Court was ratified by last Thursday's SL meeting and filled the third of five Supreme Court Justice appointments.

The Ways and Means Committee was also scheduled to consider the appointment of Mike Almond to the Publications Board.

Almond is a senior political science major from Pilot Mountain, N.C.

The Finance Committee met Wednesday and passed out four finance bills favorable.

A bill to add categories to the Student Government's administration budget would provide funds to cover Montreat Conference expenses of 40 UNC student representatives incurred at the leadership conference in October.

The bill does not specify a fixed amount of money but estimations drawn from Bello's $25,000 budget reallocation proposal made earlier this year could set the figure at $800.

According to Finance Committee Chairman Robert Grady, the administration has paid approximately $2,000 of the Orientation Commission's picnic and program expenses incurred Sept. 12 and 14.

The orientation program was to be paid on a 50-50 basis between the administration and Student Government.

Student Legislature froze the commission funds when late orientation expense requisitions were submitted to the Finance Committee. The committee claimed the Orientation Commission to be in violation of the requisition system in payment of their debts.

Last week, SL passed a bill unfreezing the commission's funds and agreeing to pay half the orientation expenses upon payment of the administration's half.

A bill to reallocate the funds remaining in the WCAR radio station's budget would allow funds collected as profit last year to revert to this year's WCAR budget.

A bill to adjust the budget of the UNC Debate Team would allow all outside revenues collected by the organization to be placed in their travel fund.

Discrimination Charged

Black Manager Loses Position

by Evans Witt
Staff Writer

The black manager of the local Dairy Queen eating establishment was relieved Wednesday of his duties and the staff of the establishment has signed a petition calling for his reinstatement.

The staff is petitioning for Sherman Byrd's reinstatement because his replacement is a white woman and Byrd alleges his demotion is due to his race.

Byrd will keep the same salary as previous but he is now a staff member rather than manager, said Ed Evans, area manager for Dairy Queen.

"I heard through the grapevine about three weeks ago in the company that I was to be fired because I am black," charged Byrd.

Evans joined the Dairy Queen organization as area manager approximately three weeks ago.

Evans said Byrd was demoted because of neglect of his duties as manager of the Chapel Hill drive-in (located on the 15-501 bypass near Eastgate shopping center) and because he refused to transfer to the Durham Dairy Queen.

"Discriminating against anyone on the basis of race has been the farthest thing from my mind during this whole affair," said Evans.

The petition from the employees of the establishment called for Byrd's immediate reinstatement. Failing that, the nine members of the staff who signed the petition say they will resign.

Evans called for a meeting of all the staff of the Dairy Queen late Wednesday afternoon, in order "that everyone can have their say," said Evans.

Byrd explained that over the past weekend he had been sick and unable to spend his usual number of hours at the establishment. He said that he had visited the Dairy Queen as many times as he was able in order to see that it was running properly.

Evans, on the other hand, said that he had been unable to contact Byrd over the entire weekend and had had no word that Byrd was sick.

(Byrd further said that he left a message for Evans, but that evidently Evans had not received it.)

Evans continued that, due to the circumstances as he understood them at the time, he decided that he would terminate Byrd's employment for negligence.

Larry Campbell, a member of the staff at the establishment, explained the position of the staff to Evans in discussing the incident.

"You didn't have to ask us about this, you could have just told us about it—that's your duty, to make these kinds of decision. We just would like to know what's happening," said Campbell.

"My only real complaint with the staff is that they didn't come to me with this thing—that petition was just worthless," Evans replied.

The three Dairy Queens over which Evans has authority have recently been operating in the red, he said. However, the Chapel Hill store is, according to Evans, the best managed and most profitable of the three of which he is supervisor.

"I've never told Sherman who to hire or fire except that I thought it would be good company policy at all three stores to have one white girl behind the counter on both shifts," Evans continued.

According to Byrd, there are currently 12 employees at the Chapel Hill Dairy Queen, eight black and four white.

Evans commented that he thought that this approximate 2 to 1 ratio of black to white employees has been more or less constant during the drive-in's operation.

"It is against my better judgement for the best interests of the company as a whole, but I decided that on account of the tension here, that Sherman should remain on the staff," Evans said.

Journalism Professor Dies

by Bob Chapman
Staff Writer

Dr. Joseph L. Morrison, 52, UNC professor of Journalism, died Wednesday morning at his home after suffering a heart attack.

Morrison joined the journalism faculty as an instructor in 1940, and following work on Armed Services publications from 1942-46, has been continuously associated with the School of Journalism.

A native of New York City, Morrison was a 1940 Phi Beta Kappa graduate of UNC. He earned his M.A. degree in history at Columbia University and his Ph.D. in history at Duke.

As a biographer, he wrote "Josephus Daniels Says..."; "Josephus Daniels, Small-d Democrat" and "W.J. Cash: Southern Prophet." His latest book, "Gov. O. Max Gardner: A Power in North Carolina and New Deal Washington," will be published by the UNC Press in February, 1971.

Morrison was also the author of various articles for professional publications and was awarded a CBS Foundation Fellowship in 1957-58.

In addition to his work with the Journalism School, he held summer positions with WRAL and WPTF radio stations in Raleigh and with Cantor Publications, Inc. in New York City.

Dr. John Adams, dean of the School of Journalism, said a memorial document expressing student and faculty sympathy is being prepared.

"He was a real scholar in the traditional sense," Adams said. "He looked upon a library as a second home. The detail of his books shows what a conscientious scholar he was."

"Students and faculty will miss him greatly," said Adams.

Funeral services will be conducted today at 3 p.m. at the Howerton Bryan Funeral Home in Durham.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Pearl Penner Morrison of Chapel Hill, and two children, Lucy and Peter.

The family requests that flowers be omitted. Memorial contributions for prayer books may be made to Beth El Congregation by writing Dr. B.G. Greenberg of 425 Brookside Drive in Chapel Hill.

Joseph L. Morrison

Council Head Elections Today

A special campus election will be held today to choose the president of the Council of Students.

The candidates are, Bernard Leakes, a political science major from Huntsville, Ala.; Randolph Hewitt, a political science major from Durham; and Cindy Cohen, an American Studies major from Framingham, Mass.

The Council of Students was formed last spring during the strike. Organizers of the strike felt it necessary to form a permanent group to organize student activism.

All three of the candidates were active in the student strike last May.

Voting will take place at Y-Court, the Scuttlebutt, the Student Union and at bus stops on South Campus throughout the day.

The election is being sponsored by the Council.