

U.S. suspends aid to 'aggressor' India

WASHINGTON—The United States announced Monday the suspension of $87.6 million in economic aid to India, following up by three days cancellation of all licenses for arms shipments to the New Delhi government.

The new action, officials said, is designed to insure that U.S. aid does not make any economic contributions to a country it considers at this point to be the aggressor in the Indo-Pakistani war.

The economic aid frozen Monday consists of development loans which Washington feels could contribute to India's short-term economic welfare and war-making potential.

Meanwhile, India recognized the Bangla Desh independence movement as the government of East Pakistan and claimed that Indian forces were making rapid new advances against the outnumbered West Pakistani defenders. Pakistan promptly broke diplomatic relations with India.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi announced formal Indian recognition of the Bangla Desh rebels in the Indian parliament in New Delhi as members banged their desks in approval and shouted "Long live Bengal land."

The fighting continued on the ground and in the air with contradictory claims coming from India and from Pakistan.

Nixon, Trudeau confer on U.S.-Canada relations

WASHINGTON—President Nixon conferred with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau Monday in the first of five "little summits" to assure U.S. allies that Nixon will not sell out their vital interests on his trips next year to Peking and Moscow.

But Trudeau was more concerned with the strained economic relations resulting from Nixon's 10 percent import surcharge than he was with Nixon's global diplomacy.

The surcharge has played havoc with the economy of Canada—the United States' number one trading partner—and Trudeau was also expected to tell Nixon of his nation's concern over the power that Americans and U.S. corporations wield in Canada.

Senate okays Lewis Powell

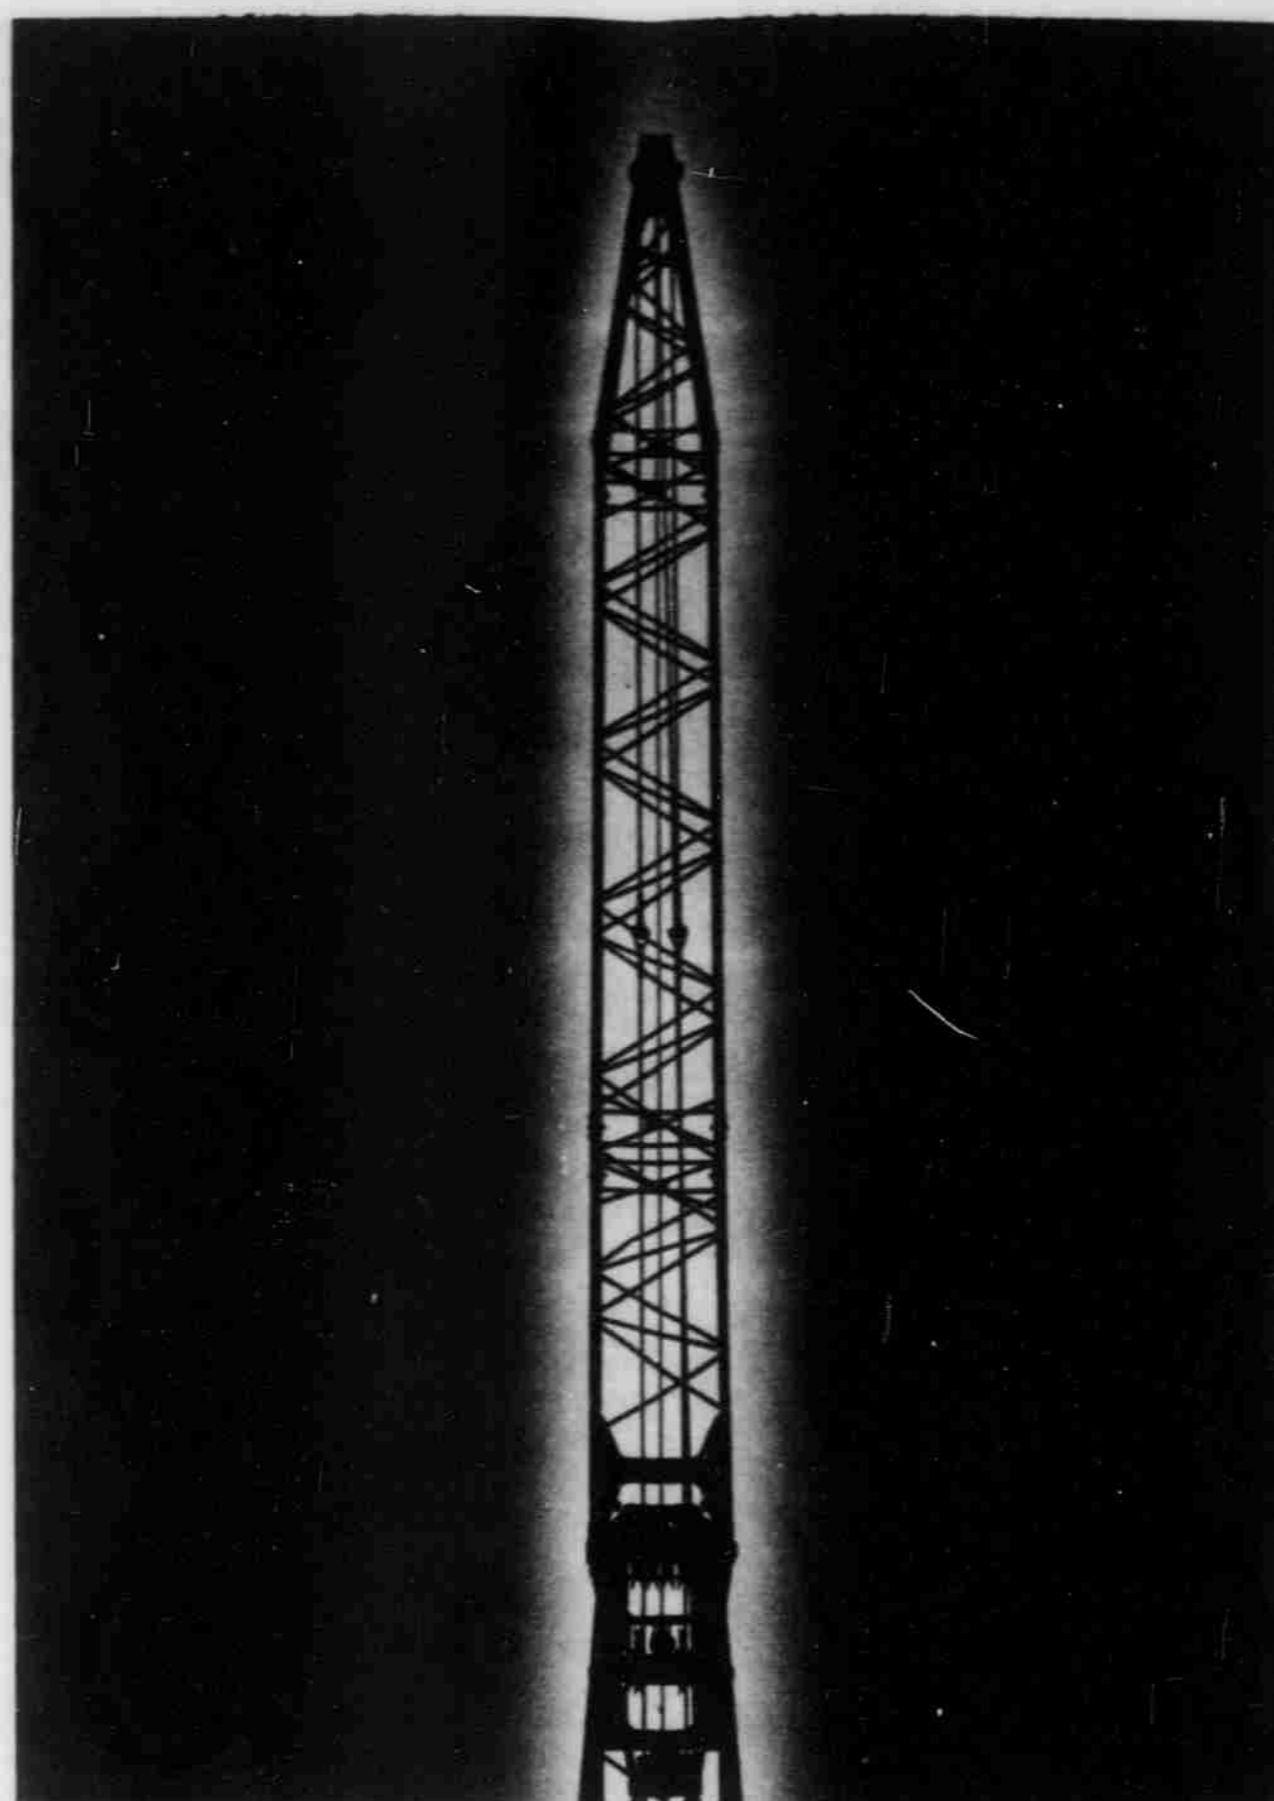

WASHINGTON—Lewis F. Powell, Jr. was confirmed by the Senate Monday to succeed the late Hugo Black as associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The roll call vote was 89 to 1 to approve the quiet Virginian as associate justice. Sen. Fred Harris (D-Okla.) cast the only "no" vote.

Powell is a 64-year-old Richmond lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association.

William H. Rehnquist, President Nixon's other nominee to fill an associate justice vacancy on the court, is expected to win confirmation by a comfortable margin later this week.

There is expected to be intensive debate over Rehnquist's approval, however.

Aldermen delay action on vending sidewalk to create regulated vending areas. A number of vending pods would then be constructed which would accommodate between one and four venders each. The pods would be separated by existing trees.

The venders would be required to provide their own stalls according to the specifications adopted by the town. They would be required to remove them at the end of each day.

Mrs. Welsh added the area would serve other purposes besides vending.

"There would be certain public market days, and on other days the area would serve as a quiet, reposeful area which would be visually attractive to all," she said.

Alderman Welsh also informed the board that the chairman of the Landscape Design Department at N.C. State has expressed an interest in making plans for the entire block and for the landscaping and other amenities to be used in the market area.

During the course of the discussion, Clyde Hornaday said the University Methodist Church will object to the plan and ask that the market area be placed on the north side of Franklin Street.

Several of the Franklin Street venders were present at the meeting, and though they thought some of the displays presented were reasonable, they were incensed over the delays which have kept venders off Franklin Street for three months.

"I want to know why the hell we aren't back on the street now," said Laura Spinarski, one of the venders present. "I can't support myself — I'm living on food stamps and I'm sick of it."

"And I can make a reasonable living on the street. We wanted to be back for the Christmas season before the students left for home."

The venders were also upset with the possibility of the town limiting the number of venders on Franklin Street as well as the number of days on which vending would be allowed.

"We can and will go back to court if necessary to fight any of these regulations which would prohibit a vender from making a reasonable living," Miss Spinarski said.

Ruckelshaus to speak here

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, will hold an open forum from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Friday in the School of Public Health auditorium.

Following a brief introduction on the programs and goals of the agency, Ruckelshaus will answer questions from the students.

He will dedicate the National Environmental Research Center at Research-Triangle Park before visiting the University.

Frederick Blank, director of Triangle University's Consortium on Air Pollution, said the government contacted his department about the forum.

Blank stressed that attendance is open to all, but Ruckelshaus is mostly interested in talking to students.

THERE ARE 4 DISADVANTAGES* IN BUYING
FROM A DISCOUNT HIGH FIDELITY
WHOLESALER

1. You have no way of knowing what mdse. the distributor has in stock (your delivery may be delayed a month or more)
2. You have to wait for delivery of mdse. that is in stock, (usually 2-3 weeks) regardless of promises.
3. You do not have direct contact with those with whom you are dealing.
4. The discounter doesn't stand behind his equipment. (If your unit malfunctions or is defective you have no recourse except factory service. Service on this basis can take as long as 3 weeks or a month.)

* There may be more disadvantages but these are four problems actually experienced.

We at Vickers are going to remain competitive with the discounters. Moreover we will eliminate the first three disadvantages of buying discount equipment.
