The Tar Heels literally pushed their way to a 3-2 victory over the Campbell Camels Friday in Buies Creek, in a tough, physical two-hour soccer match.

The game saw both teams miss repeated scoring opportunities as the defenses gave the only outstanding performances of the afternoon.

Repeated long clears by freshman Kevin Ledwith and senior Jim Smith forced the Camels back to their own goal.

With 35:28 left in the first half, Carolina's Steve Dawson scored the first goal of the game on a kick from the corner by Bruce Worth.

The game was marred by many penalties, with neither team able to sustain a drive in the other's territory. Campbell had many opportunities to score on penalties and corner kicks but was blocked by a strong Tar Heel defense.

Campbell scored its first goal on a penalty kick with 12:50 left in the first half. John Bush made the tally for the home team. The penalty kick resulted from Carolina goalie Mark Berson's taking too many steps with the ball.

Campbell began to control the game at the end of the first half, as Carolina began to tire. But the Camels were unable to score a goal, mainly due to the efforts of fullback Smith. The first half ended in a 1-1 deadlock.

When the second half opened, neither team was able to control the ball for more than a minute at a time. The game became more and more physical, at one point resulting in a near-fight, ending with Campbell's Bush being ejected from the contest.

Carolina took a 2-1 lead on a penalty kick by David Taylor and did not score again until the last two minutes of the game.

Campbell tied the score with 7:51 left in the game when Bob Coleman headed a ball into an open goal.

The defensive battle continued as both teams were stilled until Carolina broke the deadlock on a 40-yard goal by halfback Tim O'Connor. The Tar Heels held on for the victory.

Campbell scored all its goals on defensive mistakes and never could mount an effective offensive attack.

Four-way race

Anarchy in AL East

by Winston Cavin
Sports Writer

With only a couple of weeks left in the regular season, the American League Eastern race is as confusing as ever.

Four teams have been taking turns trying to clinch the title recently, but no single team can beat out the other three.

Two of the contenders were considered unlikely choices four months ago. Boston and New York were floundering around in the 400 to 450 neighborhood and all eyes were on the Tigers and the Orioles.

American League fans felt it was only a matter of time until Detroit faltered and Baltimore took firm control of a division it has ruled for three years.

But the underdogs from Boston and New York have surprised baseball's experts. And Detroit has hung on longer than most had expected.

Not everybody is watching the American League schedules to see who's playing whom as baseball goes into its last few weeks.

Baltimore has the disadvantage of playing fewer games than the other three contenders. The Orioles play 154 games while the Yankees and Red Sox play 155. The Tigers will have the most chances to make up losses, playing 156 games. The differences were caused by the player strike in April, which knocked out the first eight days of games. Normally, every team plays 162.

Going into Friday night's action, Boston was definitely in the driver's seat. The Sox stood one game ahead of Detroit and a game and one half in front of New York and Baltimore.

So the Sox play 19 more games, Detroit 18, New York 16 and Baltimore 15. Bad news for Oriole manager Earl Weaver. Not only does he play the fewest games of the four contenders, but he started a three-game series Friday night in New York's Yankee Stadium.

Weaver is confident his team can take the title they were originally favored to win, but many observers disagree.

The Yankees are still in the race, mainly because of who they play. After this weekend's three-game hitch against Baltimore, the Yanks play only two games against their rivals. New York has two left with Detroit, six with Cleveland and five with hapless Milwaukee. Manager Ralph Houk is laughing.

Meanwhile, the Orioles still have to play the Red Sox six times. The Sox face the Tigers seven more times. With those three teams beating each other, the Yanks stand a good chance of taking the title.

So, while Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Oakland roll in their respective divisions, baseball fans still have a reason to read the papers. And four Eastern teams scramble for post-season glory.

Senate approves '76 Olympics funds

United Press International

WASHINGTON - The arguments the Winter Olympics are simply "rich men's games," refused to kill legislation Friday authorizing a $15.5 million federal subsidy of the 1976 Winter Olympics in Denver.

By a vote of 64 to 7, it dumped a motion by Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., to return the bill to the Senate Interior Committee for further study, a move that would have virtually killed any chance of its enactment this year.

Leading the argument of anti-Olympic senators, Harris charged that most of the Denver games' organizers were wealthy businessmen who would simply increase their gains at taxpayers' expense if the games were held.

"If a lot of people are going to get rich out of this, why shouldn't they put up the cost?" Harris shouted. "Why should working class people pay for a lot of other people to get rich? The taxpayers ought not to be asked to pay for these rich men's games."

The bill's authority to spend $15.5 million for construction would be void if Colorado voters adopt a proposed state constitutional amendment in the Nov. 7 election that would prohibit spending any state funds on the 1976 Olympics. This would effectively eliminate Denver as the site.

Colorado has budgeted $6.2 million toward the games, but polls have shown a majority of the state's residents don't want to be hosts. Harris said the Senate should wait until after the election and follow Colorado's lead.

Harris said the 1968 Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, cost $250 million, five times the original estimate, and the total bill for this year's winter games in Sapporo, Japan, came to $1.3 billion.

Aside from the $15.5 million in construction funds another estimated $15.5 million in federal housing funds would be made available to build quarters for athletes, officials, coaches and the press that later would be converted into low- and middle-income housing. The Defense Department was expected to need another $4.6 million for military personnel to work on site preparation.

The $15.5 million sum was $4.4 million less than Denver officials asked for, because of the decision to hold bobbed events at the existing run at Lake Placid, N.Y., rather than build a new one at Denver.

Intramural track starts Tuesday

Entries are due this Tuesday, September 19, for this year's intramural track meet. The meet will be held on Tuesday, September 26, and Wednesday, September 27. There will be separate competition for each of the three divisions, Residence Hall, Fraternity, and Graduate-Independent. Events will include the 60 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 880 shuttle relay, 440 shuttle relay, half mile run, discus, shot put, high jump, and broad jump. Three entries are allowed per organization for each event, except the relays. At least eight entries must be made to constitute a team.

INTRAMURAL MANAGERS are needed for Granville G West and Ehringhaus E. Persons interested in applying for these positions should see Sam Parker in the Intramural office.

TABLE TENNIS and Horseshoes begin Monday. Tag Football moves into the second week.

Chapel Hill Cinema

"The Beguiled." Gothic suspense tale got poor reviews but it was directed by Don Siegel, so it should be of some worth. Carolina Theatre. 1:04, 3:45, 6:56, 8:48.

"Blacula." A ridiculous and poorly done black-exploitation horror film. Varsity Theatre. 1:35, 5:15, 7:45.

"Butterflies Are Free." Film version of contrived, computerized Broadway romantic comedy is done with a toning down of the wisecracks and an emphasis on emotional honesty. The result is one of the finest films of its kind in a long time. Impressive performances from Edward Albert and Goldie Hawn. Plaza 1. 2:15, 4:30, 6:45, 9.

"The Other." Attempt at tale of unlit horror contains many intriguing moments, and some beautiful images more choreographed than edited, but Robert Mulligan's brand of lyricism is really wrong for the material, and the dialogue and acting often leave much to be desired. Plaza II. 2:45, 4:50, 7: 9:05.
