APO schedules annual book co-op

Alpha Phi Omega (APO) service fraternity will begin taking books Tuesday for the annual APO Student Book Co-op set for after the holidays.

Students may bring books to 207-09 Student Union from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. throughout the exam period.

The fraternity will continue accepting books during the sale.

The co-op is designed to give students a chance to sell books to other students other than through Student Stores. Students set their own prices, and 10 percent of the proceeds goes to scholarships.

The book co-op will sell books from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Jan. 12-17 in the Union South Lounge.

Union slates creative art

The Union Gallery Committee will hold a Creative Art Night at 8 p.m. today in room 204 of the Union.

Finger paints, dayglow paints, crayons and paper will be provided. "All you need to supply," said Hank Wall, committee chairman, "is the creative urge."

Wall hopes to display the results of the evening in the Union following the "artistic free-for-all."

Angel Flight gives gifts

Members of Angel Flight, the female auxiliary group to the Air Force ROTC unit, has provided 75 Christmas gifts for underprivileged girls in the community.

Margret Morris, operations officer, said the 10 "Angels" made "stocking stuffers" each valued at about a dollar for Christmas House, a project of the Chapel Hill Jaycees.

The project was one of three during the year. Members also act as hostesses to Playmakers productions and they will donate supplies to an orphanage in Vietnam.

Miss Morris said Angel Flight is the only campus organization to provide a gift for all the girls in the Christmas House project.

UNC students go to Toronto

Members of the Toronto Exchange from UNC will leave Jan. 5 for a week in Toronto.

Thirty-two UNC students will travel by bus on the trip. Each year, students are chosen from UNC and the University of Toronto for the exchange. The students from Toronto visited UNC Nov. 4-10 this year.

The UNC exchange members are paired with a student from Toronto who will accommodate them during their stay. They will return to Chapel Hill Jan. 12.

Workers strike Allen, O'Hara

The electrical and plumbers' unions working on new construction at University Square have struck, charging Allen and O'Hara Co., contractors for the building, with "exploiting labor."

J.D. Rigby, business agent for the carpenters' union which has refused to cross the other two unions' picket lines, said the Memphis-based Allen and O'Hara has failed to keep its agreements with the unions.

The company, which is constructing a six-story office building, previously agreed to pay proper wages and fringe benefits, he said, but the contractors "have not yet kept their bargain."

"What it amounts to is these people coming down here building this building, taking advantage of the people, and trying to hire them for as little as possible," Rigby said.

"We are very concerned about the wages they are paying," he added. "We want them to pay the wages."

The company has warned workers to be back on the job by noon today or the company will hire non-union labor, Rigby said.

He said the law is presently on the side of the contractor because of a technicality in the way the picket line was set up.

Rigby said he has urged his men to return to work but apparently they will not until the company resolves the wage and fringe benefits dispute.

UNC to build parking lot

University property on Park Place will soon become a temporary parking lot, according to Allen Waters, director of operations and engineering for the University.

Waters said an administrative building may be built on the lot in the near future. "No permanent plans for use of the area have been made at this time," he added.

Six houses were moved from the area last week. The houses were put up for bids this fall.

Walter Hamilton, director of the Physical Plant, said persons who purchased the structures were responsible for relocating the houses.

Waters called the land on Park Place "a potential expansion location for the University."

He said the amount of time the land will remain a parking lot before a permanent building is constructed will depend on the facilities and resources available for University expansion.

Alpha Delta Phi ATO give party

Alpha Tau Omega (ATO) fraternity and Alpha Delta Phi sorority sponsored a Christmas party for 25 children from the Chapel Hill-Carrboro community Wednesday at the ATO house.

The children were picked from a local training school by their teacher as "the more deserving" of the class. They were from 6 to 12 years old.

The party was held from 4 to 5 p.m. Santa made a surprise visit to give the children gifts.

Jobs offered UNC Canadians

Canadian students at UNC interested in "Operation Retrieval," a program for Canadian students studying abroad, may secure information about developments and job opportunities in Canada at the University Placement Office in 211 Gardner.

"Operation Retrieval," directed by The Canadian Department of Manpower and Immigration, assists students and Canadian employers in contacting each other.

Jewelry box lost in Morocco

Dean of Men Fred Schroeder has information concerning a jewelry box believed to be lost by a UNC coed last summer in Morocco.

Schroeder said Thursday he received a letter before Thanksgiving from a man who said a UNC coed asked him to hold a jewelry box while he was in Morocco last summer, but the girl did not retrieve the box, which contains some jewelry.

The man hopes to return the box and jewelry, and anyone who has lost the items should contact Schroeder in OI Steele Building.

Christmas songs slated tonight

The Carolina Union Music and Social committees will jointly sponsor a Christmas Carol sing at 7 p.m. today in the Union's South Lounge.

Everyone is invited to participate and partake of the free hot chocolate.

The assembled group will sing on the Union premises, and then, according to Music Committee Chairman Jamie Rice, the carolers will probably tour the campus areas.

Lyric sheets will be provided at the Union. Tentative program selections include: "Silent Night," "First Noel," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" and other traditional carols.

"Singing harmony is encouraged," says Rice, "but we don't expect more than a combination of voices."

The Union will provide piano accompaniment.

Checks service reminds students

Students needing extra money for Christmas should cash several different checks on different days at the Student Stores' check cashing service if they need more than the $25 per day check cashing limit, Student Stores officials said Thursday.

Many students attempt to cash $50 or $60 checks the day they leave Chapel Hill, the officials said, but the service is unable to cash such large checks.

Student Stores officials said the $25 limit was set several years ago to spread the check cashing service's limited resources to as many students as possible.
