

Press liberty panel set

"Freedom of the Press—the Citizen's Stake" will be the topic for a panel discussion at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Gerrard Hall.

Discussing the topic will be: Jerome Barron, dean of the Syracuse School of Law; Norman Smith, civil liberties attorney; Howard White, editor of the Burlington, N.C. Daily Times-News; and Christine Witcover, assistant U.S. attorney.

Evans Witt, editor of The Daily Tar Heel, will act as moderator.

Health program

College and high school students interested in attending health professional schools are invited to participate in a workshop on standard tests for admission to be held Tuesday, Feb. 27, at UNC and North Carolina Central University (NCCU).

The program is scheduled for 2 p.m. in the Health Education Building at NCCU and for 7:30 p.m. in 223 MacNider Hall on the UNC campus.

History course

A new course for colonial history buffs still has some vacancies, the UNC Extension Division has reported.

The course, which will begin March 1, will combine three lecture sessions on Thursday evenings with three field trips on Saturday to historic North Carolina locations.

Designed to acquaint the participant with North Carolina's colonial heritage, the course will emphasize social and cultural developments from the founding of Bath, the oldest town in North Carolina, to the establishment of the present state capital in Raleigh.

The cost of the course is $45, which includes transportation and admission fees to the various historic sites.

Arrangements will include lunch and dinner stops, though costs of meals are not included in the fee.

Jerry Cason, instructor in history at UNC-CH, will teach the course, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Thursdays, March 1, 29, and April 3.

Anyone may register for the course by calling 933-1125, or writing the Extension Division, 209 Abernathy Hall.

Honor Courts

There are several seats now open for appointment in both the Men's and Women's Honor Courts. The open Men's Court seats are Morrison, Ehringhaus, Upper Quad and Off-Campus. The open Women's Court seats are Conner, Morrison, Spencer, Parker, Whitehead and Off-Campus.

Sign-up for interviews, to be held through Friday, Feb. 23, will be in Suite

B of the Union. For more information call the Court office at 933-5208 or Rick Turner at 929-6305.

Prisoner plight

A speech and slide program concerning the plight of North Carolina political prisoners will be presented at 7:30 tonight in 100 Hamilton Hall.

The program will focus on several prominent political prisoners. Pamela Owens, a member of the N.C. Political Prisoners' Committee, will speak and show slides illustrating the activism of particular prisoners, how they are dealt with and what interested persons can do to help.

The program is free of charge.

UNC takes king

The UNC Chess Team took the honors at the Wake Forest Intercollegiate Chess Tournament last weekend.

UNC got the team prize with a 15½ (out of 20) score. Dana Tabor, George Statham and Chris O'Connell received first, second and third place individual honors.

Hunt seeks open Senate

by Jody Meacham
Staff Writer

The portion of the N.C. House of Representatives rules prohibiting closed meeting of committees and subcommittees may be extended to cover the N.C. Senate as well.

Rep. Patricia Stanford Hunt, D-Orange County, who proposed the original rules amendment in the House and led the fight for its eventual adoption, introduced a bill Thursday which would repeal G.S. 143-318.4(10).

That statute presently provides that "Any committee or subcommittee of the General Assembly has the inherent right to hold an executive session when it determines that it is absolutely necessary to have such a session in order to prevent personal embarrassment or when it is in the best interest of the state."

Hunt's original rules amendment applied only to the House. The effect of this new bill, if passed, would be to include the N.C. Senate under the open meetings requirement.

At the time of the rules adoption, Hunt said that she was unsure if such action would actually prohibit executive sessions in light of the existing law.

Her new bill would delete that portion of the present law which conflicts with the House rules, in effect banning closed meetings in both the House and N.C. Senate.

The bill has been referred to the House Committee on Rules. To become law, the bill must receive a favorable report in committee and then be passed by both the House and N.C. Senate. The N.C. Senate did not have to act on the previous action in the House.

SALE?

Well, yes and no. Our bargain corner is always nicely stocked with low-priced treasure, but we don't usually boast of a sale unless a giant new batch comes in.

At the moment we've a middling size batch of children's books, a fairly good clump of gift books at reduced prices, plus the usual lot.

Not really up to "sale" proportions, but a handsome lot deserving a look or two.
