

The Daily Tar Heel

78 Years of Editorial Freedom

Wednesday, January 26, 1972

Vol. 80, No. 94

Founded February 23, 1893

The mild temperatures Tuesday brought many people out onto the grassy areas on campus as though it were already spring. The wonders of the trees were among the topics to be discussed with children on such a beautiful day. (Staff photo by Scott Stewart.)

Esley Anderson chosen

Hospital board names head

The board of directors of N. C. Memorial Hospital has elected Esley O. Anderson Jr. of Charlotte as chairman and Howard Holderness of Greensboro as vice-chairman of the new 12-member board.

The board, created in accordance with a 1971 law passed by the N. C. General Assembly, will control the general administration of the hospital independent of the administration of the University.

Anderson, a 1935 graduate of UNC, will leave his current job as president of Pyramid Motor Co. of Charlotte to serve on the board.

He has previous experience as commissioner of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority and as member of the board of managers of the Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

Holderness, also a UNC graduate, served as chairman of the N.C. Medical Foundation. He is presently chairman of the board of directors of the Jefferson-Pilot Corporation and the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co.

Anderson and Holderness will preside over a board comprised of nine appointive members from the public and three ex-officio members from the University.

The specified independent status of the board of directors insures that decisions on matters within its jurisdiction are final. However, appeals may be made in writing to the UNC Board of Trustees.

The power of the Board of Directors include the appointment or removal of the hospital director, who is subject to the board's policies, rules and regulations.

The hospital will establish a personnel office, independent of the Central Personnel Office of the University, in accordance with the status of the board of directors.

(Other members of the board are Mrs. Britt M. Armfield, Greensboro; George A. Cecil, Asheville; Dr. H. Fleming Fuller, Kinston; James T. Hedrick, Durham; I.B. Julian, Fayetteville; Edward L. Rankin Jr., Kannapolis; Dr. Albert Whiting, Durham; Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, vice chancellor for health sciences; Joseph C. Eagles Jr., vice chancellor for business and finance; and Dr. Christopher C. Fordham, dean of the School of Medicine.)

Weather

TODAY: sunny and cold; highs in the mid 40s, lows in the low 30s; zero chance of precipitation.

Women's Caucus to meet at Duke

by Lynn Lloyd
Staff Writer

The North Carolina Women's Political Caucus is sponsoring a statewide organizational meeting on Saturday in Page Auditorium at Duke University.

Registration for the day's activities begins at 9:30 a.m. in the Flowers Building Lounge. All N.C. gubernatorial candidates have been invited to answer questions regarding the status of women and their plans to include women in important state appointments.

Various workshops scheduled include speakers on the proposed equal rights amendment, reproduction and its control, legislative priorities and the delegate selection strategy.

Carole Ann Taylor, from the Women's Unit in New York, will be the main speaker. Dr. Juanita Kreps, dean of women at Duke, and Pat Wiegler of the AFL-CIO will be speaking on educational training and continued education. Monica Kivel, head of the UNC-G caucus and chairman of the state campus caucuses, will speak on the equal rights amendment.

An organizational meeting for UNC women will be held tonight at 7 in rooms 207-209 of the Student Union. June Stafford, coordinator of the UNC group, said the meeting is "in preparation for the state convention."

The organization of UNC women is supported by the Association of Women Students, the YWCA and Judy Dixon, YM-YWCA president.

Speaking at tonight's meeting are: Martha McKay, temporary state chairman of the N.C. Political Caucus; Monica Kivel, head of the UNC-G caucus; Lanny Mayo; Jane Matthews, a professor at UNC-G; and Armeta McPherson, state vice-president of the Young Democrats Club and precinct chairman in Hillsborough. They will take part in a panel discussion.

The N.C. Women's Political Caucus is a state organization supporting women's rights in this year's election. Groups have been started on local levels in North Carolina in the last year, and are open to every woman in the state.

The group encourages able women to run for public office and to see that women are "represented in elective and appointive political offices." It is working for the passage of the equal rights amendment to the Constitution which would provide equality for women.

Anyone needing transportation to the State Caucus at Duke on Saturday can sign up at the Y Building from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. today through Friday. Cars will leave the Y at 9 a.m. Saturday morning.

AWS endorses women's group

by Mary Ellis Gibson
Staff Writer

Members of the Association of Women Students (AWS) unanimously endorsed the Women's Political Caucus at their meeting Monday.

June Stafford, organizer for the Women's Political Caucus in Chapel Hill, told AWS members the function of the national group is to organize women to fight for their own specific interests through the political system.

In addition to endorsing the caucus, AWS members agreed to encourage women living in University housing to register to vote.

"It is necessary that women who are interested in what women can do should register," AWS President Cathy Cauthorne said Tuesday.

As a follow-up to Women's Week, which was sponsored by AWS last fall, three women from the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor will speak at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 14. The women will discuss sex discrimination and outline plans of action for women who face discrimination.

Women in the job market may also be the topic for a careers week tentatively scheduled by AWS for the week of April 3. Juanita Kreps, dean of the Women's College at Duke University, has been asked to open the week with a speech Monday night.

Careers week may include panel discussions, speeches and informal talks with prominent professional women.

Sign-up sheets will be posted in dormitories so that women may indicate their interest in a careers week and suggest topics for discussion.

If women show interest in a careers week, activities will be scheduled in women's dorms in an effort to reach more students.

Merchant accused of price violations

by Norman Black
Staff Writer

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) filed a complaint Friday against The Hub of Eastgate, Inc. for violating the Phase II price-posting regulations.

The suit, filed by the U.S. Attorney's Office in the federal district court in Greensboro, carries a maximum penalty of $2,500 for the violation.

P.M. Hutts, head of the Investigations and Compliance Branch of the Greensboro IRS, said the retail men's clothing store was in violation of the new pricing and posting regulations required under the Phase II economic program.

According to Hutts, The Hub was "contacted by the IRS and then recontacted, and they had still not complied with the regulation."

The pricing and posting regulations require the retailer to post a sign in each department listing the base price of "those 40 items in each department which had the highest dollar sales volume during the last fiscal year, or those items in each department which accounted for at least 50 percent of the total dollar sales volume during the last fiscal year, whichever is lowest."

The retail establishment is also required to post at least one sign, a minimum of 22 inches by 28 inches, announcing the availability of base price information on all other items sold by the store.

The Internal Revenue Service is charged with enforcing the regulations.

The Hub was unable to comment since they have not received notice of the IRS complaint.

The IRS has reported some 70 retail firms around the country have been sued for violations of the Phase II regulations.

Tioga Honigmann was pursuing one of her favorite pastimes on Franklin Street recently - blowing bubbles. She did not hoard her more beautiful creations but offered them to passers-by on the street. (Staff photo by Johnny Lindahl).

Sent to Planning Board

Board defers power line action

by Norman Black
Staff Writer

The Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen referred to the Planning Board for recommendation Monday on the University's request for a new power transmission line and a proposed modification of town parking requirements for fraternities where historic buildings are involved.

The action came during a public hearing conducted by the aldermen Monday night in the Town Hall Courtroom.

During their regular business meeting, the board tabled indefinitely a proposed ordinance that would require all bicycles used in Chapel Hill to be registered and licensed.

The public hearing began with a presentation by Allen Waters, director of engineering for UNC. Waters reiterated to the public the critical power shortage the town would face by this summer and stressed the need for quick action.

"The community faces a very critical power situation," Waters said. "The problem is twofold: We must have a new transmission line, and we must have a new substation."

Several Chapel Hill residents voiced concern over the proposed location of the new substation at the northeast corner of the 15-501 Bypass and Mt. Moriah Church Road. Many of those present thought the station was being placed in an area where the residents would receive few if any direct benefits.

After hearing public discussion, the board referred the matter to the planning board. The aldermen then considered a zoning ordinance change governing parking at fraternity and sorority houses. The change would allow Delta Upsilon fraternity to build a new house.

The amendment would allow the aldermen to relax the parking requirement for a fraternity or sorority house when it would save a historical building or site.

There was no public discussion, so this item was also referred to the planning board for their final recommendation.

During the regular business meeting following the public hearing, the aldermen decided to table indefinitely a proposed ordinance which would have required all bicycles used in Chapel Hill to be registered and licensed.

The aldermen decided last December that licensing and registration was needed here to improve bicycle safety and aid the identification of lost and stolen bikes. The board had considered an annual $1 license fee for all bikes within the town limits and suggested an inspection procedure to accompany licensing to insure that bikes were properly equipped.

At least one of the trees in the vicinity of Murphey Hall, where extensive landscaping is being done by the University, has a friend who wants it to remain. The grounds employees have not tackled anything as major as this tree - yet. (Staff photo by Leslie Todd)