Everybody loses ACC slips against outsiders

by Al Thomas Sports Writer

CRASH ... BANG ... FLOP ... It had been building for three weeks, and Saturday afternoon it finally happened.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has been on a slow but steady drift downward since the opening weekend of the football season, with the record against outside teams 4-1 the first Saturday, 2-2 the second and 1-4 the third.

This past Saturday ACC teams notched an 0-4 mark against the outside world.

The wire machine brought in the news with a consistent but disheartening tick Saturday afternoon: the Carolina offense was all but completely stymied by Ohio State with the Buckeyes rolling to a 29-14 win; Okłahoma only scored seven points in the first quarter but then exploded for a 52-3 stomping of Clemson; State tried and tried but fell to the Georgia muscle 28-22; and supposedly revitalized Maryland choked and lost 16-12 to Syracuse.

A moment of silent meditation would seem to be in order after that As bad as the results were, there was at least a copper lining in the dark, grey skies. First of all, not every ACC team lost Saturday afternoon. Duke's Blue Devils recorded a win, the only trouble being that it was over sister ACC team Virginia. Secondly, in three of the four games with outside competition the ACC squads were going up against strong, nationally respected teams. In three of those four outings the scores weren't all that lopsided either. Until Woody Hayes unleashed Archie Griffin, the Tar Heel defense appeared to be in control of the Buckeyes. When Griffin came in at the start of Ohio State's third possession though, the Buckeye offense rolled.

Griffin finished with 239 yards to his credit, the same number as the entire Carolina club could muster.

Still, Carolina was not embarrassed Saturday afternoon against the nation's fifth-ranked team.

State actually passed and rushed for more yardage than Georgia - 372 total yards to 363 - but as usual made too many miscues.

Losing two fumbles and throwing for three interceptions, the Wolfpack put itself in a deep, deep hole. Those mistakes, coupled with Georgia's time-consuming, control offense, sealed State's fate.

Lou Holtz and the Wolfpack are now saddled with a 1-2-1 record mainly because of their own errors on the playing field.

Hootie Ingram cried all last week, bemoaning the fact his Tigers had to face unbelievably-strong Oklahoma. Well, despite all the poor-mouthing and crying Clemson did make it out to Norman Saturday afternoon.

For the initial one and one-half quarters, Clemson's defense proved worthy, holding the high-scoring Sooners to a mere touchdown. Then, with seven minutes to go in the half, the Tiger defensive wall did not just crack, it crumbled.

From there it was all Oklahoma until the final play of the mismatch when Eddie Siegler kicked a 49-yard field goal to keep Clemson from being shut out.

The Terps have been puzzling so far this year. They were considered one of the top clubs in the conference during pre-season, but have fallen far short of expectations.

Against a Syracuse team which had been thrashed by both State and Wisconsin, Maryland's offense was almost immobile. The defense did better, but a Syracuse spurt in the second quarter was all the Orangemen needed.

Syracuse buried the Terrapins with a flurry of points in the second period. The Orangemen drove in for a touchdown, then forced quarterback Al Neville into a safety moments later. Another quick touchdown gave the home team all the points it needed.

Duke's victory in Wallace Wade Stadium was surprisingly easy over what had been reputed to be an up-and-coming group of Cavaliers.

Steve Jones provided the Blue Devils' with a previously missing consistent ground attack, racking up 188 yards despite carrying the ball only four times during the second half.

Jones was sidelined due to a minor injury, but his first half performance was enough to give Duke a 30-0 advantage at intermission. Duke's offense found it tough-going without him, but the Blue Devils almost effortlessly hung on for a 37-13 win.

Cross country team wins; Frosh gridders here today

The Carolina cross country team opened its season Saturday with dual victories over N.C. State and Virginia at Charlottesville. Tar Heel Reggie McAfee broke a course record while sparking UNC to a 2-0 conference record in the double meet.

UNC defeated Virginia 19-40 and State 26-29. State handed Virginia another loss, 20-37, on the rainy course. State's record slipped to 1-2, while Virginia's dropped to 1-2 as well.

McAfee's record-breaking running brought him in at first place with a time of 25:03.6. Virginia's Phil Meyer, one of the top runners in the ACC, finished second at 25:14. Carolina's Tony Waldrop was third with a 25:32 time and State's Jimmy Wilkins had 25:52. The other players finishing in the top ten were: Ackley, State, 26:09; Allen, State, 26:31; Kevin McLee of Carolina, KORETIZING'S Get Acquainted ON DRY CLEANING ALL DAY MONDAY. action again next Saturday. UNC will meet Maryland and William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia.

The UNC Tar Babies will play their first home game of the young season today when they face Richmond in Kenan Stadium. Game time is 1:30 p.m. strength last week despite their drubbing. The Tar Babies committed a surprising nine turnovers, five of which set up State scores. UNC had four passes intercepted, three kicks blocked and two fumbles lost in the game. The running game was one of Carolina's bright spots last week. Quarterbacks Bill Paschall and Denny Griffin ran well, as did tailbacks James Betterson, Tommy Woodard and Tim Bialy.
