Dorm rent due Dec. 15

Dormitory room rent for the spring semester is due Dec. 15, the Office of Residence Life reported Wednesday.

Rent should be paid in the University Cashier's Office in the basement of Bynum Hall. There is a $5 late payment fee.

For rooms with two or more persons, rent is $155 per person for men and women in coed dorms and for men's dorms. Rent is $195 per person for women's dorms.

For single rooms, rent is $230 in coed dorms and men's dorms and $290 for women's dorms.

Tuition and fees are due according to the following schedule: Jan. 18 for last names beginning with A,B,L and M; Jan. 19, B,C,N,O and P; Jan. 20, D,E,Q and R; Jan. 25, F,G,S,T and U; Jan. 26, H,I,V, and W; Jan. 27, J,K,X,Y and Z.

Residence halls will close for Christmas break at 6:30 p.m. Buildings will open at noon Jan. 9.

McIver, Carr and Craige Graduate Center will remain open for students wishing to remain in a residence hall during the Christmas holidays. Women will stay in McIver, men in Carr and Craige residents in their own dorm.

A residence director or college master will be on duty in these buildings and limited number of hours of desk coverage will be provided. Self-limiting hours will not be in effect for women in McIver.

A $2 key deposit will be required for students not remaining in their own rooms. Each student will be required to sign a statement of responsibility for damages and property loss in the room during his stay.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible because assignments will be made on a first-come, first-served basis. Reservations should be made directly by the student to Mrs. Nancy Betty, 933-5401, in the Office of Residence Life, Bynum Hall.

Gilliam recall petition gets 220 names

by Karen Pusey
Staff Writer

A petition with 220 signatures of Morrison residents recalling Student Legislator Charles Gilliam was filed Wednesday with Student Body President Joe Stallings.

Morrison Residence College Governor Joe Grier gave the petition to Stallings, who turned it over to Elections Board Chairman Larry Eggert for certification of the signatures.

According to the rules governing a recall election, the petition must be signed by at least 25 percent of the residents in the representative's district. An estimated 650 males live in Morrison, — (Men's District XI) which Gilliam represents.

Only 150 names are necessary for a recall election in the district, but the number of people in the district must be validated as well as the signatures themselves, Stallings said.

Eggert now has five days in which to validate the petitions, at which point he will return them to Stallings. Stallings must then determine if the petitions are in good order and set the date for the recall election.

Stallings said, "I'm sure an election will not be called until next year, mainly because of exams. I see it as my responsibility to call an election, though. The earliest date would probably be in middle or late January."

Last week Grier, Jeanette Steenhuis, speaker of the Morrison senate, and Randy Crittendon, a Morrison senator, told the Elections Board of their intention to petition for a recall election for Gilliam.

Both Grier and Miss Steenhuis cited numerous complaints from Morrison residents about Gilliam's representation as the reason for their support of the petition.

The petition without signature was submitted to Eggert last week. After the required five days waiting period, Morrison residents began to collect signatures Monday night.

"By then," Miss Steenhuis said, "We had over 190 signatures. Some people were hesitant but willing to sign. Some were very eager. A few refused to sign."

Grier said eight of the 11 male floor co-chairmen in Morrison signed the petition. He said some of the petitions were still out.

Both Grier and Miss Steenhuis said one of the chief complaints they heard about Gilliam was that he ran as an independent last spring but heads the conservative coalition in the Student Legislature.

Grier said several people have expressed interest in running against Gilliam in the recall election, although no one has made any formal commitments since the election has not been called yet.

Gilliam believes the recall is directed against him personally. "I don't think it has to do with my representation of Morrison," he said. "I view it as a personal attack, but the voters will have to decide that."

"I intend to run and win this election," Gilliam added. "It boils down to a matter of principle. I've got to win."

Gilliam said he thought he would win since he has been elected in Morrison twice before.

Grier said, "If Gilliam wins the election, I'll be perfectly willing to accept it. The fact that there are over 200 people in Morrison who signed the petition indicated there's a problem, and I just want to see an election."

Aycock roach contest fumigated

by Cathey Brackett
Staff Writer

Aycock Dormitory's roach killing contest was halted prematurely Wednesday when exterminators sprayed the dorm rooms.

The contest, which began midnight Monday, was scheduled to end at noon Saturday.

Walter Hamilton, director of Physical Plant, said the fumigations were performed by a private company under contract to the University.

A story appeared in Tuesday's Daily

Tar Heel about the contest, which was designed to alert Physical Plant about the growing population of roaches. Hamilton said he had not seen the article.

He said such matters as bug control, elevator repair and trash-collecting are not the direct responsibility of the Physical Plant but are under contract of private companies.

Hamilton said the blame rests not only with the private company but also with the Physical Plant. The plant has a maintenance official responsible for checking on the work of the private firms.

Director of Residence Life Robert Kepner and Hamilton have arranged for the company to conduct a "special extermination" in all dormitories during the Christmas holidays, when students would not be inconvenienced.

Hamilton cited increasing use of food in dormitories and the cold weather as reasons for the growing number of insects in dormitories.

Aycock President Jim Womble said the roach killing contest was a way to "get the Physical Plant on its toes."

A petition requesting fumigation of the dormitory was given to the plant and Residence Life two weeks before Thanksgiving. Only the halls and the bathrooms were sprayed during the Thanksgiving fumigation, Womble said.

Naturally the roaches migrated to the students' rooms, he said, and were found in drawers, behind posters and "in every possible place."

The winner of the thwarted contest "to get rid of those meager beasts" was to have received a free case of the beer of his choice. King Nyle was to judge the contest.

Womble said he hopes every dormitory can get rid of the roaches because they are a menace and an inconvenience.

SL to elect members to standing committees

by Evans Witt
Staff Writer

Student Legislature (SL) will elect its officers and chairmen and members of the five standing committees tonight at its first regular business meeting of the new session.

SL members will vote for the speaker pro tem, the committee chairmen, the 35 committee members and SL clerk at the meeting in Di-Phi Hall of New West.

The selection of officers will be the first official action of the newly sworn-in group. The first meeting for the legislature for the new session was last Thursday night when the only business was the swearing in of the members.

All new committees and chairmen must be selected because all committees were dissolved when the old legislature ended its tenure.

According to Student Legislator Charles Gilliam, Tim Tyler is expected to run for speaker pro tem, the highest elective office in the body.

Chairman for the Rules, Finance, Ways and Means, Ethics and Judicial committees will also have to be selected.

Robert Grady is expected to seek re-election to the powerful post of chairman of the Finance Committee but some opposition is expected to develop to his candidacy.

Gilliam said Wednesday he expects Gerry Cohen, a leader of the liberal faction in SL and former chairman of the Judicial Committee, to oppose Grady.

The chairmanship of the important Rules Committee will most probably be sought by Gilliam. He said he is not sure he will run in face of the recent recall petition on him which has been circulated.

"I was going to run for the Rules Committee post but with all this trouble, I'm not really sure," he said.

Gilliam said he had not been lobbying for his candidacy for the Rules Committee chairmanship, as he had heard others were doing for some of the other posts up for election tonight.

"A number of people have been doing a lot of calling around—I myself have not," he explained.

Gilliam also said he had not participated in the making up of any slates of candidates for the seven positions on each of the five standing committees. He called for the individual student legislators to work in their own behalf for the committee posts.

"I've decided if someone wants to get the spot they will have to work for it themselves," he said.

Meta Lucas, who has served as SL clerk for this past session, is expected to try for the post in the election tonight. Possible opponents for her include Susan Case, who has also served for a number of sessions at the clerk's post.

Pitt county grand jury to probe Ayden killing

A special session of the Pitt County Grand Jury Monday will investigate the death of William Murphey, a black farm laborer slain by a highway patrolman in August.

Murphey's death has prompted several protests resulting in more than 900 arrests, including 25 UNC students. The students face trial today in Pitt County for violating a parade ordinance and have indicated they will ask for a continuation until after exams.

The special session was ordered this week by Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse. Rouse called for the probe "to determine if there is probable cause for accusation of criminal conduct in connection with Murphey's death."

Rouse's order is part of a ruling in which he denied a petition by the Greenville American Civil Liberties Union to make public the confidential State Bureau of Investigation report into the Murphey death.

About 62 protestors arrested in the past week in Greenville, site of the beginning of a proposed week-long march to Raleigh, were sentenced to three days in jail for failing to heed a parade ordinance.

Murphy was slain by Highway Patrolman Billy Day, who was cleared of any criminal charges by the SBI investigation and a coroner's report.
