

Cameron Indoor Stadium

After State, Heels go to Duke

by Winston Cavin
Sports Editor

For those who expect Carolina to romp over Duke Saturday afternoon, either you don't know your history or you're a blind optimist. It's not going to be easy.

The Carolina Tar Heels, trying to recover from a hair-raising loss to State Tuesday night, will try to get back in the win column against Duke in Durham Saturday afternoon.

Game time is set for 1:30 p.m. and the contest will be regionally televised. Junior varsity teams of the two schools will meet tonight in Cameron Indoor Stadium at 8 p.m.

Five times since 1967, Carolina teams have taken that dangerous 12-mile trek to Cameron Indoor Stadium, only to come away with a loss. Not since January, 1967, has UNC beaten Duke in the tobacco city.

Of course, the home court advantage means a lot in the ACC. But Duke may be one of the deadliest places of all. Over the past 11 seasons, Duke teams have compiled a 109-16 record in Durham.

No matter what happened all those other times, Carolina will definitely have a good chance of beating Duke. The Heels have already done that twice this season—by 91-86 in the Big Four tournament and by 81-71 in Chapel Hill.

Tar Heels coach Dean Smith is not looking forward to visiting the Pit. "It's very difficult to beat any good team three times in one season," he says of the Devils. "But of course it can be done.

N.C. State proved that in Chapel Hill Tuesday night."

The Tar Heels will carry a 21-6 overall record into the game, 7-4 in conference play. Duke is 12-12 and 4-7. It will be the last regular-season game of the year, and Duke faces the possibility of having its first losing season since 1939.

Smith expresses confidence that the Heels will bounce back from their disappointing loss to the Wolfpack. But he warns that Duke has the potential to be an ACC championship team. Duke's greatest win so far has been over Maryland in Durham.

Blue Devils to watch will be guard Gary Melchioni and forward Chris Redding. Melchioni is the team's best ballhandler and Redding does most of the work under the boards. Redding is also Duke's leading scorer (19 points).

Other Blue Devil principals include guard Kevin Billerman and frontcourt men Alan Shaw and Bob Fleischer. Shaw, a senior, has had a poor final season, while sophomores Billerman and Fleischer are pleasant surprises for Waters.

Duke subs who could play key roles include 6-9 freshman Willie Hodge, one of the nation's hottest recruits last year, 6-4 soph Pete Kramer, who plays forward, and 6-4 Dave O'Connell, another hot freshman. O'Connell is a guard.

Carolina will go into the contest with a solid starting five. Guards George Karl and Darrell Elston, forwards Bobby Jones and Donn Johnston and center Ed Stahl will start. If they get into foul trouble (something that always happens in Durham), look for John O'Donnell and Mitch Kupchak in the frontcourt and Brad Hoffman and Ray Hite in the backcourt.

The Blue Devils have had their ups and downs this year. There have been nights when they approached their potential, but on other occasions, they have been as inept as any college team could be.

But no matter how bad they have looked in the past, Duke will be a different team Saturday. With 8,800 hooting Durham fans egging them on, Waters' men will give Carolina all it wants

ACC ratings scrambled

With only one weekend left in the regular season, the final ACC basketball standings are still a mist. This weekend's contests will determine the standings and the pairings for the upcoming conference tournament.

After Wake Forest upset Maryland Wednesday night, the picture is even more confusing. This weekend's decisive games find Carolina visiting Duke, Maryland going to Virginia, and Wake Forest playing at N.C. State.

State has locked up the regular-season title with its 11-0 record. Carolina is still second with a 7-4 mark, while Maryland is third at 6-5. Virginia and Duke are tied at 4-7. Clemson is 4-8 (their regular season is over) and Wake Forest is last with a 3-8 mark.

The ACC tournament will begin next Thursday in Greensboro.

been longing for some action since the NFL season ended, hold on to your proverbial hats. McAfee will be shown running the fantastic race he ran against Marty Liquori last weekend at the AAU meet at Madison Square Garden. McAfee gave the former Villanova star one of the toughest races of his career, and both runners finished the mile race at exactly the same time. Liquori was awarded the race on the basis of a long lean at the tape.

After the race, the New York Times lauded McAfee as being the best black American miler in many a year.

The race may be seen locally on Channels 11 and 2.

NCAA bids given to 'Cocks, others

from UPI wire reports

The nine at-large bids for the NCAA basketball tournament were announced Thursday as were the first three berths to the National Invitational Tournament.

Fourth ranked Marquette (22-2), and Jacksonville (21-5) are the two entries in the Mid-East Regional to be played at Dayton, Ohio on March 10th.

The three at-large berths in the East were filled by Providence College (21-2), St. John's of New York (19-5), and Syracuse (21-4). These at-large teams will square off against the Ivy League, Southern Conference, and Middle Atlantic winners at sites yet to be determined.

South Carolina's Gamecocks will compete in the Mid-West Regionals at Wichita State along with ninth ranked Houston and twelfth ranked Southwestern Louisiana.

Oklahoma City is the at-large entry in the West Regional to be held at Utah State.

The first three invitations were issued and accepted to the NIT to be held March 17-25 in New York.

Notre Dame, Virginia Tech, and American University accepted bids to the annual post-season classic at Madison Square Garden. Notre Dame (14-11) was chosen on the basis of their defeating top ranked Marquette and St. John's while executing probably the toughest schedule in the nation.
