

Pentagon discloses cutbacks

WASHINGTON—The Pentagon will provide Congress today with a list of military bases that will be closed or cut back in the latest economy move aimed at an eventual saving of up to $1 billion a year, and eliminating tens of thousands of jobs.

The administration acknowledged that because of the political sensitivity of the action, it held off until after President Nixon was safely re-elected.

The full billion-dollar-a-year savings under the latest cuts will not be realized for a few years, since considerable money goes into closing down or restructuring the bases. The Defense budget for the coming year is $79 billion, more than half of which is used to pay 2.3 million servicemen and 1.1 million civilians.

South Viets aid Cambodians

SAIGON—Several platoons of South Vietnamese troops, mostly irregular militiamen and border rangers, crossed the border into Cambodia Sunday to aid the crew of a burning supply ship bound for the isolated capital of Phnom Penh, military sources said.

The source said the incident occurred about 7 1/2 miles northwest of Tan Chau, the border embarkation point for a 19-vessel convoy that for more than a week had tried to break through a Communist blockade of the Mekong river to reach Phnom Penh. Tan Chau is 100 miles west of Saigon.

Eight ships made the treacherous 60-mile voyage Sunday, steaming into Phnom Penh behind a thick blanket of bombs laid down by U.S. B52s and tactical warplanes—their 39th consecutive day of raids into Cambodia.

Nixon going to Europe

WASHINGTON—President Nixon said Sunday he would make an extended visit to Europe this fall.

The president did not say precisely where or when he would be traveling, but he described the trip as "a grand tour," indicating a swing through the major European capitals.

The President also revealed that he would be meeting with French President Georges Pompidou before embarking on the European trip. He indicated their talks might not take place in Washington.

Nixon's disclosures suggested that he was turning his attention increasingly to U.S. relations with Europe now that American forces have been withdrawn from Vietnam. Most of his important foreign visitors so far this year have been from Europe and the Middle East.

On Tuesday, Nixon will welcome to Washington President Giulio Andreotti of Italy, and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt is scheduled to arrive May 1 for two days of talks with the President.

In these talks, and during his travels, Nixon is expected to discuss strengthening of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the future of economic relations, particularly trade between Europe and the United States.

The President told reporters at a March 15 news conference that the State Department and the National Security Council had advised him to visit some foreign capitals, especially in Europe and in Latin America as well as Africa because he had not gone there since taking office.

He also mentioned Japan as one of the countries he hoped to visit.

At the time, Nixon said his advisers were concerned that the summit meetings he held last year in Moscow and Peking might indicate "that we don't care about our neighbors in the Western Hemisphere..."

"It is more difficult to be President, when it is reaching peace," the President said.

"Too often after war, we fail to build a structure for everlasting peace," he said, adding that America must remain strong because it is the only nation that "can provide the leadership."

"If peace is not kept," he added, "the responsibility will be ours."
