> Each counselor will have a small group to counsel. If the group is not in his dorm, a room will be provided for him.

Medford said the committee was trying to arrange financial aid to reimburse the counselors for their meals during orientation week. Counselors will have training sessions in their areas of responsibility, and they will be allowed to register early.

"We will try to arrange visitation in the non-coed dorms so we can have coed counseling groups," Medford said.

"We are trying to center the programs for orientation around the residence this year's freshmen and transfers since colleges," he said. "We think this will

Seven polls set for grad voting

The Graduate and Professional Student Federation (GPSF) Senate Tuesday afternoon set the procedure for the referendum to be held next Tuesday.

The referendum proposes to delete words in the preamble of the GPSF constitution which refer to the GPSF as an independent government. This referendum must be passed before the Student Legislature will provide funds for the GPSF There will be seven polling areas for the referendum. They will be located in the law school, Public Health school, Student Union, Craig dormitory, Y Court, Peabody and an area of the science buildings. The polls will open at 10 a.m. Tuesday and close at various times during the day by 6 p.m.

Jim Becker, speaker of the GPSF Senate, said if the referendum is passed, a clerical staff will be effective starting next week. The GPSF is looking for people to apply for part-time clerical work.

Many committee positions are also open for which graduate students may

There will be a meeting of the GPSF Senate next Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Student Union. Business not completed at the last meeting will be discussed. This includes the election of an executive board member and a discussion of the 1972-73 budget.

All graduate organizations desiring funds for 1972-73 should leave notice at Box 26 in the Student Union.

Computer problems stall course evaluation effort

Computer complications are psychology department. responsible for the delayed appearance of the course evaluation undertaken last semester by Zeta Beta Tau fraternity and Pi Beta Phi sorority.

The evaluation, which will provide information on approximately 400 professors and 500 courses, should be available near the end of April. The actual writing phase is now in process, with about two-thirds of the evaluations already reviewed and the other one-third expected to be completed next week.

Tom Pace, a coordinator of the project, said the slowdown resulted from mutilation of the computer cards caused by student handling. "We had difficulty finding a computer reader on campus that could read the cards slowly enough," he said. "We are now using the reader in the Pace said they will first have to go before Student Legislature to obtain an appropriation for the actual printing of the booklets. He estimated an initial printing of about 1,000 copies, costing approximately $1 each. "The cost of the booklets will depend on the actual cost of printing," Pace said.

The possibility of forming a permanent committee to evaluate courses has been discussed with the University committee on academic reform, headed by Dr. John Schutz. Pace hopes the administration and students could work together to put out an evaluation at the end of each semester.

Mel Westmoreland

Epps names assistant

Mel Westmoreland, a junior political science major, has been appointed presidential assistant in charge of external affairs by Richard Epps, student body president.

The primary duty of the office, formerly known as state affairs chairman. is to deal with matters outside the Chapel Hill campus administration which affect Students at UNC

"My primary duty will be coordinating the state affairs committee in an effort to maintain and improve relations between the students of the University and the people of North Carolina," Westmoreland

Plans for expanding the office of external affairs include setting up a series of speaking engagements to civic organizations and public high schools in the state to present the positive aspects of UNC. Westmoreland also wants to maintain contact with the governing council of the Counsolidated University and the General Assembly to insure that student opinion is considered in policy decisions.

Westmoreland said consideration was being given to the revival of Operation Interface, in which student met with University administrators as well as religious, business and governmental leaders from across the state to discuss problems involving students in relation to the various fields.

Westmoreland was assistant director of Operation Interface and a member of the state affairs committee, the attorney general's staff, honor court, and commission on reorganization of student government, and the legal services

Rides to voter registration

The campus bus system will extend its runs to allow persons to register to vote this Thursday, and Tuesday and Thursday of next week. Registration deadline is

The route extension, formally approved by the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen Monday night, involves making a loop around the Chapel Hill Municipal Special runs will leave South Campus at 15 minutes past each hour from 12:15 to 8:15 p.m. the next two Thursdays.

On Tuesday, April 4, the buses will leave South Campus at 15 minutes past each hour from 1:15 to 4:15 p.m.

There will not be a 5:15 p.m. run on Thursdays, however, because of downtown traffic problems.

On each run, the buses on their normal route will pass Wilson Library at 20 past the hour, and reach the Municipal Building at 25 past. On return, the buses will stop at Franklin Street and Wilson Library before returning to South

An additional return trip will leave the Municipal Building at 9:25 p.m. each Thursday.

According to Student Transportation Chairman Bailey Cobbs, the normal 10-cent fare will be collected for the special runs.

Formal approval for the runs was needed from the Aldermen because the current bus franchise granted in 1968 specifies the routes the buses must take.

Dentist awarded research grant

Dr. Thomas A. Brown, a former faculty member of the UNC School of Dentistry, has been awarded a postdoctoral fellowship to do specialty training in orthodontics at Harvard University School of Dental Medicine.

The grant which Brown received is supported by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and carries a stipend and other benefits totaling $10,000, supporting three additional years of training.

Brown taught two years on the UNC faculty until he returned to the

Blacks needed for counseling

The Human Sexuality Committee, in conjunction with the Roberson Street Community Center in Chapel Hill, will soon begin a sex counseling group similar to the UNC students service for the teenagers who use the center and other individuals in the Chapel Hill community.

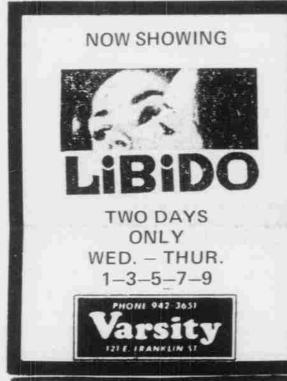

With the support of Fred Battle, center director, the committee is interested in locating black students to assist the Human Sexuality staff in counseling at the center. Any interested student will undergo approximately 16 hours of training in order to qualify as a counselor.

If interested, please call the Human Sexuality Counseling Service at

Sanford group to hold meeting

A meeting for anyone interested in working for the local Terry Sanford for President organization will take place today at 7 p.m. in room 217 of the

The meeting, open to both students and other area residents, will attempt to set forth basic campaign strategy, according to campus organizer Becky

"We plan to organize a group of volunteers to canvass door-to-door in Orange County and the surrounding area," she said.

Sanford, current president of Duke University and former governor of North Carolina, will be running in the May 6 N.C. primary against George Wallace, Shirley Chisholm and Edmund Muskie.
