

Insight into yourself and Canada

"The Toronto Exchange was originally established as a social and cultural exchange for UNC and Canadian students to take part in annually, but it has turned out to be more than that for its members," said Howard Smith, a chairman of the exchange this year.

"We pick a varied cross-section of students to take part in the group. When you put 32 people together in preparation for the Canadians' visit to UNC, you are able to achieve quite extraordinary results with an unusually common ground for understanding and friendship."

Applications for the exchange can be picked up at the Student Union Information Desk today thru September 22. Interviews will be September 18-22 in the Union in a room to be announced. Those who are interested can sign up for the interview when the application form is picked up. Applications must be returned before interviews.

The Toronto Exchange began in 1958 when UNC President William Friday and the president of the University of Toronto decided to establish "a cultural exchange" between their campuses.

Every year, 30 students are chosen at each school to take part in the planning and exchange visits that stretch out over a four-month period. The Canadian students visit the UNC campus for a week in November, and the UNC students return the visit to Toronto in January.

Members of the exchange are paired together and live with their comember during the visits. Planning for the week of activities begins in early October after the members are chosen.

Forum host applications now offered

Applications are being accepted by the Carolina Forum for those who wish to meet the fall Forum speakers - Dick Gregory, Bernadette Devlin, Jack Anderson, Sen. William Proxmire, Michael Harrington and Daniel Ellsberg.

Approximately 40 students will be allowed to meet each speaker personally, 10 during the pre-speech dinners, and the remaining 30 during the post-speech reception.

Alan Stoudemire, chairman of the Forum, said the process was begun to give each student a fair and open chance to meet the speakers. Applications are available at the Student Union information desk.

Besides the normal information, the application requires that the student write a brief essay concerning his interest in the speaker. The applications should be turned in as soon as possible to the information desk.

Smith said the chairmen of the UNC group are "hoping to reconstruct the wide cross-section of students that we had last year. We are actively seeking people of diverse interests and backgrounds."

"The only true requirement for anyone is that he must enjoy people and be willing to spend a lot of time working for the exchange," Smith continued. "We spend a large amount of time preparing for the Canadians' visit. We find ourselves growing together here before our learning begins in Canada."

"Each exchange is as different as the 32 people who make it up. You learn about yourself as well as those you work with. You receive new insight into the Canadian people, their country, their problems, hopes and fears. The only risk to any student who wishes to be a part of it is involvement."

The Canadians will be in Chapel Hill for five days in November over the Duke football weekend. The UNC students will leave for Toronto in January for a five-day stay.

"We try to cram as much of the UNC life as we can into the five-day period," Smith said. "We'll be going to the football game, planning parties, discussions, social activities and many other things. A large part of our time is put into fund raising projects to sponsor the exchange. We have a budget that can go up to $3,000."

"We limit the group to 30 people because it is impossible to truck more than that to Canada since we travel by bus," Smith said. "And if the group is too large, you can't get to know everyone."

News in brief

Aldermen set bus forum

A public forum will be held today at 7:30 p.m. by the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen to discuss the proposed $440,000 campus-town bus system recently proposed by the Transportation Commission.

The public meeting will be held as part of the regular weekly meeting of the aldermen in the Municipal Building.

The bus system proposed by the commission would operate 19 buses for both the community and campus.

Students would be assessed $5 per semester for passes, which would allow any student to ride anywhere at any time.

Community riders would be charged 15 cents a ride, including transfers. A pass similar to student passes could be purchased at a yet undetermined fee.

Townpeople will discuss whether the town should hold a tax and bond referendum in January to finance the transit system in addition to student fees and bus fares.

The aldermen will also consider a proposal to add the Central Business District (CBD) to the neighborhood development area in the October application for federal funds.

"The Animals are Crying," a film being promoted by the U.S. Humane Society, will be shown later in the evening for those who wish to remain after the program.

Condition good

Kendall Garton, UNC student who was involved in a car accident Friday morning, was reported in good condition at N.C. Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon.

Garton was seriously injured in a one-car accident in which a UNC coed died.

Animal welfare to be discussed

Dr. Jane Shaw, Chapel Hill veterinarian, and Graham attorney John H. Snyder, will speak on animal welfare at the Wesley Foundation today at 8 p.m.

Sponsored by the Animal Protection Society of Chapel Hill, Inc., the meeting is open to the public and will provide question and answer opportunities on the subjects of animal population control and animal abuse and the law.

A special invitation is extended to UNC students, who are needed to assist in the town and the Humane Society in solving problems of neglected and abandoned pets.
