

Tar Babies tie Cavs

Carr: 'Let's go celebrate!'

by Carl Neal
Sports Writer

"Let's go celebrate!" laughed Carolina freshman football coach Charlie Carr after his Tar Babies had come within a point of a story-book finish Monday in Kenan Stadium.

Carolina, down by 21 points at halftime, mounted a spirited second half charge to tie favored Virginia, 21-21, in a freshman-junior varsity showdown.

The Tar Babies allowed the Cavayearlings all of their 21 points before the first half was over and went to the dressing room without a single point on the board. Then two different UNC quarterbacks, after a third quarter score, tossed two long bombs to tie the game.

Virginia scored first early in the first quarter on an eight yard pass play from Joe Schaefer to split end David Livesay. That scoring drive started on the Virginia 20 yard line and took eleven plays.

Virginia's first second quarter score came after a bad punt gave the Cavaliers the ball on the Virginia 43 yard line. It took the the visiting team six plays culminated by Raymond Keys' ten yard scoring run around the left side.

The third Virginia score was set up on a pass interception by linebacker Chuck Baer. Baer intercepted the ball on the goal line and returned it to the Virginia 25-yard line. From there, it took the Cavaliers five plays to score. Dennis Delinger sprinted 31 yards up the middle to put the Tar Babies three touchdowns back.

The first UNC score came with 3:19 left in the third quarter and was set up by tackle Steve Baker's fumble recovery on the Virginia 44. The Carolina drive took five plays to move the ball to the Virginia five yard line. Tailback James Betterton, who gained 163 yards in the game, scored from the five on a smash through the middle.

The second Carolina TD came on a spectacular 92 yard pass play from quarterback Denny Griffin to end Mike Dutchak. Dutchak had the defender beat by five yards when he took the ball on the Virginia 40-yard line and sprinted unimpeded to the end zone.

The third Tar Baby score came on another long bomb thrown by Bill Paschall to Brian Smith. Carolina took the ball on their own twenty after Virginia missed a field goal and the eighty yard pass came on the first play from scrimmage.

There was 8:19 left in the game after the last score and Coach Charlie Carr elected to tie it up. "We felt that we had plenty of time," Carr commented after the game. "We thought that we could move the ball and score again."

Both teams stopped themselves with fumbles and penalties for the rest of the game and left the scoreboard tied at the gun. Virginia tried a 54 yard field goal with one second left but the attempt fell short of the end zone.

Carolina came close to scoring in the first quarter when the Tar Babies missed a 38 yard field goal and again in the second quarter. UNC fell short when Virginia intercepted a pass on their own goal line.

The Cavaliers missed two field goals in the game and had two touchdown pass plays called back because of penalties.

Carr seemed to be pleased with the way his players came back in the ball game. "I can't say enough about the determination of our squad," Carr paused to congratulate a player. "This was a team equal to those we've lost to this year and we played the best half of the year today," he said.

"The press box called those plays," Carr answered when asked about the two long bombs that brought the Tar Babies from behind. "We had it open all day but we just couldn't hit it." Carr finally had a tint of sadness in his voice.

"We had people playing injured and they did a good job," Carr continued, praising his team as all coaches are wont to do. "We showed more poise than earlier in the year..."

Betterton was the leading ground gainer for Carolina with 163 yards, while the best single Virginian could muster was 114 yards by Raymond Keys.

UNC edged Virginia on the ground with 250 yards to the Cavs' 223. The Tar Babies also passed for 242 yards, compared to 205 yards for Virginia.

The Carolina freshmen have one more game remaining. They will face Duke in Durham on November 11.

Gino's magic wand

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Gene Tenace may have waved the magic wand, but manager Dick Williams was the Head Magician of the scrambling, scrapping and new World Champion Oakland Athletics.

Every move Williams made, and he made a million of them, was as good as gold — even to taking "Most Valuable Player" Tenace out of the ball game for a pinchrunner only halfway through the A's dramatic 3-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds in Sunday's seventh-game clincher.

Tenace had, indeed, done his job. In the first five games of the Series, he slammed four homers to put himself in the Series record book alongside the likes of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. He didn't break those fellows' record in the seventh game — but he did drive in two of the three runs.

For this, Fiori Gino Tenacchi, which is the way he originally was christened, was voted the "Most Valuable Player" award by the sports writers covering the Series, which means he gets a new car from a magazine.

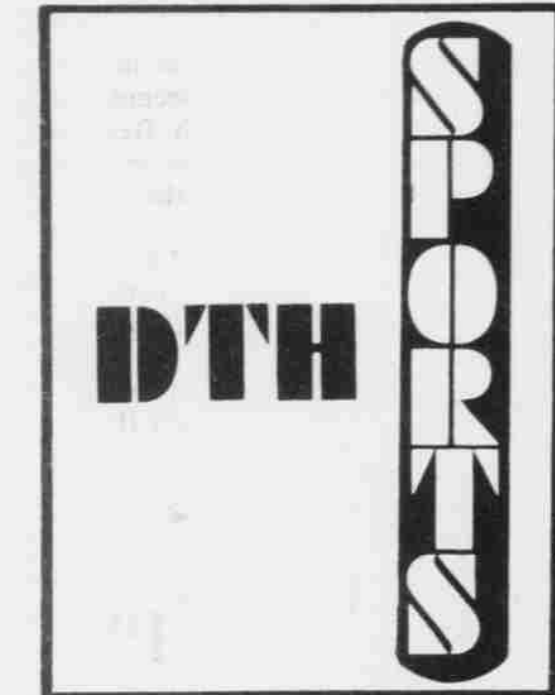

The A's first run was set up with one out in the first inning when Angel Mangual slammed a center field drive that center fielder Bobby Tolan misjudged, coming in and then going out and leaping and having the ball tip off his glove for an error that allowed Mangual to go all the way to third. One out later the artificial turf got into the act.

Denis Menke was backing up at third to field what looked like a third-out hopper from Sal Bando when the ball struck the seam of the carpet around the dirt third base area and took a high bounce over his head for a single that scored Mangual.

The Reds finally matched that run in the fifth inning when Tony Perez doubled off A's starter John Odom and one out later was moved to third by successive walks to Cesar Geronimo and David Concepcion, and then brought home when pinch-hitter Hal McRae hit a sacrifice fly off reliever Jim Hunter, the eventual winner.

But that very play could have been the turning point against the Reds. Cincy starter Jack Billingham had been mowing the A's down, retiring 10 straight batters at the point where Reds manager Sparky Anderson elected to have McRae hit for him.

Anderson just wasn't having luck with his decisions the way Williams was.

Early out for year; archery and ratings

Carolina linebacker Steve Early will miss the remainder of the 1972 football season because of a knee injury. Early, a junior from Marion, N.C., tore ligaments in his right knee during UNC's 21-0 win over Wake Forest Saturday.

Early's knee was operated on Sunday night.

Early, 6-3, 209 pounds, saw limited action as a reserve last season. He had played much more often this year, mainly behind senior Mike Mansfield at inside linebacker.

The first annual Tar Heel Open Archery Tournament will be held on Thursday, Oct. 26 at 3 p.m. The tournament will be staged on the Outdoor Archery Range at the east end of Fetzer Field.

All interested students and faculty are encouraged to sign up on the bulletin board next to the Intramural Office in Woolen Gym. For additional information, contact Bob Rider at 967-7155.
