

The Daily Tar Heel

81 Years Of Editorial Freedom

Vol. 82, No. 29

Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Wednesday, October 3, 1973

Founded February 23, 1893

You find the damedest things in bathrooms these days

Staff photo by Alan E. Geer

Ervin to talk University Day

by Ethel Johnson
Staff Writer

Sen. Sam J. Ervin will be the keynote speaker at the University Day ceremonies, Friday, Oct. 12.

Highlighting the day will be presentations of the Distinguished Alumnus Award to Sen. Ervin and four other alumni. The award has been given since 1971 by the UNC faculty to alumni who have distinguished themselves in their profession and reflected favorably upon the University.

Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor disclosed Monday that awards will also be presented to Hugh Thomas Swedenberg Jr., professor of English at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA); Paul Green, dramatist; James Kerne (Kay) Kyser, bandleader and University benefactor; and Page Ackerman, librarian at UCLA.

Activities will begin at the Old Well, according to Provost J.C. Morrow, chairman of the University Day

Committee. The faculty will assemble there at 10:30 a.m. and march in academic procession into Memorial Hall at 11 a.m. Marching music will be by the University Band, directed by John Yesulaitis.

Chancellor Taylor will preside at the ceremonies which traditionally recognize the laying of the cornerstone of Old East in 1793. The Carolina Choir, directed by Kenan Professor Lara D. Hoggard, will provide the music for the program in Memorial Hall.

Sen. Ervin, a member of UNC's class of 1917, served as a county judge, superior court judge and associate justice of the N.C. Supreme Court before appointment to the U.S. Senate in 1954. Recognized for his concentration in individual rights and as a foremost interpreter of the U.S. Constitution, he currently is chairman of the Congressional investigations known as "Watergate Hearings."

Dr. Swedenberg received the Ph.D. degree from the University in 1937. He is an author, editor and teacher of English literature at UCLA.

Paul Eliot Green, a 1914 graduate at Chapel Hill, won the Pulitzer Prize in 1927 for his play, "In Abraham's Bosom." He has achieved success in motion picture scenario writing and for his symphonic pageant dramas produced in many places over the nation. He is the author of The Lost Colony, an outdoor drama presented on the Outer Banks of N.C.

James Kerne (Kay) Kyser was graduated at Chapel Hill in 1928 and achieved fame in the entertainment world of music and motion pictures. Since retiring, he has aided the University in several ways, particularly in promoting the state's Good Health Campaign in the 1950's.

Page Ackerman, one of the foremost women librarians in the nation, was graduated from the UNC School of Library Science in 1940. She is now librarian at UCLA.

Assistant admissions director

Epps returns with new position

by Henry Farber
Staff Writer

A lot of people thought they had seen the last of Richard Epps when he graduated from UNC last spring.

But he was seen recently seated comfortably behind a big desk in the undergraduate admissions office, talking to a friend about his new apartment in Chapel Hill.

Epps, last year's student body president, accepted an appointment to succeed H. Bently Renwick as assistant director of undergraduate admissions. Renwick has been promoted to assistant dean in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Epp's new job will take him throughout the state, visiting high school guidance counselors and recruiting prospective students. After about three months of such road work he will join three other assistant directors in reviewing applications, with Epps working mainly on minority students' applications.

Epps said he received some previous experience when working under Renwick as a volunteer student recruiter in his freshman and sophomore years. Renwick was instrumental in his appointment, Epps said.

Epps expressed several reasons why he accepted the post. "It's a chance for me to do something for the University and for the black people in North Carolina," he said. "I feel the University hasn't lived up to all its responsibilities to all its citizens until it's made an effort to recruit students of all backgrounds and races."

Epps spent the past summer assisting American Civil Liberties Union attorneys in Washington, D.C. Most of his work revolved around research of the Watergate case in the ACLU's defense of the Democratic National Committee in their suit against the Committee to Re-elect the President.

When beckoned back to Chapel Hill, he had just begun work as an administrative assistant to Congressman Ronald Dellums of California.

Although Epps will not be directly involved in student politics, he says he still maintains an interest. "I did send Ford Runge some ACLU literature on student rights," Epps said. "But except for reading a couple of back issues of the DTH, I haven't been able to keep up with student activities since I left."

"Just because I've taken an administrative position, it doesn't mean I've sold out to students," he added. "I'd be happy to talk to anybody who has a complaint in my area."

Women equal 40% of UNC student body

Approximately 40 percent of the total enrollment of UNC this year are women, according to official figures. Women comprise 7,711 of the 19,396 students.

The current on-campus enrollment includes 16,620 students in the Division of Academic Affairs and 2,695 in the Division of Health Affairs. An additional 81 attend off-campus graduate centers.

There are 13,468 students in the undergraduate program this fall.

Enrollment includes 5,817 in General College; Arts and Sciences, 4,078; Business Administration, 961; Education, 766; Journalism, 269; Evening College, 520; Dentistry, 138; Medicine, 72; Nursing, 268; and Pharmacy, 579.

Students in professional schools total 1,463, including 207 women. Law School has 578 men and 121 women enrolled; the School of Medicine, 374 men and 76 women; and the School of Dentistry, 304 men and 10 women.

Of the graduate enrollment, 2,089 are in Arts and Sciences; Business Administration, 256; Education, 526; Journalism, 18; Library Science, 144; Social Work, 168; Evening College, 309; Dentistry, 39; Medicine, 196; Nursing, 62; Pharmacy, 32 and Public Health, 545.

The predicted enrollment for the UNC campus was 19,300.

EPA grievance committee selected

by Janet Langston
Staff Writer

The EPA Non-faculty Grievance Committee provided for in the Affirmative Action plan has been named by Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor.

The committee is to serve as a mechanism not only for alleged racial and sexual discrimination, but also to handle other problems arising among the EPA non-faculty group, including suspensions and discharges.

EPA personnel are "those employees exempt from the State Personnel Act.

used in hiring," said James O. Cansler, associate dean of Student Affairs. EPA "ranges from the Chancellor to research assistants, and includes highly trained professional people (physicians in the Student Health Service, for example) as well as some with no college degrees," according to the Affirmative Action plan.

The committee is authorized to hear grievances by persons directly involved in the conflict, to arrange a voluntary settlement if possible and to advise administrative action when appropriate.

Grievances must first be presented to the department head, dean or

Committee to question candidates

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate Watergate Committee, which resumes public hearings today with questioning of political saboteur Donald H. Segretti, will switch its inquiry to activities of Democratic candidates, sources said Tuesday.

Segretti, who pleaded guilty to political sabotage, and two associates are expected to testify about their assignments in the 1972 GOP presidential campaign while staff investigators attempt to uncover political "dirty tricks" by the Democrats.

A committee source said the witness list is still uncertain, but hearings next week will likely concentrate on ways supporters of Democratic candidates exceeded acceptable campaign practices.

Interrogation of Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign aides has turned up only "bits and pieces," according to one GOP committee counsel.

The questioning of at least nine McGovern staff workers — primarily by the Republican staff — is part of an intensive investigation into reports Democrats, as well as President Nixon's campaign aides, resorted to "dirty tricks" in 1972.

Chief Committee Counsel Samuel

Dash said he offered the services of his staff of assistant Republican investigators.

Segretti, 32, a California lawyer, pleaded guilty Monday to three counts of political espionage mainly directed at discrediting Democratic Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's Florida presidential primary campaign.

He is to be followed to the witness table by Robert M. Benz, 25, a former president of the Tampa, Fla., Young Republicans, and Martin D. Kelly, 22, of Miami. Both are described by committee sources as Segretti's operatives in Florida.

Meanwhile, it was learned the committee may recall Jeb Stuart Magruder, the Nixon campaign's deputy director, and Herbert "Bart" Porter, former scheduling director for the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

The investigation into possible wrongdoing by Democrats has included the alleged use of telephones at a McGovern headquarters to instigate an anti-Nixon rally during a campaign appearance by the President in Los Angeles.

Investigators also have interviewed a number of McGovern's top aides, including Lawrence F. O'Brien, campaign director; Gary Hart, campaign manager; and Frank Mankeiwicz, political director.

Seems like the campus cops are getting more vicious every day. This time, they're going after that endangered species, the motorcycle. If this vindictive attack continues, we may see the extinction of the species.

(Staff photo by Gary Lobralco)

Weather

TODAY: Partly cloudy and dry. The high is expected in the low 80's and the low tonight is expected in the low 60's. There is near zero per cent chance of precipitation through tonight. Outlook: cool and dry.