

The Daily Tar Heel

Vol. 80, No. 143

Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Tuesday, April 4, 1972

Founded February 23, 1893

From the Fiddler's Convention at Union Grove to the 'Scottish Hills' of McCorkle Place to the background sounds emanating from Hill Hall - North Carolinians have a wide variety of music to listen to.

(Staff Photo by Tad Stewart)

Seven man race

Kitzmiller bids for House

by Lynn Lloyd
Staff Writer

David Kitzmiller, Democratic candidate for the North Carolina House of Representatives from the 17th District, told the Daily Tar Heel in an interview last week he feels "students, blacks, women and the working man have not had anyone to represent their interests" in state government.

"Most of the people that the members of the House represent have a below-average income, whereas none of the representatives will fall in this category," he said. "I intend to go to Raleigh as an advocate of the people—not just of the 17th District, but of the entire state."

A high school teacher and coach at Northwood High School in Pittsboro, Kitzmiller is currently working on a graduate degree at UNC.

TODAY: Increasing cloudiness with chance of showers or thundershowers; high in the 60's, low in the 30's; probability of precipitation 60 percent today, 10 percent tonight.

At Harry's auction

Everything had to go

by Richard Wilmot-Smith
Feature Writer

"Who'll give the bid for $9... Sold to the lady for $8. I warn you, I'm trying to prompt you," cajoled and prompted auctioneer Jack Johnson at the Harry's Restaurant closing down sale last Saturday.

"There's a nice showcase over there we're about to give away. Will you give me $20, David? I believe I would. We didn't come here to give it away... Sold to the young man for $20.

Everything had to go, from a microwave oven to the last saucer and cup. The auction was a lively affair lasting four and one-half hours as Johnson talked, sang and shouted his way through the sale of 180 lots.

Johnson did not observe the conventions of auctions. If the price was right, he'd shout "Sold" to a startled bidder and hit his walking stick against the seat he was standing on.

Nothing ruffled him and even when a dog interrupted the bidding with a loud bark, he had an answer: "What'll you give on the dog?"

Johnson worked hard and aroused the crowd. The prospect of being asked to bid was never very far away.

After four hours the occasion drew to a close. Many people

Consumer protection, "no fault" insurance, a statewide kindergarten system and the equal education for all students in public schools are a few of the major issues which concern Kitzmiller.

"I think loans to pay the difference between state and out-of-state tuition fees for University students should be made available to any non-resident student who affirms his intention to become a permanent resident of North Carolina," Kitzmiller said.

"Upon graduation this loan should become self canceling at the rate of 10 percent per year as long as the student is residing and employed in North Carolina," he continued.

Because he is opposed to any regressive tax because of the burden put upon those with lower incomes, Kitzmiller proposes to go to income taxes, raising tax rates on all individual incomes above $10,000.

"In 1963, 80 percent of all taxable property in Chapel Hill was owned by the University. The local source of revenue is property tax, placing a heavier tax on residents," Kitzmiller said. "If a certain percent of taxable property becomes impacted, the state should make direct payments of money to compensate local taxing units for non-taxable property held by the state."

The 36-year-old candidate wants to make young people aware of an amendment on the November ballot which will prohibit 18-year-olds from seeking public office in North Carolina.

David Kitzmiller

"I plan to work on legislation that would reflect the interest of the people I have been talking about," Kitzmiller said. "My profile is similar to that of the typical representative, but my philosophy is of the forgotten man—the average voter."

Kitzmiller will be opposed in the 17th district—Orange and Chatham counties—by Fred Cates, Phil Edwards, Ed Holmes, Trish Stanford, Pete Tripodi and Bob Windsor.

had gone home, and there were not many spectators or bidders left, but Johnson kept on working. He tried to sell neon lighting. But even he could not find a bidder. And the red sign was left unsold.

After it was all over, Johnson spoke with a surprisingly mild voice. He is a personal friend of the Macklin family, which operated Harry's Restaurant, and he was disappointed with what the sale brought in.

"An auctioneer," he said, "stands between the buyer and the seller, and that's hard. In fact, it gets a little hard trying to keep them spirited and keep up the enthusiasm and the momentum."

This sale was not his record for a non-stop performance. He once lasted eight and one-half hours at one job. But even he admitted he "may be hoarse Sunday."

Harry Macklin said he had no regrets about closing down. "Thank God the nightmare's over," he said, but he had tears in his eyes.

The decision to close was sudden. "After the spring vacation was over, we made the tentative decision to close."

Harry was reluctant to say why the sudden close came about, but sources indicate that with the expiration of the lease, his Winston-Salem landlord came up with a large rent increase. Meanwhile there are strong rumors that Wachovia bank has plans for the property. Wachovia's headquarters are in Winston-Salem.

Koontz to speak at commencement

by William March
Staff Writer

Elizabeth D. Koontz, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Department of Labor, will speak at the 178th UNC commencement exercises on Sunday, May 14, according to an announcement made Monday by Chancellor Ferebee Taylor.

Koontz is the first black and the second woman to address the University commencement in the history of UNC.

Formerly a school teacher in Salisbury and a North Carolina resident, she presently holds the title of Special Counselor to the Secretary of Labor for Women's Programs, and has been described as the "top woman in the Nixon administration."

Koontz will address the graduation exercises in Kenan Stadium at 2 p.m. on graduation day.

Chancellor Ferebee Taylor will preside at the Kenan Stadium exercises. Governor Bob Scott and UNC President William Friday will take part in the awarding of over 4,000 degrees. Senior Class President Lee Hood Capps will also speak.

Upon the completion of the 2 p.m. commencement exercises, a reception for graduates, their parents and friends will be held in The Pit.

In the event of rain, the ceremonies will be conducted in Carmichael Auditorium.

The only other woman to speak at a UNC commencement was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1935. For the past two years, there has been no speaker at graduation.

Koontz was chosen in accord with the stated intention of the Chancellor's Committee on Commencement of choosing a speaker from the field of humanities. A recognized expert in education, she was the first black president of the National Education Association.

Capps, student member of the committee, commented on the decision to have a speaker for this year's graduation. "We wanted to place a greater priority on commencement for undergraduates, and hopefully, to stimulate better attendance."

Capps said an informal survey of seniors "which gave a fairly composite picture of their desires" indicated only a minority of seniors were planning to attend the ceremony, but "a large majority of those planning to attend wanted a speaker."

Capps added that Koontz had been asked to prepare for a 20-minute speech. "The general feeling is that 20 minutes after four years isn't long to wait," he said.

Capps said Koontz was the first person contacted by the committee about speaking.

Capps also announced that a percentage of the money from cap and gown rentals will definitely go to the Molly Ellen Nicholson Scholarship Fund, but how much is not yet known.

Other commencement activities will be taking place throughout the weekend.

Alumni reunion activities will precede the Sunday finals on Saturday afternoon. The classes of 1902, 1912, 1922, 1932, 1942, 1952 and 1962 will have registration headquarters in Morrison Residence Hall.

The Annual Alumni Luncheon will be held at 12:30 p.m. in the new ballroom of the Carolina Inn Saturday, May 13.

Also on Saturday will be a University Band Concert at 4 p.m. under the Davie Poplar, and a Commencement Musical Concert at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The Old Students' Club luncheon will be on Sunday at 12:30 p.m. in the Carolina Inn's new ballroom.

Elizabeth Koontz

Chase Cafeteria will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday for the convenience of students, parents, alumni and friends.

Special exercises for the schools of Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Nursing and ROTC will be held on campus in the afternoon and evening following the graduation program in Kenan Stadium.

Baccalaureate services will be held by the various individual churches in the community.

The committee which made the plans for the changed graduation exercises was made up of Capps, Dean of Student Affairs C.O. Cathey, University Provost Charles J. Morrow and Director of Development Charles M. Shaffer.

Grad referendum today

An amendment to the Graduate and Professional Student Federation (GPSF) constitution which will in effect release Student Government funds to the GPSF will be voted on by all graduate and professional students today.

Passed by the GPSF Senate last Thursday night, the amendment deletes from the GPSF constitution about a dozen words which refer to the organization as a separate student government.

If passed, the amendment will release $3,000 for the remainder of this semester and $18,000 for 1972-73 to the GPSF.

Student Legislature passed a bill allowing the funds to be appropriated on the condition the GPSF would not consider itself an independent student government.

There will be five polling places: The Y-court and the Law School, open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; the School of Public Health and the Student Union, open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Craige dormitory, open from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Jim Becker, president of the GPSF Senate, said, "We predict voting will be light because few people will object to this change."

Assuming the referendum is approved, the GPSF plans to open its office on the second floor of the Student Union every afternoon from 1 to 5 p.m. using the additional $3,000 appropriated for this year.

"This will make it easier for graduate and professional students to communicate with the GPSF," Becker said.

Also in its meeting Thursday night, the GPSF Senate elected Anthony Coyne to fill a vacancy in its seven member Executive Board.

Register today

Registration for voting in the May 6 primaries will be held today at the Municipal Building, 306 North Columbia Street. The hours for registering are 9 a.m. until 12 noon and 1-5 p.m. Only one more day, Thursday, remains for registering in Chapel Hill before the deadline.

This rather large and unusual item didn't quite suit the buyers' taste last Saturday and had to be carted away along with the other unsold remnants of Harry's Restaurant. The restaurant was forced to close due to a large rent increase.

(Staff Photo by Tad Stewart)