

Walk group decides

Project recipients named

by Susan Spence

The Young World Development Committee of the YM-YWCA here, which sponsors the Chapel Hill Walk Against Hunger, has decided which projects will be the recipients of this year's funds.

The walk is a part of the national program of the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, which is a non-profit, non-governmental foundation for public education and action of development issues. The only criterion which the national organization requires for the selection of recipients is that the project must be a self-help group.

The funds are to be divided three ways, with 42.5 percent going to domestic projects, 42.5 percent to international projects and 15 percent to the foundation to carry on its national education program on development issues.

The American Friends Service

Committee, which is sponsoring a project in Bangladesh, is the international project which the Chapel Hill walk will sponsor. "The money will be used to rebuild housing and medical facilities," Scott Morgan, a walk organizer, said Tuesday. "Without an initial boost they won't be able to raise themselves to a level of self-sufficiency," he said.

Three domestic projects in Chapel Hill and Carrboro will receive support. The Labor Services Cooperative is a training program for domestic help in Chapel Hill. "This has been established so they can do their jobs more efficiently and, hence, earn more money," Morgan said.

A second local project receiving support will be the VISTA projects fund. This is a unit composed of local people working within the community who will use the money to establish day-care centers and other projects along this same line.

The Inter-Church Council Loan and Grant Fund will receive a third part of the funds designated for domestic projects. This project will provide emergency loans for people with sudden or unexpected needs (i.e., sickness). The loans are non-interest and require no collateral. There is also no set repay time for these loans.

"The equal distribution of funds between domestic and international projects symbolizes the 'global village' concept, that is, that all the peoples of the world are tied together and therefore barriers to development must be fought both in this country and abroad equally," said Don Ingalls, project committee chairman.

Walkers obtain sponsors who agree to contribute so much per mile the walker completes. "The walkers collect their pledges after the walk and deposit the money in a special bank account. The money is then forwarded to the foundation in Washington, D.C. and distributed to the projects," walk coordinator Amy Davidson said.

This year the walk will be included as one of the programs of the "Mind of the South," an activity sponsored by the Carolina Symposium which will focus on hunger and development efforts in the region.

Last year, about 500 Chapel Hillians participated in the walk which raised more than $14,000 for self-help development projects.

Anyone who is interested in helping with any aspect of the walk or who would like more information can call the YM-YWCA at 933-7106/2333/2084.

News in brief

Dorm schedule set

All dorms except Carr, McIver and Craige Graduate Center will close at 6 p.m. Friday, March 10, for the beginning of spring holidays, according to the Office of Residence Life.

Buildings will re-open at noon Sunday, March 20.

Students wishing to remain in a residence hall during the spring break should make reservations directly to the Housing Office in Bynum Hall as soon as possible.

For a student not remaining in his own room, a $2 key deposit will be required. Each student will also be required to sign a statement of responsibility for damages and property loss in the room during his stay.

A residence director or college master will be on duty in the three dorms and a limited number of hours of desk coverage will be provided.

Self-limiting hours will not be in effect for women in McIver.

"The policy of closing buildings was initiated last year to insure the personal property of students," according to Residence Life. Theft has been greatly reduced since this policy was initiated.

be $1.50. The association needs student volunteers to help babysit at the movie if you would be willing to donate some time or need further information, call Nancy Davison, 967-5437.

Several other fund-raising projects planned for the day have been cancelled at the request of the Community Center. The Association for Retarded Children hopes other community civic and church groups will give support to ARC projects, especially the Orange Developmental Center for retarded children, located at Binkley Baptist Church in Chapel Hill. The center is partially funded by the State Mental Health Department and matched-funds basis.

Sorority holds political forum

The Kappa Alpha Theta sorority is sponsoring a political forum of the NC gubernatorial candidates Jim Holshouser and Erskine Bowles. Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles' son are scheduled to speak.

Jim Holshouser is a Republican from Boone who has served in the Legislature and as state Republican party chairman. He is scheduled to speak at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Theta house.

Erskine Bowles, a UNC graduate, is relatively new to the campaign trail and will be making his first appearance on the campus. His father is a Democratic candidate for governor. He will speak at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The public is invited to attend.

Photographer receives award

Johnny Lindahl, DTH staff photographer, has been selected as the third place winner in the Nikon Photo Contest International.

The Nippon Kogaku of Tokyo, Japan and Nikon International has awarded Lindahl a bronze medal and a special camera lens for his entry in the contest, a black and white study entitled, "Portrait of a baseball team."

Observance set for retarded

Saturday will be Mental Retardation Day in Orange County, sponsored by the Orange County Association for Retarded Children (ARC).

The ARC will be seeking community support for the interest in the problems of the mentally retarded.

This is the day of the Duke-Carolina basketball game in Chapel Hill. The ARC will be offering a baby-sitting service during game time. Parents may leave their children at the School of Public Health Auditorium on Columbia Street on the UNC campus, beginning at 1 p.m. A full-length Walt Disney movie will be shown to the children; refreshments will be provided.

Children may be picked up following the game. Charge for the afternoon will

Senate group approves equal rights amendment

WASHINGTON - The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved, 14 to 1, a constitutional amendment designed to guarantee equal rights for women.

Only Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., voted against it.

Sen. Birch Bayh, chief sponsor of the amendment, said he expected a tough battle in the senate.

"We will have to overcome parliamentary tactics against this amendment," he said. "By that I mean a filibuster."

The equal rights amendment has been approved previously by the House and by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but has died on the Senate floor. Before taking the final vote, the committee beat back a number of modifications and substitutes.

They would have exempted women from the military draft or from combat duty, exempted state-supported colleges of higher education that admit only members of one sex, an Ervin substitute that would have permitted legal distinctions between the sexes based on physiological or functional differences, and would have preserved the special protections women now have as widows, mothers, wives and workery.

Aldermen pass dog control law

by Kathy Koch
Staff Writer

Dog owners are now responsible for control of their dogs, even when that dog is not on the owner's property.

Such are the conditions of the modified leash law approved by the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen at Monday night's meeting.

Although it was suggested by the Aldermen that there be a difference in the registration fees for unspayed female dogs and spayed dogs, that question was postponed.

The new ordinance allows the city dog warden to pick up dogs that are not on the owner's property after there has been a "verified complaint" that the dog is a "nuisance."

If there has been a verified complaint lodged against a dog and that dog is subsequently found on the owner's property, the warden will notify the owner before picking up the dog.

Once a dog has been picked up by the dog warden at least once, it must then be under the control of a "competent person" whenever it is not on the owner's property. Failure to keep a dog under control after he has been picked up once will result in increased fines for the owner.

In other business, the board held a joint public meeting with the planning board, in which four re-zoning requests were referred to the planning board for further consideration.

Five amendments to the city's subdivision ordinance were also referred to the planning board. These amendments included one which would require utility lines to be placed underground and one which would require the subdivision to have proper drainage facilities for unusual storm conditions.

Foxcroft, a proposed set of apartment dwellings, was granted a special use permit to begin construction by the board.

Nutritionist will speak in forum

Dr. Jean Mayer, an internationally known Harvard University nutritionist and organizer of the First White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health, will be one of four guest speakers at the Chapel Hill Seminar on Science and Philosophy to be held there March 24 and 25.
