Concerts slated

Choir still seeking funds

The Carolina Choir will continue its efforts to raise the necessary money for a trip to Austria this summer. No estimate was available Sunday of the proceeds from Saturday's 'Choir Day,' but Connie Bavelly, choir secretary, said the activities did "quite well." Bavelly also said the group plans at least two new fund-raising activities in the near future.

On April 25, the choir will present two benefit concerts, at 7 and 8:30 p.m. in Hill Hall. The minimum donation will be $2. Bavelly urged all students to attend the concerts. "We have appeared on campus many times for free," she said. "We're only asking $2 this time to help us to Graz, and we would really appreciate student support." The choir also plans to conduct a sale of doughnuts soon. In addition, the group will continue to solicit donations from businesses and individuals in the Chapel Hill area. Approximately $50,000 is needed if the choir is to go to Austria. They have been invited to perform as the resident choir at the Graz International Youth Music Festival in Graz, Austria, in July. If enough funds can be raised, all 70 choir members will go to Graz for the festival. Saturday's activities were blessed with official sanction when Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee announced he had designated the day Carolina Choir Day. The choir staged a Mile of Dimes collection, sold kisses and baked goods and staged a lawn concert in downtown Chapel Hill.

In the five years since the arrival of choir conductor Lara Hoggard, the choir has performed on campus 17 times without profit. Because they lacked funds, they have been forced to turn down a number of prestigious invitations throughout the country. The invitation to Graz is an extremely prestigious one, and all choir members are anxious to make the trip. They are confident that, with the help of students and other Chapel Hill residents, they can raise the necessary funds, make the trip to Graz, and perform in a way that will bring credit to the choir and the University.

Student wins contest

A UNC student from Moravian Falls was the top winner in the Student Folklore Contest sponsored by the N.C. Folklore Society. Jerry D. Joines, a junior zoology major here, won the $100 top prize for "Twelve Tall Tales from Wilkes County." His article was one of eight just published in the special student issue of "North Carolina Folklore." Five of the eight articles were written by UNC undergraduate or graduate students. The 62-page issue and the $100 contest prize for the Student Folklore Contest were both made possible by a grant from the N.C. Arts Council to the N.C. Folklore Society, which published "North Carolina Folklore." UNC students who were published in the journal were Patricia S. McLean of Murfreesboro, a 1971 graduate; Ted Malone of Coats, who was studied for a master's degree here; James M. Donohue of Orange, Virginia, a senior; and John Allen Davidson, Jr. of Murphy, a graduate student in English.

News in brief

Course evaluation delayed

The course evaluation booklet, scheduled to be available for sale today, will not be ready until Tuesday due to printing problems.

The booklet, which costs 25 cents, was prepared by Zeta Beta Tau fraternity and Pi Beta Phi sorority. It includes evaluations by students in last fall's classes.

Booklets may be bought at the Student Union Information Desk.

Orientation '72 to be shorter

Freshman orientation will be cut one day next fall due to "rising discontent among freshmen because of too much time and too few activities during the orientation program."

According to Murray Fogler, men's coordinator for orientation, the program will last only 6 days (August 24-30).

Fogler said the orientation committee would like to get as many applications for freshman counselors as possible.

"About 150 counselors are still being sought," he said. "The counselor is probably the most important individual during registration, especially in putting freshmen at ease about entering such a large university."

Fogler said next fall the committee will try to stay away from rigid schedules and allow counselors to plan their activities on a more individualized basis.

"There are no requirements for a counselor's job besides interest," Fogler said. "We would especially like to encourage people from fraternities and sororities to apply as counselors."

Applications may be picked up at the orientation office in room 237, Suite D, of the Student Union, until the end of this week.

Summer rooms now available

Residence hall occupants will be allowed to sign up this spring for summer room reservations, the Office of Residence Life announced Friday.

Residence halls which will be open for the summer are: Parker, Joyner and Connor for women; Alexander, Teague, Everett and Lewis for men.

Students presently living in dorms which will be open this summer will have first priority for reserving their rooms for the summer.

Rent charges, per session, will be: men, $78 single, $58 double; women, $93 single, $70 double. Room rent payment should be made to the University Cashier, Bynum Hall. Upon payment, the student will receive a housing application, which should be brought to the Housing assignment office in Bynum during summer sign-up.

The summer sign-up schedule is as follows:

Students reserving their present rooms: April 26-28.

Continuing students: May 1-12.

The Craige Graduate Center will be open for the first time this summer. Summer sign-up for Craige is currently underway in the dorm. Graduate students attending summer school should make their payment to the Cashier ($78 for a single, $58 for a double), and take their room applications directly to Craige.

All sign-ups for undergraduates will take place in the Housing assignments office in Bynum Hall.

Rent payments are not refundable on cancellations received after May 29 for the first session and July 7 for the second session, according to Residence Life.

Class of '73 to hold 'chalk-in'

All students who have ever had a desire to draw on sidewalks are urged to attend the "Chalk-In" to be held Tuesday by the rising senior class in front of the Student Union.

Morey Lampley, president of the Class of '73, said all colors of chalk will be sold to students so they can express themselves on the asphalt of the driveway in front of Student Union (across the street from the Tin Can).

The event will start at 11 a.m. and will last until 5 p.m. If it rains Tuesday, the "Chalk-In" will be postponed until the following day, Lampley assured that the driveway will be closed off for the event.

Lampley said there were two purposes for the event.

"One is to give students a chance to express themselves as artists, poets or anyway they like. The other function the 'Chalk-In' will serve is to raise money for the rising senior class."

He also said this is the first event sponsored by the Class of '73 under the new officers, and that the rising seniors do not have any money at all in their class treasury.

"We want the rising seniors to identify with their senior class and we appreciate any input they might offer," Lampley added.

Cap, gown sale to end Tuesday

Student Stores has announced the extension of cap and gown sales for two days, through Tuesday.

Lee Hood Capps, president of the senior class, said, "I encourage members of the Class of '72 who are going through the graduation ceremonies to take advantage of this extension, because it will be extremely difficult to obtain a cap and gown for commencement beyond the 18th."

Student Stores announced that this year's sales of caps and gowns have surpassed sales for the last several years. Capps revealed that thus far, cap and gown sales have raised more than $1,000 for the Molly Ellen Nicholson Scholarship Fund.

New program set for summer

A work-study training program in elementary guidance, leading to a master's degree, will begin during the second summer session this year at UNC.

Those accepted for the program will do full-time study and research during the second summer session of 1972 and the first summer session of 1973. During the academic year, 1972-73, they will do half-time study and half-time work as counselor trainees in the schools of Cabarrus County.

Upon completion, students will receive a master's degree in guidance and certification good for grades from kindergarten through 12th grade. The program is, however, specifically designed for elementary counseling.

Pay during the program will be $75 per week for the twelve weeks of summer school and $3,000 for half-time work in Cabarrus County.

Applicants for the program are wanted immediately. Preference will be given to graduates in education, psychology and sociology; all applicants must have at least 12 hours in psychology and/or sociology. Those interested should contact Neil A. Rosser in the School of Education in Peabody Hall.

Candidates set for UNC visit

All Democratic party candidates for Lieutenant Governor will speak Tuesday in the Student Union in room 202-204 at 7 p.m.

The candidates will be given time to discuss five areas of interest that they would work on if elected. Candidates will be given 15 minutes to speak.

After all the candidates have spoken, a question and answer period will follow.

A short reception will be held in the second floor mezzanine of the Union following the meeting.

The event is cosponsored by the UNC Young Democrats Club and the Orange County Young Democrats Club.

The Office of Lieutenant Governor has gained importance since it was made a $30,000 a year full time position, said Joe Johnson, chairman of the event.

The candidates are Allen Barbee, Reginald Frazier, Margaret Harper, Jim Hunt and Roy Sowers.

Barbee is a member of the state legislature from Spring Hope. Frazier is a black New Bern attorney. Harper is a Southport newspaperwoman. Hunt is a Wilson attorney.

Sowers is former secretary of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources from Sanford.

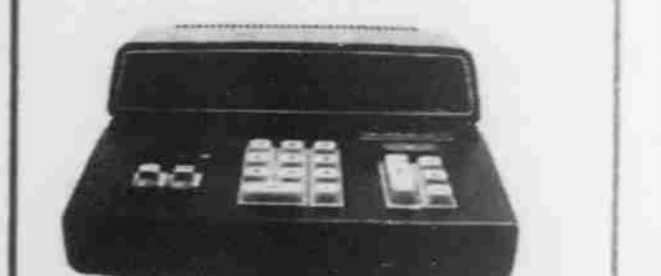

SG committee sets interviews

Interviews for students interested in becoming members of the Committee of Community Affairs and Minority Groups will be held on Tuesday and Wednesdays from 2 to 5 p.m. in Suite C of the Student Union.

According to chairman Michelle Alston, one of the projects of the newly formed committee will be the area of academic credit for work done by students outside the classroom.
