

News in brief

Boulton lists priorities

The new dean of Student Affairs told members of the Association of Women Students (AWS) that his office would undertake new efforts this year to increase services to students.

"I am not proposing sweeping changes, but I desire to take what is already great and see if we can move it in new and different ways," Dean Donald Boulton said at the AWS meeting Tuesday night.

Boulton replaced C.O. Cathey as dean in July. Cathey resigned to devote more time to teaching history.

The first internal priority of the Division of Student Affairs this year, Boulton said, is to reorganize the administrative structure around its functions, eliminating unnecessary programs and establishing new ones to meet new needs.

The dean's two major service goals for this year are improvement of the Student Health Service and development of a counseling service for students.

The University needs a full range of counseling services which would provide a door for students to get answers to their academic and non-academic problems, Boulton said.

Another major concern of the Division of Student Affairs is the improvement of the residence halls.

Describing campus dormitories as structures "built for monks," Boulton feels the University can keep its buildings in much better condition.

Boulton said new solutions should be found to the problems of day care in Odum Village and Victory Village and in the way of facilities for blacks and international students.

'73 Yack photos

Picture appointments and subscriptions for the 1973 Yackety Yack are now being taken in the Yack office in Suite D of the Student Union.

Subscriptions are $6. The sale will continue until December 1.

Picture appointments are also being set up in Suite D. Student photos will be taken in room 217 of the Union November 8 through December 1. Times are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday except on Thursdays, when times are 1 to 9 p.m.

Yack office hours for both picture appointments and subscription sales are Monday through Friday, 1 to 5 p.m.

Unlimited busing

Today is the last chance for students to buy bus passes for the student bus system.

The $6 passes allow unlimited rides on student buses until December 8.

Passes will be on sale from 5 until 10:30 p.m. today at the Information Desks of all the South Campus dormitories.

Nick on campus

Nick Galifianakis, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, will be mixing informally with students at 1:30 p.m. Friday in The Pit.

The candidate will stay for approximately 45 minutes, during which time, he will make a brief speech and then talk individually to students.

Galifianakis is running against Republican Jesse Helms, a Raleigh television executive.

Frosh Council

Freshmen are being urged to become involved with Freshman Council, a program sponsored by Student Government (SG).

The purpose of the program is to help freshmen students make the transition from high school life into the University community.

The first council meetings will be in the form of workshops to reach some conclusions as to what those involved feel the objectives of the council should be. The council may become an action group or simply an educational experience, depending upon the feelings of the students involved.

It is stressed that the council is not a political organization although it is sponsored by SG.

As stated by Richard Epps, "The Freshman Council concept was begun as an effort to help the freshman find some sense of direction in a community as large as ours. I only hope freshman students will take advantage of this unique opportunity to become involved."

The council concept was first created by then Student Body President Tom Bello in 1969. Since then, it has expanded from a small group to include a wide variety of interested freshmen.

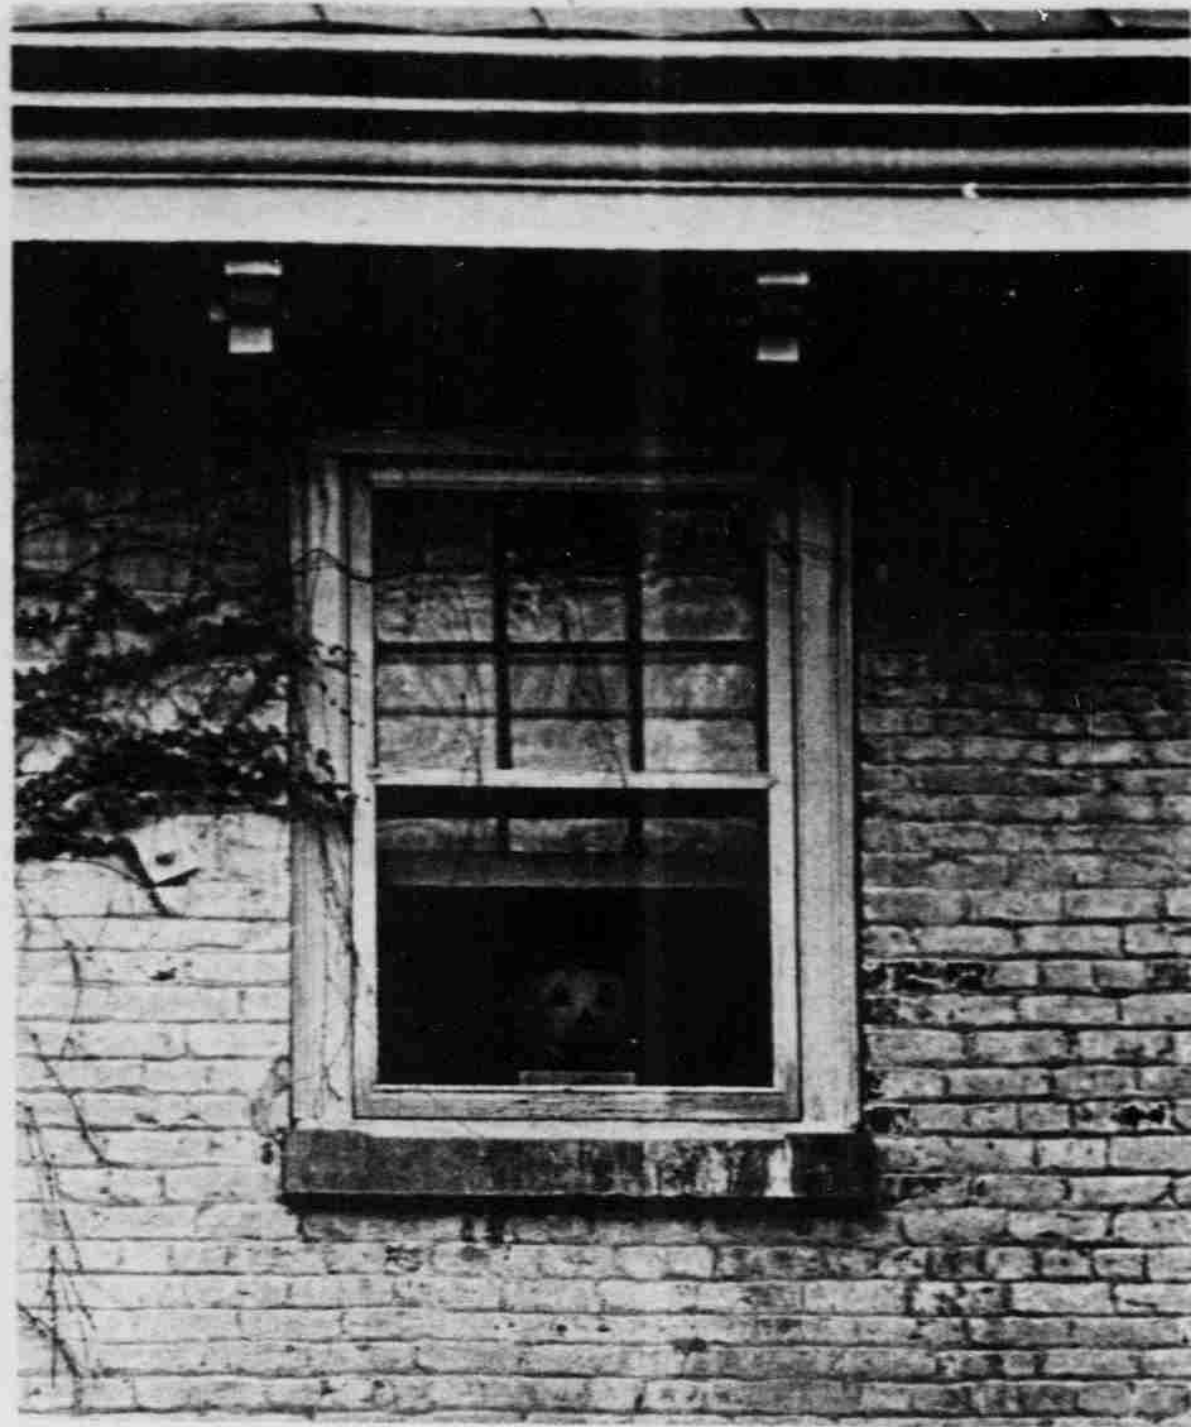

Interested students are asked to submit a letter to Epps, stating a desire to join the council and goals they feel the council should work to accomplish. The deadline for these applications is Friday, October 27. Letters should be addressed to Suite C, Student Union.

Morgan to visit

State Attorney General Robert Morgan will address students and faculty in room 5 of the law school Friday at 12 noon.

A question and answer period will follow his talk on "The Role of the Attorney General."

Morgan, seeking reelection, is being challenged by Republican Nick Smith of Chapel Hill.

A little early

Halloween does not arrive in Chapel Hill until next Tuesday but this dorm resident decided that he would get in the spirit of the occasion a little early. The Great Pumpkin would smile. (Staff photo by Tad Stewart)
