Lunch-In today

Peter Gilmore, local Jim Hunt campaign coordinator, will be the featured speaker today at the weekly "Lunch-In for McGovern."

Gilmore will speak for Jim Hunt, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, who expressed support for McGovern on campus last week.

A statement by State Senator W.P. Saunders will be read, and several local candidates will speak briefly.

Interested students are invited to bring their lunch and come to the Pit at 11:30 p.m. to listen to music and the speeches.

Absentee ballots

Students who have not yet mailed in their official absentee ballot applications should do so by Saturday, according to Notary Public William Hood, coordinator of the Student Government (SG) absentee ballot efforts.

"County election boards which receive the applications later than Monday are not required to mail the ballots back to the voter until Thurs., Nov. 2. Ballots must then be returned to the election board office prior to noon on Sat., Nov. 4," Hood said.

This would leave a student very little time to get the ballot back to the elections board to be counted in the Nov. 7 balloting, he added.

SG's free notary service will continue in the Student Government office in the Student Union weekdays, from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., except on Friday night.

There will also be notary service this Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the SG office.

Persons who have not yet applied for absentee ballot applications (the first step in the process) can still do so in person. For Orange County voters, the Board of Elections office in Hillsborough is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

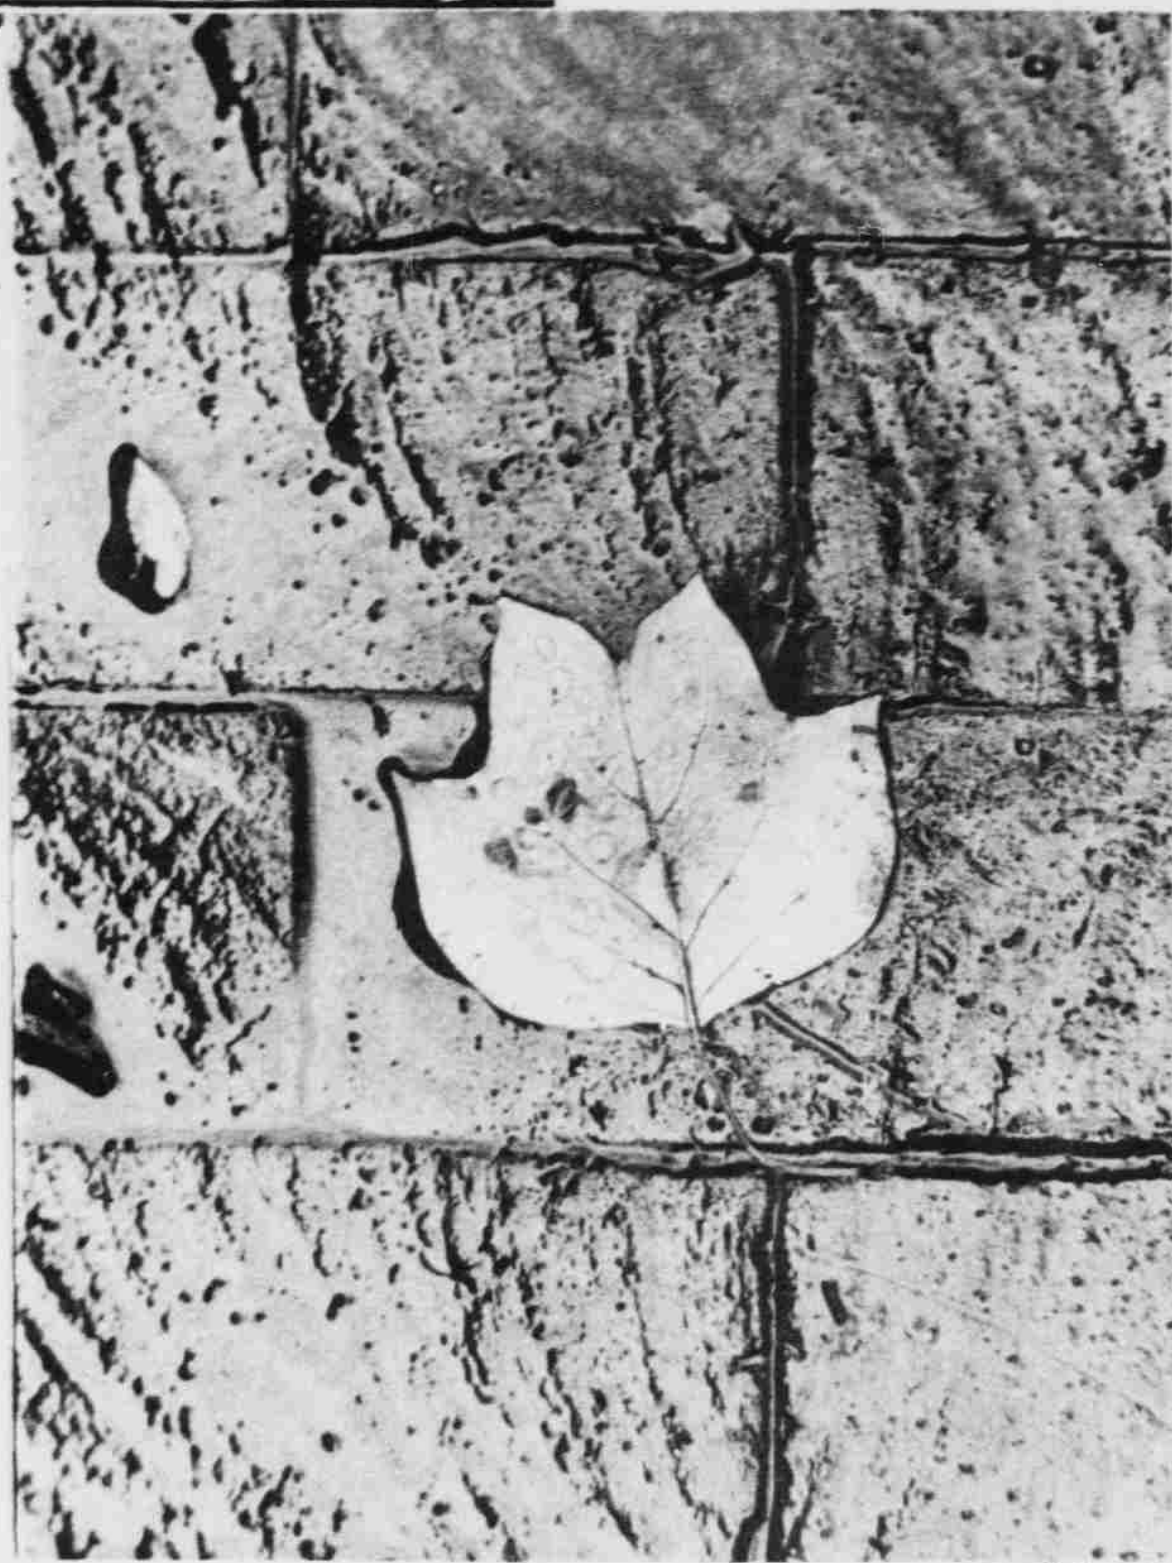

The board will issue an absentee ballot application for a voter or his spouse.

YES to form

The North Carolina Youth for Easter Seals (YES) is starting a local chapter in Chapel Hill. An organizational meeting will be held today in 151 Hamilton Hall at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to providing direct services to the physically handicapped, YES also plans to promote public awareness of their needs. The group has taken architectural obstacles to the handicapped as their statewide project.

Interested persons may call 933-2763 or 933-8145 for further information.

Dorm room signup

Room signup for spring semester will begin Thursday and continue through Monday, Nov. 6, according to the Department of Residence Life.

The time and place for signup will be posted in each dorm, except for Old East, Old West and Carr. Residents of these dorms will sign up in the housing office in Bynum Hall.

No deposit is required, but room rental fees are due in full by Dec. 15, or the room in question will be assigned to another student.

Students who wish to stay in their present rooms next semester will sign up Thursday and Friday. Signup Monday and Tuesday will be for students who wish to change rooms within their dorms.

On Thursday, Nov. 2, students who want to move into Mangum, Ruffin, Grimes, Teague, Manly, Connor, Cobb, Parker and Morrison may signup.

Signup Friday, Nov. 3, has been reserved for those who wish to move into Lewis, Aycock, Everett, Stacy, Graham, Kenan, Alderman, McIver and Ehringhaus.

Monday, Nov. 6, is the day for students who want to move into Winston, Alexander, Avery, Old East, Old West, Joyner, Spencer, Whitehead, James and Carr to signup.

Beginning on Nov. 7, applications will be taken from those not presently living on campus.

Students are strongly encouraged by Residence Life to signup for their present rooms due to the crowded conditions on North Campus.

Survey completed Painting policy delayed

by Ken Allen
Staff Writer

In 1970, Director of Residence Life Robert Kepner came back from a conference in Michigan with the idea that students should be permitted to paint their dorm rooms.

In 1971, Steve Saunders successfully ran for office of Residence College Federation (RCF) chairman on a campaign plank calling for a policy of allowing students to paint their dorm rooms.

In 1972, however, UNC students are still where they have been all along. Nobody is allowed to touch dorm room walls with a paint brush except the Physical Plant — and then only in the course of normal maintenance, not for decorating purposes.

But no one has changed his mind on the issue. Saunders still feels painting is a "concrete way for students to personalize their own rooms." And Kepner still thinks it "would humanize the environment" and "individualize living space."

So what is being done? On October 27, 1971, RCF recommended a proposal to the Department of Residence Life that would allow students to paint their rooms, provided: all occupants of the room agree upon the color; the color be suitable for future occupants; and the residence director, assistant residence director or college master approve of the plan.

Under this proposal, a $12.50 deposit would be given by the occupants to whomever gave permission for the painting. The deposit would be returned upon inspection and approval of the job, or forfeited if the paint job was deemed unsuitable and had to be repaired by the Physical Plant.

But the University did not want to jump into something without all the facts. So in the spring of 1972, a survey of schools across the country was taken to find out what was being done concerning a paint policy on other campuses.

Of the 88 schools that responded to the survey, 43 had a paint policy of some type, 5 schools were experimenting with one, 20 were considering one, and 8 schools did not have a paint policy and were not considering one.

Most schools with policies put a limit on the length of time between paintings, as well as the type and color of paint used.

The survey was completed and a draft submitted to the Department of Residence Life for approval on July 25, 1972. As of October 18, 1972, copies of the final draft were still not available from their office.

The next step, according to Kepner, is to form a committee with representatives from RCF, Residence Life, the Business Office and the Physical Plant to meet with Dean of Student Affairs, Donald Boulton. From this group the decision on a paint policy for UNC students would be made.

But, until that happens, students can do nothing to change their walls... besides hiding them.

Reorganization goal of RCF proposal

by Ken Allen
Staff Writer

A proposal to dissolve the Residence College Federation (RCF) and replace it with a broader organization was introduced at its meeting Tuesday night.

The major purpose of the change is to provide better representation for students in independent dorms.

A committee of the executive board of RCF consisting of Steve Saunders (RCF Chairman), Don Kanak (Governor of Granville Residence College), Andy Foley (Governor of Morehead Residence College), Ralph Yount (Governor of Morrison Residence College), Amelia Smith (Executive Board of the Association for Women Students), and Mike O'Neal (Men's Residence Council Chairman) have been working since March on a proposed new constitution for the group.

The proposed Residence Hall Association (RHA) would differ from the RCF in that independent residence halls would be members of the RHA and would have representation on the Governing Board.

Presently, only dorms which are part of a residence college are represented in RCF.

Legislative power would be vested in the Governing Board instead of the Men's Residence Council, Association of Women Students and Craige Graduate Center Council as is currently the case with RCF.

The Governing Board would consist of the president of RHA, one representative from each residential area and the chairmen of the Men's Residence Council and the Women's Residence Council.

The Governing Board would have additional powers not granted to the RCF, including the power to establish procedures for changes in the amount and distribution of social funds, to establish uniform treasury procedures for residential units, to establish residential conduct regulations and to establish dates for the election of residential unit officers.

"It's still the same old story, a fight for love and glory..."

A matter of life

After sifting all the evidence, I have recently concluded that a school teacher's life is harder now than it ever was. And yet, all their difficulties, it seems to me that, by and large, teachers are better now than they ever were. (They're also prettier, I think, but that's neither here nor there.)

Nor does the average school board have a bed of roses. One of the many problems it faces is that of holding on to good teachers. It's just possible a layman can help a little here. For instance, a law enacted by Congress gives teachers and employees in public school systems the right to save for retirement up to 20% of their annual salaries—before income taxes.

Of course there's more to it than this, and members of the school board—and teachers—can be forgiven for not knowing these details about tax-free retirement dollars. I'll be glad to explain them. Just contact me at 3700 Chapel Hill Blvd. Or call 942-3200.
