Guerillas grab U.S. diplomat

A group of Black September Palestinian guerillas occupied the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum Thursday, seized a group of diplomats including U.S. Ambassador Cleo A. Noel as hostages and demanded the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted assassin of Robert F. Kennedy. The French, British and Soviet ambassadors escaped in the initial confusion by climbing over a wall, the Sudan News Agency said.

Reds break tense deadlock

Communist officials broke a tense deadlock Thursday and announced that 136 American prisoners of war and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. The sudden announcement came as U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers and 11 other foreign ministers—including those of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong—initiated a nine-point agreement in Paris providing guarantees for a lasting peace in Vietnam.

Mitchell blasts hiring feminist

Martha Mitchell said Thursday "I resent it like hell" that Jill Ruckelshaus, wife of President Nixon's environmental chief and an ardent Republican feminist, has joined the White House staff as a $50-a-day consultant. "I just resent this women's lib business," the wife of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell said in a telephone interview from their Manhattan apartment.

State media want shield law

There have been no problems yet, but North Carolina broadcasters and newspaper reporters would still like a newsmen's shield law to protect them from having to disclose confidential information or sources. That's what Wade H. Hargrove, attorney for the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters, William Lassiter, attorney for the North Carolina Press Association, and A. Howard White, the Chairman of the Press Association Legislative Committee, told a Senate Judiciary Committee in Raleigh Thursday.

Funding cuts may eliminate legal services by June 30

by Bill Shipman
Staff Writer

There may be no legal aid service for the poor in Chapel Hill after June 30. N.C. Legal Services, which gives legal aid to past, present and potential welfare recipients and deals mainly with domestic cases, may cease operation this June. The program, which began in Chapel Hill in January, 1971, was funded by HEW through the N.C. Department of Social Services to demonstrate the possibility of a statewide legal aid service. The service may receive funds until Nov. 30, but that is the latest possible date, according to service coordinator Ken Broun.

Government cutbacks will also eliminate the legal aid service in High Point, N.C., which opened shortly after the Chapel Hill office. The High Point office has been much busier than the one in Chapel Hill, because Orange County offers a very limited clientele, Broun said. Service recipients must meet certain guidelines concerning financial status and family. These guidelines eliminate most students that might otherwise use the service. Broun said that 90 per cent of the cases handled are domestic, involving divorces or child custody. Some consumer and landlord-tenant cases are also handled. The cutbacks are also jeopardizing legal

Aid deadline now March 9

The deadline for applications for financial aid has been extended from March 1 to March 9, the Student Aid Office announced today.

The deadline is effective for new applicants as well as currently enrolled students renewing their financial aid. Periods covered by such applications would be summer school, 1973, and the 1973-74 academic year.

William M. Geer, director of Student Aid, said that applications received by the new deadline date will be given first priority. Those received after March 9 cannot be processed until all first priority applications are funded.

Geer explained that the extension of the deadline by one week was made in hopes that all students who need financial aid will file their applications promptly.

Noting the many uncertainties and threatened cutbacks in federal appropriations for 1973-74, he emphasized the importance of meeting the March 9 deadline.

Press hearings

Hearings scheduled this week before the U.S. Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights concerning a federal newsmen's shield law have been postponed until March 13-14.

Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the subcommittee, announced early this week that the confirmation hearings for Patrick Gray as head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be called for Wednesday and Thursday by Sen. James Eastland, chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Thus, no hearings could be held by the subcommittee while the full committee was in session.

DTH Editor Evans Witt was scheduled to testify at the hearings Thursday. He is now scheduled to appear March 13 before the subcommittee to discuss the rights of college and underground newspapers.

Professor dies

Internationally known professor Ethel Nash died here Wednesday at the age of 63. A famed author and consultant in marriage and family counseling, she was the wife of Dr. Arnold Nash.

Prof. Nash was an associate professor in the UNC Medical School, senior research associate at the Carolina Population Center and an associate at the Institute for Research in Social Science.

Workshop topic

"Freedom of the Press" will be the topic of an American Women's Workshop panel at 8 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Burton Levy, 2014 Tadley Drive.

John B. Adams, dean of the School of Journalism, will lead the discussion. The public is invited.

The workshop is an interracial, inter-faith group working to overcome prejudice.

India series set

The India Association of UNC has recently initiated an India Discussion Series to examine contemporary problems common to India and North America. The series meets at 2 p.m. every Saturday in room 202 of the Union.

Dr. Naren Tambe, professor of education at N.C. Central University, will examine "Education in India and the U.S. Plight of the Underprivileged and Disadvantaged" this week.

Medical series

The Medical Law and Ethics Lecture Series, an annual colloquium sponsored by the Whitehead Medical Society, will be held weekly from March 7 through April 11. The lectures will begin at 7:30 p.m. every Wednesday in the Clinic Auditorium of Memorial Hospital. Lectures are open to the public.

Symposium '74: What will it be?

by Tad Stewart
Staff Writer

The Interim Committee of the Carolina Symposium will have a broad selection of topics to choose from Monday night when they decide the focus of the 1974 Carolina Symposium.

Proposals ranging from women's liberation to the Orient have been submitted by students and professors.

The selection committee, co-chaired by Ken Richardson, Jim Henderson and Ellen Leach and consisting of 15 to 20 members, has been accepting ideas for the symposium since the beginning of the semester.

Along with their ideas, students and professors have given a general outline of how the topic could be approached, according to Richardson.

The committee will choose the topic it feels the "most students would be interested in and would be the most feasible," Richardson said.

After the topic has been selected, the committee will choose a chairman. Applications are available to the entire student body. Interviews will be held the first week after spring break.

When the chairman is elected, he will organize the symposium, choosing his own staff. It will take about a year, Richardson said, to assemble the symposium, which is tentatively scheduled for the third week in March, 1974.

The chairman first must raise the necessary funds. In the past, academic departments, the administration, various foundations, Student Government and the Union have contributed to the symposium.

Some of the topics that the committee is considering are higher education, the Constitution, sports, Russia, mass communication, creativity, marriage and the family, and Cuba.

Last year's topic was "The Mind of the South—the Southern Soul."
