News in brief

Spooks to visit Pit

Today is Halloween and all the ghosts and goblins will be putting in appearances, along with Santa (a bit out of season?) and other musical groups, in The Pit starting at noon.

The festivities, entitled the Music Festival for UNICEF, is sponsored by Gamma Sigma Sigma (GSS) and will keep going strong until 8 p.m.

Other groups and individuals playing for the benefit are South Wing, Gary Cole, George Seltzer and Frank Dieter. King Nyle I, soon to become Emperor of the United Invisible Nations, will play one of his last concerts before leaving Chapel Hill.

It's all free but donations will be taken by GSS and APO campus service fraternity. In case of bad weather, the festival will be held in the Great Hall.

Unity rally set

Students will be able to meet Democratic candidates for office in North Carolina and show support for the Democratic ticket at a Democratic Unity Rally planned for Thursday from 12:15 to 1:30 p.m. in The Pit, Speeches by Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee, and Democrats Wilbur Hobby and Robert Morgan will highlight the rally, which is sponsored by the Young Democrats Club, the Orange County Democratic party and campus groups campaigning for Democratic candidates.

Local candidates for county commissioner, State House and State Senate will attend the rally along with representatives of national and state campaigns.

Applications due

The deadline for Freshman Council applications has been extended to today. Freshmen are urged to bring their applications by Suite C of the Student Union rather than mailing them.

New seminar

The Curriculum in Peace, War and Defense will be offering a student-faculty seminar entitled "Arms Control: Past, Present, Future" next semester.

Lectures by recognized authorities on various aspects of the arms control issue will be a chief feature of the seminar, according to Samuel Williamson, one of the professors who will be participating in the seminar

Scheduled lecturers include Jerome Kahan of the Brookings Institution; Morton Halpern, an ex-assistant to

According to Williamson, enrollment in the seminar will be limited to about 20 undergraduate students, who will be able to take the course for three hours' credit, and three or four graduate students, who will receive no credit.

"We're trying to stimulate real discussion and to encourage expertise in an area that will be a real issue," said Williamson.

The seminar will host a speaker every other week, and the undergraduates in the program will meet, as a group, when there is no speaker.

Though there will be no final exam, undergraduates will be required to submit a research paper on some subject pertaining to arms control.

Sororities expand fall rush to include freshmen women

by Jill Williams Staff Writer

Freshman women will be eligible for first semester rush next fall, according to a new policy approved by the Panhellenic Council.

Current freshmen may participate in the upcoming spring rush.

"In voting for this, sororities have committed themselves to structuring their houses for freshmen," Julie Jones, assistant dean for student life, said. "Sororities will have to offer enough to keep their members interested for four years."

The Daily Tar Heel is published by the University of North Carolina Student Publications Board, daily except Sunday, exam periods, vacation, and summer periods. No Sunday issue. The following dates are to be the only Saturday issues: September 2, 9, 16 & 23, October 14 & 21, and November 11 & 18.

It is only in the past few years that there has been a significant number of freshman women. Sororities have been geared to transfer students and they have developed as two-year organizations.

Eventually there will be one large fall rush per year and probably just informal rushing in the spring.

"Sororities won't have to spend as much time on rush and can devote their efforts to other projects," Jones said.

W.T. GRANT COMPANY 214 N. Tryon St. Charlotte, N.C. "The houses must accept the challenge that goes along with freshman rush. This involves more depth in the sorority program. Girls that are members for four years will have more to offer in this respect."

Why a sorority? "It offers a lifestyle with a close group of friends; a small group to identify with on a large campus," Jones said.

Most campuses with a Greek system have first semester rush for freshmen.

Sports top FDA poll of mishaps

United Press International

WASHINGTON The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said Monday that its first computerized survey of household and recreational accidents revealed that the most frequent injuries involve team sports and bicycles.

Using reports from 119 hospital emergency rooms in 30 states from July to October, FDA listed 8,095 persons injured in team sports; 7,676 from bicycles and bicycle equipment; 4,487 from stairs and railings at home; 2,812 from windows, glass walls, panels and doors; and 1,992 from unpowered household cutlery.

The FDA said these sports resulted in this number of injuries: football, 3,736; baseball, 2,437; basketball, 725; soccer, 199, volleyball, 179; hockey, 79; lacrosse, 15; and unspecified others, 725.

Because of the high number of athletic injuries reported, FDA plans to investigate sports products and playing surfaces, said Malcolm Jensen, director of its Bureau of Product Safety.

"If it is designed to provide a level of protection, definitely we will be looking into it," Jensen said, adding the investigation would include football helmets, shoulder pads, shin guards, artificial and natural turf, face masks and other athletic products.

Full reporting by the 119 hospitals began July 1, after the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System NEISS had been tested for one year.

"NEISS is not going to wipe out household accidents or unsafe products overnight," said FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards.

"But it is a solid new resource for getting information and computing this information rapidly into effective remedial action to improve consumer safety."

The report noted, however, "Injury reports carried electronically through NEISS indicate that a product was involved in an accident, but not necessarily that the product caused the accident."
