

Beat State, 21-20

UNC JV's win biggie

by Jim Thomas and Susan Shackelford Sports Writers

Carolina's junior varsity preserved a one-point lead in the fourth quarter to beat the Wolflets of N.C. State, 21-20, yesterday in UNC's Kenan Stadium.

A spirited Tar Baby squad dampened the hopes of visitors N.C. State when end Steven Brisson picked off a State pass with 2:46 remaining in the final period. However, the Wolflets fought back in the waning seconds of the game with a succession of pass plays, but time was not on their side.

N.C. State's turnovers plagued the Wolflets throughout the contest. In the first quarter Carolina's Brian Hughes recovered a State fumble to Tom McLoughlin, halting an early Pack drive. Also, in the same period Barry Wynings intercepted a State pass. Six plays later the Tar Babies missed a 33 yard field goal attempt.

Horace Whitaker and Rob Sygor for N.C. State led a 64-yard march that was climaxed with a Sygor fumble, recovered by UNC's Snider at the Tar Baby 26-yard line.

During the first part of the second quarter neither Carolina or N.C. State could manage touchdowns on 73- and 65-yard efforts, respectively. With about 4:00 remaining in the half the Tar Babies' Billy Murphy intercepted a State throw at the N.C. State 25-yard line and rambled to the seven.

Chuck Austin scored from the one-yard mark on a run up the middle. The extra point failed because of the poor snap from center, with UNC leading 6-0.

Alternating with quarterbacks Caesar Campana and Pat Connolly, the Wolflets moved the ball 73 yards in four plays for a touchdown before half-time. The score occurred on a 34-yard pass from Campana to Sygor. In converting the extra point after touchdown (Pat) State moved ahead 7-6.

In the third frame Carolina's Scott Reynolds recovered a Whitaker fumble on the State 34-yard line. The Tar Babies quickly capitalized upon this turnover with 36-yard scoring drive, pushing UNC ahead 13-7. The series of plays setting up the touchdown was highlighted by 12-yard pass from quarterback Carl Hoffman to end Brooks Williams. Nick Wilce and Phil Wise also made carries of eight and seven yards, respectively.

With 2:26 left in the third quarter Russ Clark fell on a Wilce fumble at the UNC 12. In four plays the Wolflets reached pay dirt on short ground plays shifting the score in favor of the visitors 14-13.

Carolina mounted its most impressive drive of the afternoon late in the third quarter. Beginning at the UNC 21 the Tar Babies moved 79 yards using on the clock 6:29 in 13 plays. The attack was led by the running of Wilce and Wise. Wise repeatedly chucked up yardage, bulldozing through the State offensive line.

A 27-yard pass play from Hoffman to Mark Griffin sustained the drive on a second down and eight situation. Austin scored on a pitch-put around right end. With the two-point conversion UNC grabbed a seven-point lead.

Fifty-four yards of penalties were assessed to the Tar Babies with almost ten minutes left in the game. A pass interference and two personal fouls moved the Pack from their own 27 to UNC's 19. Campana directed the Wolflets in completing two passes to Johnny Richardson for a total of 29 yards and a State touchdown.

Trailing by one point, the Wolflets elected to gamble for the two-points needed for the win. Linebacker Billy Murphy knocked down a crucial Campana pass to squelch the Pack's victory thirst.

On offense the Wolflets tossed for an impressive 258 yards out of a total of 367 yards on offense. Connolly completed three of four attempts, and Campana, 10-29. Most of the Tar Babies yardage was gained on ground plays with 204 yards rushing as compared with 62 yards in the air.

ACC race plot thickens

by United Press International

Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne, his Terrapins in the running for the Atlantic Coast Conference title after a 23-3 thrashing of defending champ North Carolina, says last Saturday's match proved his squad can play "great all the way around."

North Carolina State Coach Lou Holtz, whose squad is tied for the early ACC lead with one victory (over Virginia) against no losses in the league, says the Wolfpack's Saturday match against second ranked Nebraska proved he has a "fine football team" despite the 31-14 loss.

As for a definite answer on which is finer, fans will have to wait until the two teams meet in Raleigh Oct. 13. Both squads take on non-conference foes this coming Saturday. State (1-1, 1-0) will play Georgia, and Maryland (1-1, 1-0) hosts Villanova. Maryland doesn't have another ACC game until the contest with the Wolfpack, though State does, playing Carolina Oct. 6.

"Our defense was super and the offense was much improved in both running and passing," said Claiborne. The defense held Carolina, which until Saturday had won 15 straight ACC games, to a total 196 yards in offense.

And the Terp offense, starring backup quarterback Al Neville with nine pass completions for 121 yards and two touchdowns, left Tar Heel Coach Bill Dooley wondering what the problem was. "Maybe we're not as good as some people thought we were or maybe we got a little too fat and started taking things for granted," he said.

Holtz watched the Wolfpack build up to a 14-10 lead after three quarters, only to have Nebraska score three touchdowns in the final period.

"Mistakes caught us at the end," he said.

"The momentum switched back and forth, but they had it then."

In the only conference bout of the coming weekend, Duke (1-1, 0-0) visits Virginia (1-2, 0-1). The Blue Devils, with quarterback Mark Johnson throwing for two touchdowns including one with 1:37 to play, beat Washington Saturday 23-21. Virginia, having trouble keeping its game consistent, will be trying to recover from a 31-7 loss to Missouri Saturday.

Carolina (1-1, 0-1) faces Missouri at home Saturday while Clemson (1-1, 0-0) goes on the road to Georgia Tech and Wake Forest (1-1, 0-0) will take on Richmond at Richmond.

The Tigers Saturday lost to Georgia 31-14 after having held a 7-3 halftime lead, while the Deacons wound up on the short end of William & Mary's stick, 15-14, after an Indian field goal in the closing minutes of play.

Buy the BSR 710 or 810.

Either way you'll get the shaft.

The BSR 810 and 710 have their brains in their shaft. A carefully machined metal rod holding eight precision-molded cams. When the cam shaft turns, the cams make things happen. A lock is released, an arm raises and swings, a record drops, a platter starts spinning, the arm is lowered, the arm stops, the arm raises again, it swings back, another record is dropped onto the platter, the arm is lowered again, and so on, for as many hours as you like.

Deluxe turntables from other companies do much the same thing, but they use many more parts—scads of separate swinging arms, gears, plates, and springs—in an arrangement that is not nearly as mechanically elegant, or as quiet or reliable; that produces considerably more vibration, and is much more susceptible to mechanical shock than the BSR sequential cam shaft system.

When you buy a turntable, make sure you get the shaft. The BSR 710 and 810. From the world's largest manufacturer of automatic turntables.
