

Prospective UNC students visited by SAAP group

by Jane Shermer
Staff Writer

Members of the Student Alumni Awareness Program (SAAP) met in Durham Sunday with approximately 46 high school seniors who have been accepted for admission here next fall.

SAAP, which is designed to reach and inform high school seniors and junior college transfers interested in attending Carolina, is funded by Student Legislature and the Alumni Association. Its meetings are purposely informal, with SAAP members and invited high school guests gathering at private homes. The Durham meeting was at the home of Mrs. E.K. Powe.

"Because the meeting was so near campus, several school officials were able to attend," said Jan Bickett, external affairs official for the organization. Richard Cashwell, director of admissions; A.C. Sorell, president of the Durham Alumni Association; Bo Dunlap, assistant director of the Alumni Association; and Clarence Whitefield, the association's executive secretary, attended the meeting.

Richard Epps, student body president;

Lee Hood Capps, president of the senior class; and Ford Coley, sophomore class president, were also present.

"SAAP is a senior and sophomore class project," Capps said. "It is not a recruitment program but an awareness program to help incoming students be prepared for the academic and social atmosphere of the campus."

Bickett said, "We have had a very good response thus far from students, the Office of Admissions and the alumni. UNC normally seems very large and impersonal to its applicants, but this program makes things more personal. We have received letters of thanks from students who appreciate our efforts to contact them."

The informality of the program encourages students to ask the questions they would hesitate to ask if their parents or guidance counselors were invited to the meetings, Bickett said. "Because the adults are purposely not invited, we are also freer in our answers to their questions and can be candidly honest," she said.

SAAP informs the students of financial aid, work-study programs and scholarship opportunities. It also promotes a pal system on campus in which visiting students go to classes and to social activities with members of the organization.

"The pal project will hopefully expand next fall when so many high school students will visit the campus," Bickett said. Morey Lampley, 1973 senior class president, will be in charge of this next fall.

Monday night the group met with junior transfers at Peace College and tonight they will be in Asheville. They visited St. Mary's March 20.

Questionnaire response requested from blacks

The Chancellor's Committee on the Status of Minority and Disadvantaged Students has called for greater response from a six page questionnaire mailed to all black students at UNC.

Forty-one percent of the students contacted have responded, according to a committee report. However, if the results are to fairly represent the responses of minority students, a much higher percentage response is needed, according to the committee.

The questionnaire was written by Dr. David Kleinbaum of the UNC biostatistics department with assistance from H. Bently Renwick, assistant director of undergraduate admissions.

The committee distributed the questionnaire to 592 minority students and to a comparison group of 200 other students.

It is hoped the results will uncover sources of student discontent so problems can be acted upon from a real base of knowledge. The committee reports results so far have been very informative, especially in areas of financial, social and academic concerns.

However, because less than half of those who have received questionnaires have responded, the sample cannot be truly representative.

The committee urges those students who have not responded to do so immediately. Those who have lost or thrown away their copy of the questionnaire may pick up an additional questionnaire at the main information desk in the Student Union. A return envelope is included.

News in brief Sex attitudes surveyed

A survey designed to reveal sexual knowledge, attitudes and practice among students is scheduled to begin this week.

The survey, which is being conducted by the Human Sexuality Committee, will involve a randomly selected group of 200 students.

These students will receive questionnaires from interviewers. The questionnaires will require about half an hour to complete.

The committee believes the information obtained through the survey will be useful "in planning for policies affecting student life and activities."

Students will not place their names on the questionnaires, so results will be absolutely confidential.

New legislature meets Thursday

Student Legislature, with all legislators elected this spring, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Di Phi chambers, New West.

Fred Davenport, student body vice president, said many legislators had been unsure about when they assumed office and where legislation was held.

Davenport will make several appointments, including parliamentary and sergeant at arms, at the meeting.

1972 scholars visit campus

The 1972 James M. Johnston Scholarship winners have been on campus this week to get acquainted with UNC during the 1972 Carolina Scholarship Celebration.

The 70 high school senior scholarship winners are attending a variety of activities, including many of the Carolina Symposium events. Present Johnston Scholars are serving as hosts.

The Johnston Scholarship Program was established at UNC in Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro in 1970 under the James M. Johnston Trust Fund.

The aim of the program is to provide capable students with sufficient financial support for undergraduate education. To be considered for the scholarship, the students must have exhibited academic promise, leadership abilities, high moral character and financial need.

Law School names Fellows

Winners of 1972 Morehead Fellowships to the UNC School of Law are Gerald Allen Cohen of West Hartford, Connecticut, Fred Kevin Mauney of New Bern, and Charles Christopher Sharp of Washington, D.C.

Each fellowship is valued at $2,500 per year plus tuition and fees for three years of study.

Cohen, who graduated from UNC in August, is a columnist for The Daily Tar Heel. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he has been a student legislator for four years and a member of the Chancellor's Student Stores Advisory Committee.

Mauney graduated with honors in political science from Wake Forest in 1971. He is a former president of Omicron Delta Kappa, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, a member of the Board of Directors of the Urban Affairs Institute and a columnist for the Wake Forest newspaper.

Sharp, a National Merit Scholar and Yale National Scholar, is a past president of the Yale Conservative Club, a member of the Yale Republican Club and past chairman of the Party of the Right, Yale Political Union.

The selection was made by the Morehead Foundation Trustees and a special committee of law professors, law students and attorneys.

Group to view two films tonight

"The Man with the Movie Camera," a 1929 Russian silent movie directed by Dziga Vertov, is the main attraction in tonight's presentation by the Chapel Hill Film Friends.

Also on the bill is "Putting Pants on Philip," the first ever Laurel and Hardy film, which is directed by Leo McKerry. Vertov was the father of "cinema-verite," which term he coined in 1924. He was the first to use the technique of comparing the camera to the eye, allowing it complete freedom to roam where it pleased rather than remaining fixed.

His work is probably the seminal influence on all subsequent documentary films, and his stylistic ideas can be detected in such modern productions as "Woodstock" and "Gimme Shelter."

The films will be shown at 8 and 10 p.m. in 101 Greenlaw. Admission price is $1.

Interviews set for SG offices

Interviews will be held Tuesday in Suite C of the Student Union from 3 to 6 p.m. for the position of student body treasurer.

Training in business and accounting is helpful but not mandatory; the position is open to all students, regardless of class rank. Interviews for secretary will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 3 to 6 p.m. in Suite C. No prior experience is necessary and the office is open to all students regardless of class rank.

Job service sets schedule

The following organizations will recruit on campus during the week of April 3-7: Tuesday, April 4 - Pilot Life Insurance Co.

Wednesday, April 5 - Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; Norfolk and Southern Railway Co.; Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp.; Prentice Hall, Inc.

Thursday, April 6 - Fedders Financial Corp.; Johnson Stores, Inc.; Kroger Co.; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; Prudential Insurance Co.; U.S. General Accounting Office.

Interview appointments may be made in the Placement Service office, 211 Gardner.

Simpson to talk today on football

George Simpson, former UNC football player, will speak at 8 tonight in the basement lounge at Granville West on the UNC football training program. Following the death of football player Bill Arnold last fall, Simpson wrote a series of articles for the Winston-Salem Journal criticizing head football coach Bill Dooley's training procedures.

Athletes who approve of Dooley's program will be on hand to comment on Simpson's talk.
