CGC calls on administration to aid funding of 14 groups

by Bill Welch
Staff Writer

An amended version of the proposed Student Government (SG) budget for 1973-74 received final approval from the CGC Finance Committee Monday night. The action came on a unanimous vote in an eight-hour marathon meeting that lasted until 3:30 Tuesday morning. Included in the budget is a section labeled Joint Student Government-University Administration Projects, which calls for the University administration to contribute $11,799.80 to 14 campus organizations not funded by the administration in previous years. The move is an attempt to make the University assume some of the financial burden for the campus groups which the committee members said should not be funded entirely from student fees.

The proposed budget calls for $93,508.80 from student fees to go to the Carolina Union, and $155,762.67 be spent on other activities.

In addition, $35,000 for WCAR to convert to FM broadcasting will be held in a reserve account. The station will receive the money if the student body approves the expenditure in a referendum this fall.

The budget contains a $29,644.97 deficit, which requires that $35,000 be taken out of SG's General Surplus.

The Debate Team, which has been a center of controversy since the committee's first public hearing, received an increase in their appropriation from SG to $4,500. The budget calls for the University administration to give the team $2,000.

The $4,500 appropriation represents a compromise between members of the committee. The original proposal gave $700 to the team.

Other organizations in the joint projects section of the proposed budget have funds appropriated along guidelines of 40 percent from SG and 60 percent from the University.

In another contested point of the budget, the Finance Committee appropriated $27,020 in student fees to the Graduate and Professional Student Federation (GPSF).

The GPSF expenditures were cut in almost every category, with the departmental allocation cut to $4 per graduate student.

The committee reversed Sunday's decision to cut the salary of the DTH business manager and restored it to $7,200, but cut the total DTH appropriation from $47,070 to $38,900.

The committee set the Yackety Yack's appropriation at $4,960, a cut from the Yack's $9,500 request.

The SG appropriation to WCAR for operation excluding the FM conversion was raised to $4,473.30. The increased funds are to be spent on new equipment for three studios.

A move by committee chairman Dick Baker to cut the salaries of WCAR personnel was defeated. Committee member Richard Robertson said, "They have already put a lot of their own money in the station, and if anybody around here deserves salaries it is them."

The appropriation from SG to the Publications Board was set at $605. The Carolina Quarterly's appropriation was set at $2,200, and the Undergraduate Literary Magazine's share was reduced to $1,000.

The Association of Women Students' (AWS) appropriation was reduced from $4,425 to $2,712.50. SG funding for the AWS' newsletter SHE was cut to $750 from $1,500, while the printing and publicity expenditure was reduced from the original $1,150 to $250.

The appropriation to the Black Student Movement (BSM) was reduced by $500 to $600. The BSM's two $500 scholarships were eliminated and the money was given to the group's Cultural Committee and the BSM newspaper, Black Ink.

SG's appropriations and the University administration's contribution to the joint projects groups were set as follows: Carolina Symposium, $1,000 from SG and $3,187.50 from the University; International Student Center, $2,321.20 from SG and $3,481.80 from the University; Laboratory Theater, $480 from SG and $720 from the University; Student Alumni Awareness Program, $12 from SG and $18 from the University; Student Transportation Commission, $1,550 from SG and $16,000 from the University.

The UNC Concert Band, $500 from SG and $750 from the University; UNC Tar Heel Debate Team, $4,500 from SG and $2,000 from the University; Individual Events Team, $800 from SG and $1200 from the University; Men's Glee Club, $480 from SG and $720 from the University.

The University's contribution to the several sports clubs was designated by the committee to come from the Athletic Department.

Those groups' appropriations are as follows: Football Club, $260 from SG and $390 from the Athletic Department; Rugby Club, $200 from SG and $300 from the Athletic Department; Crew Club, $200 from SG and $500 from the Athletic Department; Parachute Club, $200 from SG and $300 from the Athletic Department; Sailing Club, $200 from SG and $500 from the Athletic Department.

The Carolina Readers' appropriation from SG was set at $350, and the Human Sexuality Counseling's appropriation was reduced to $915.

The committee did not change the $600 appropriation to the Draft Counseling.

The North Carolina Student Legislature appropriation was increased to $500.

The Odum-Victory Village appropriation was left at $4,460 and the Residence Hall Association was cut by over $3,000 to $10,087.50. A proposed scholarship to the president of the RIA was eliminated, as was a Resident Development Fund.

The Toronto Exchange appropriation was left at $600, and the Outing Club appropriation was increased to $300.

The Student Consumer Action Union's appropriation was raised to $4,265 to cover additional expenses in printing pamphlets.

The budget appropriations to the several branches of SG were set as follows: Executive, $7,520; Legislative, $1,900; Judicial, $2,235; Legislative Services, $500; and Elections Board, $1,150.

Categories for photostatic copying in all groups were cut in half in an effort "to encourage all offices to use carbon paper," Robertson said.

Friday eulogizes Ross

'A great humanitarian'

Memorial services for Dr. Robert A. "Daddy" Ross, who died Sunday, will be held in the clinic auditorium of N.C. Memorial Hospital at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 21.

"Dr. Ross was an outstanding teacher and a splendid doctor—and a great humanitarian," said UNC President William C. Friday. "His impact on medical education was far-reaching," he added.

Ross, chairman emeritus and professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the School of Medicine, earned his B.S. degree from UNC in 1920 and his M.D.

degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1922. A native of Morganton, Ross joined the UNC faculty in 1952 as the first chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

He stepped down as department chairman in 1965, but was on the teaching faculty until his death. In 1971, Ross was honored by his former students when the Robert A. Ross Distinguished Professorship was established.

He entered the Medical Corps of the U.S. Naval Reserve during World War I and served again in World War II. Dr.

Ross retired from the military in 1962 with the rank of rear admiral.

In the mid-20's, Ross became chief of the obstetrics service and the operating committee at Watts Hospital in Durham. He helped organize the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Duke University in 1930 and remained with the department until he came to UNC.

Ross was president of the N.C. Medical Society in 1967. Two years later he was installed as president of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Ross wrote nearly 100 scientific articles on female disorders and sex-related problems.

Ross, 73, died of an apparent heart attack.

Services Saturday will be conducted by the Rev. Willard Olney and Chaplain Fred Reid. Burial will be in Maplewood Cemetery in Durham.

Dr. Ross is survived by two sons, Charles Allen Ross of Chapel Hill and Robert A. Ross, Jr. of Durham; one daughter, Rosalie Walter Ross of Chapel Hill; one brother, Charles Ross of Morganton; and two grandchildren.

Contributions should be made to the Robert A. Ross Trust Fund, in care of Dr. William Easterling, Chapel Hill.

House gives okay to abortion change

by Jody Meacham
Staff Writer

The North Carolina House passed a bill Tuesday to bring the state abortion law in line with the recent Supreme Court decision. If the bill passes the Senate, a woman would be able to have an abortion up to the twentieth week of pregnancy.

The bill was a substitute measure written by a subcommittee of the House Health Committee which included Rep. Patricia Stanford Hunt of Orange County, Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham County and Rep. Frances Tomlin, R-Cabarrus County.

According to Whichard, the subcommittee tried to write a law which would conform to the Supreme Court decision but which would still limit abortions as much as possible.

The court's opinion prohibits states from forbidding abortions during the first two trimesters of pregnancy, approximately 24 weeks. In addition, the opinion said that states could not restrict abortion procedures until the second trimester, and then only to safeguard the health of the mother.

The House bill was drawn up, according to Whichard, to allow abortions only during the first 20 weeks. The provision was included on the advice of doctors who said that after that period, the likelihood of live births was too great.

Several representatives opposed the bill because, as Rep. William Hiatt, R-Surry County, said, "I resent having to yield to the nine lords of the U.S. Supreme Court on this."

A floor amendment, introduced by

Rep. Patricia Stanford Hunt

Rep. John S. Stevens, D-Buncombe County, was added to the measure which would allow a doctor to refuse to perform an abortion, or a hospital refuse to allow abortions to be performed.

In other House action, a bill to change the date of the N.C. presidential primary to July was re-referred to the Election Laws Committee, in effect killing the bill. The committee chairman broke a tie vote in committee last week so that the bill could be reported out to the House floor.

Firemen say of UNC

Firefighting share low

by Ken Allen

The University is not paying its fair share for community firefighting services, Fire Chief Everette Lloyd told the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen meeting Monday night.

According to the University's assessed property value, UNC should be paying $183,000 for its fire protection, or about 58 per cent of the fire department's budget, Lloyd said.

Presently UNC is only paying $45,000, although the town has asked the University for $55,000.

No action was taken by the aldermen concerning Lloyd's suggestion.

The aldermen agreed to buy a new fire truck with a water tower to reach high rise buildings after Lloyd told them that the department's present equipment is inadequate for fighting certain types of fires.

"One building at Memorial Hospital is worth $58 million," Lloyd said. "That's half as much as the town is worth. That building is 14 stories. If they had a fire and we rode over there with our 12 firemen, well, we'd be lost in there."

Lloyd also asked that well developed residential areas outside town boundaries be annexed for fire protection.

These areas would include parts of Briarcliff, The Oaks, Farrington Hills, Morgan Creek, Laurel Hill, Village West, North Lake Forest and the Booker Creek Apartments.

Lloyd further proposed a new fire station on Farrington Road so that protection could be provided to the Chatham County line.

The fire chief said that besides the land purchases, his main budget requests are for a safety patrol van and for money to establish a fire inspector's position.

The patrol would consist of a roving vehicle with two men and limited rescue and emergency equipment. It would fight small fires, report crimes to police, and let other town departments know of situations needing their attention.

In other business, the board refused to act on a request by Henry Edmiston, of Edmiston's, Inc., for an extension on a special use permit for land development at the intersection of Airport and Barclay roads. Edmiston was told that in order to continue land development he must re-apply for a new permit.

The aldermen also approved a request by the Council on Aging that the town give $842 to aid in funding the Retired Senior Volunteer Programs (RSVP). RSVP was established to "encourage persons 60 years of age or older to engage in volunteer service which will be meaningful to themselves and beneficial to their community," said Rev. Frank Perry, chairman of the RSVP Task Force.

Meditation on the rise here

by Amy O'Neal
Staff Writer

Transcendental Meditation (TM) has 300 practitioners on campus now and the number is growing. The last course to be offered on campus this semester starts with an introductory lecture at 7:30 p.m. in 100 Hamilton Hall.

Ken and Christine Leavitt are teaching the course. They spent seven months in Spain last year studying at the Maharishi International University under Maharishi Mahesh Yogi and have been teaching in Chapel Hill since last July.

Meditators of TM claim that their grades improve because TM expands one's awareness and makes assimilation easier. Meditation takes 20 minutes in the morning and 20 at night. The eight hours between are said to be ones of greater self-confidence and stability. All aspects of life—mental and physical—are said to be changed.

"TM is an effortless technique requiring no change in one's way of living," Leavitt said. "Anybody who can think can meditate. TM does not require concentration on an object, as do most other similar disciplines."

The program starts with introductory lectures tonight. An explanation of TM will be given (The International Meditation Society is a non-profit educational organization, so price is merely for subsidy).

Those interested in pursuing the course, plus any others who cannot attend tonight, will have another meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday in 100 Hamilton. Two-hour individual sessions with an instructor are scheduled Saturday. The entire group will meet together on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings.

"No analysis of the student's background needs to be made," Leavitt emphasized. "We merely teach a kind of meditation that allows for the natural tendency of the mind to wander, as does a bee from flower to flower—but it's not daydreaming."

Advanced lectures are continually offered for those who wish to advance in TM. The teachers are always available for checking sessions with any students who wish them after completion of the course.

TM became internationally known when the Beatles visited the Maharishi a few years ago. In a press conference in Chapel Hill on April 9, Mike Love of the Beach Boys attributed that group's success to TM.

Today's weather

Cloudy with a sixty percent chance of precipitation. The expected high is in the mid 70's, the low tonight is expected in the mid 50's.

A young man's fancy
